b, Timeline of the genocide

- 1759-60. Chinese imperial conquest of central Asia, incl. of Xinjiang ("New Conquest" in Chinese)
- 1870s. Abortive attempt, under Zuo Zongtang, to force-assimilate Uyghurs to Chinese Confucian morality. Probably influenced by European nationalist ideas 1884. The Qing imperial government declares Xinjiang to be its province
- 1911-12. Chinese revolution created the Chinese Republic, which insisted on keeping the imperial conquests. Mongolia later was the only nation to successfully establish independence; Tibet and East Turkestan (Xinjiang) failed, despite periods of de facto self-rule, incl. the first (independent), and second (Soviet-dominated) East Turkestan Republic, 1933-34 & 1944-49
1945. Post-WWII, United Nations established; decolonization carried out in some parts of the world — but not for the colonial possessions of China and Russia
1950. Re-conquest of 'Xinjiang' (and Tibet) by the new Communist Chinese government in Beijing
1954. Xinjiang Production and Construction Corps (XPCC), a state-military company, in charge of exploiting the region's resources, and (for the first time), bring large numbers of Chinese settlers
1955. Formal establishment of the Uyghur Autonomous Region of Xinjiang as part of new Communist China
1997. Ghulja massacre, one of several incidents quelling Uyghur protests against discrimination
2009. Urumchi 'riot': bloody confrontations provoked by an incident in faraway Guangzhou
2014. Xi Jinping, China's new supreme leader, visits Kashgar; reportedly angry over failure of assimilation efforts of previous decades; uses terrorist incidents as excuse to plan a massive collective punishment
2014. Ilham Tohti, prominent moderate Uyghur advocate, is given life sentence for "separatism"
2016. Xi Jinping appoints Chen Quanguo as Xinjiang communist chief, to plan and launch the multi-pronged genocide (construction of camps, recruitment of guards, procuring coercive equipment, plus accompanying measures to curb Uyghur language, culture and religion, destroying mosques, etc.)
2017. Mass detentions begin; phone lines are cut, Uyghurs in exile lose contact with their families; now alerted, foreign researchers, journalists begin reporting on the new camp system under development using satellite imagery, and interviewing eyewitnesses, whose reports begin to emerge, describing the forced assimilation procedures of the camps and the cruelties associated with the brainwashing

- 2018. Chinese authorities acknowledge existence of camps, which they had denied; also begins efforts to use fake, staged camps to invite journalists from “friendly” countries; procedure occasionally misfires
- 2018. The U.N. Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination, holds hearings on Xinjiang, and issues stern advice for China to restore human rights there. Chinese government refuses
- 2019. Start of the annual battles at the United Nations Human Rights Council (Geneva), for or against China’s genocidal policies. Nearly all Muslim countries choose to support China
- 2019. Leaks of Chinese internal documents: “China Cables” (ICIJ), and “Xinjiang Papers” (NYT)
- 2019. Leak of police drone film of Kashgar detainees transferred to camps in Ghulja; caused another stir when it re-circulated in 2020, reminding the world of China’s near-total news blackout
- 2019. After a 2-year inquiry, Canada’s Parliament becomes the first of a series of parliaments and governments to condemn the atrocities as a genocide as per the UN Genocide Convention
- 2020. US adopts Uyghur Human Rights Policy Act, to sanction Chinese officials and companies
- 2020. Conclusive evidence of genocidal mass sterilizations discovered in Chinese govt. documents, and by eyewitness testimony; also, widespread abuse of women, mass family separations, etc.
- 2020. Some camp detainees are transferred to forced labor (including in cotton, and other industries); young people are also sent directly to Eastern Chinese factories, away from their homeland. Other camp detainees are transferred to prisons; some camps continue. (All clearly part of a master plan, to break the transmission of Uyghur, Kazakh culture, and force them all to assimilate or die)
- 2020. IN late September, Party chief Xi Jinping gathers Communist elite for public meeting to endorse his brutal Xinjiang policies as “Entirely Correct.”
- 2021. The EU, US, UK, and Canada issue more sanctions over the atrocities; China retaliates w. sanctions on Western elected politicians, individual scholars, and think tanks
- 2021. Newlines Institute & 50 legal experts concludes the Chinese campaign is genocide
- 2021. Uyghur Tribunal held in London; gathers testimonies from eyewitnesses and others; in December, concludes the campaign is genocide
- 2022. Leak of more Chinese internal documents: “The Xinjiang Police Files,” incl. large trove of victim’s mugshots; and documents re-confirming top Chinese leaders’ direct responsibility
- 2022. In May, a widely criticized staged visit to China by UN high commissioner for Human Rights, Michelle Bachelet, who fails to call for an international tribunal (as for Bosnia or Rwanda)
- 2022. US adopts Uyghur Forced Labor Prevention Act, to block imported goods made with slave labor. Enforcement clearly an issue. Similar legislation enacted in the EU

2022. Triumphant visit July 12-13 to Xinjiang by the Chinese leader, Xi Jinping (following closely on similar triumphant visit July 1, to Hong Kong, which also had been subdued by force, to stop the popular pro-democracy demonstrations in 2019)
2022. Office of the UN high commissioner for Human Rights, Michelle Bachelet, belatedly issues a report on Xinjiang just before resigning on midnight, 31 August 2022. The report is instantly condemned by China; a struggle ensues at the UN, over whether to bury it, or debate it.
- 2022, Oct. 6, UN Human rights council member countries vote narrowly to not allow further debate on the Bachelet report.
- 2022, Nov. 25. the U.N. Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination reiterates its 2018 concerns over Xinjiang and refers them to the UN Office on Genocide Prevention and the Responsibility to Protect [<https://ishr.ch/latest-updates/china-must-release-uyghurs-end-grave-violations-rules-un-committee/>], which is obliged to react, but even by June 2023 has not done so [cf. <https://twitter.com/UyghurProject/status/1673446070989340674>].
2022. Nov. 24 fire in Urumchi apartment building kills multiple Uyghur families, sparks nationwide protests in China and among Chinese abroad, against government's harsh Covid lockdowns. Some Chinese participants, inside and outside China, express solidarity with Uyghur victims.
- 2023, Feb. 13, China cancels planned visit of Xinjiang governor Erkin Tuniyaz to Brussels, Paris, and London, after criticism and threats of lawsuits over his part in the abuse of Uyghurs.
2023. Arab League makes Potemkin trip to Xinjiang; on June 14, Palestinian leader Mahmoud Abbas again endorses China's genocide, in Beijing, saying it has "nothing to do with human rights."

In one week in June of 2017, a total of 15,683 people were sent to interment camps from four prefectures in Xinjiang (Khotan, Kashgar, Kizilsu, Aqsu), according to what appears to be a leaked internal document. Ultimate source is unclear. The document says its data comes from the IJOP (Integrated Joint Operations Platform), the supposedly AI-driven system that collates surveillance data in Xinjiang and automatically flags people as suspicious (see <https://www.hrw.org/news/2018/02/26/china-big-data-fuels-crackdown-minority-region>) ... It specifies that the IJOP flagged 24,612 people in these 4 prefectures as suspicious during the week of 6/19 to 6/25/2017. 15,683 were sent to re-education/internment and 706 for criminal detention... Abstract--Few issues have had as far-reaching impact on China's relations with the world - economic, technological, political - as Beijing's policies in the Muslim-majority Xinjiang Autonomous Region. From civil society outrage over "re-education camps" in 2018, to the imposition of Western sanctions against officials held responsible for mass human rights violations, to allegations of forced labour in supply chains, to the UN High Commissioner on Human Rights raising possible crimes against humanity in September 2022, the Xinjiang issue has driven decoupling, political tensions and a widening chasm in perceptions between China and the West. Where have these policies come from? What lines of political thinking underpin them? How does China's own discourse about its Xinjiang policies relate to broader discourses in world politics? This unique forum brings together research from two leading experts on the subject, who will address the origins and future of the crisis.
Speaker bio: Chi Zhang is British Academy Postdoctoral Fellow at the University of St. Andrews, and the author of Legitimacy of China's Counter-Terrorism Approach: The Mass Line Ethos (Singapore: Palgrave MacMillan). Beatrice Gallelli is Assistant Professor in Chinese language and translation at Ca'Foscari University of Venice who has written on China's official discourse on Xinjiang.

COLONIAL BOARDING SCHOOLS IN CHINA

A full-scale genocide is taking place now in Northwest China. Uyghur, Kazakh, Tibetan, and other minority families are being traumatized through the assimilationist policies of the Chinese Communist Party (CCP), which include children being forcibly separated from their parents and placed in boarding schools where they're systematically stripped of their language, culture, and religion. Why Uyghurs? Religious Revival, Ethnic Violence and State Response in Xinjiang. Lecture by Yan Sun, City University of New York. Monday, November 7, 2022, 5:00 PM - 6:00 PM.

<https://www.international.ucla.edu/apc/centralasia/event/15747>

Since mid-2017, reports of massive “re-education” camps in Xinjiang have drawn global attention to China’s “war on Muslim Uyghurs.” Why has this group been targeted? Latest studies point to “imaginary terrorism,” “securitization of Uyghur identity” and “settler colonialism” as the underlying causes. My own study finds a different state-centric dynamic: the party-state’s policy of alternatively promoting and restraining religious revival has played a crucial role in contributing to the current state of Uyghurs’ plight. In the early post-Mao era, the state sponsored religious revival in Xinjiang (and Tibet) as a mechanism of political integration, to repair damaged relations with key minority communities. This ethnic accommodation, however, encouraged ethnic identity expression and sectarian developments to evolve progressively in directions unintended and undesired by the state. The demise of socialist safety nets and weakened state capacity in the countryside further aggravated the problem. Religious growth then has had to be curbed in increasingly constraining ways, leading to frustrated identity, ethnic mobilization, political resistance, ethnic violence, and ultimately the state’s draconian curtailment in the form of “re-education” camps and intense security measures. My discussion will trace the cycles of these developments and end with a brief contrast of the Uyghur and Tibetan cases. Yan Sun is a Professor of Political Science at the City University of New York, Queens College and the Graduate Center. She is the author of From Empire to Nation State: Ethnic Politics in China (Cambridge 2020), Corruption and Market in Contemporary China (Cornell 2004) and The Chinese Reassessment of Socialism (Princeton 1995). She has also published articles on these topics, including comparative studies of China and Russia, and China and India. A native of Sichuan, her interest in China’s ethnic politics stems from childhood memories of banished relatives in Uyghur and Tibetan regions. [Difficult not to read as a species of “soft” genocide denialism. The atrocities are never condemned]

Ending slavery through boycotts: right or wrong? From fashion to food, workers are subjected to forced labor in the production of our everyday items. So, what can we do about it? As individuals, changing our shopping choices, even stopping buying certain products altogether can feel like the most effective response. Governments might choose to implement import bans to prevent products tainted with forced labor from reaching their shelves like the recent Uyghur Forced Labor Prevention Act in the U.S. But are boycotts and import bans always best – and can we end slavery using these tools? Tune in for a discussion breaking down this issue with Uyghur activist and forced labor expert Jewher Ilham, and labor rights expert Allison Gill.

Everybody Is Gone is an innovative live event that offers a unique perspective on the ongoing crisis in the Uyghur homeland. Uniting elements of journalism, live performance, and museum exhibition, the immersive event offers audiences insight into the day-to-day repression that the Chinese government doesn't want you to see.

This show contains themes of oppression, repression, and control, and may be challenging to some audiences. This show is immersive & interactive, and audiences will be asked to participate in a meaningful way. Audiences will be on their feet, walking and standing.

Government Boarding Schools as a Tool of Genocide in the 21st Century: Uyghur and Tibetan Family Separation. Tuesday, July 26, 2022 | 1:00–2:00 p.m. EDT

No registration required, watch via UHRP Facebook, Twitter or YouTube.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=FtrtgrY2QsA>

From July 24 to 29, Pope Francis is visiting Canada, when he will publicly apologize for the suffering and abuse in the Catholic boarding schools for Canada's indigenous peoples, following his historic apology at the Vatican in April. In May 2022, the U.S. government released an unprecedented report on 53 burial sites at 408 boarding schools for Native American children across 37 states, operating between 1819 and 1969. These historic crimes are recognized as causing lifelong and generational trauma.

Now in the 21st Century, the Chinese government is operating a vast system of colonial boarding schools in Tibet, including at least 50 mandatory boarding preschools holding 100,000 Tibetan children, ages 4 to 6. The Chinese government is also operating mandatory boarding schools for Uyghur children as part of its genocidal policies, in a systematic effort to separate Uyghur children from their families, affecting an estimated 900,000 children. Please join us for a discussion of the implications of these crimes and the need for a policy response.

Terror Capitalism: Producing the 'Terrorist-Worker' in Northwest China, by Darren Byler
Wednesday, March 2, 2022, at 4:45pm. Virtual Event

<https://events.cornell.edu/event/terror-capitalism-producing-the-terrorist-worker-in-northwest-china-by-darren-byler>

Abstract: This talk focuses on some of the key ideas of my ethnographic monograph Terror Capitalism: Uyghur Dispossession and Masculinity in a Chinese City. Drawing on more than 24 months of ethnographic research in the Uyghur region of Northwest China and nearby Kazakhstan between 2011 and 2020, open-source and internal police documents, and extensive interviews with current and former “terrorist-workers” before their detention in 2017, interviews with their family members since detention, and in several cases post release, it considers how Muslim farmers can be turned into unfree workers under the sign of terrorism. By placing these accounts in the context of broader economic transformations in the region and considering how the rise of the “terrorist-worker” figures in scholarship of the frontiers of global economy, the article makes a broader argument about a global turn toward techno-political systems of capital accumulation and state power. Specifically, it considers the roles that dataveillance and legal frames of exclusion play in the rise of what I name terror capitalism—an ethno-racialized system of data and labor expropriation and social control that operates under the sign of the “terrorist.” It shows how such a system can generate capital by holding targeted groups in place through biometric and social surveillance, producing forms of self-discipline and unfree labor for private manufacturers.

This discussion will be moderated by Cornell faculty Eric Tagliocozzo, John Stambaugh Professor of History and Esra Akcan, Michael A. McCarthy Professor of Architectural Theory

Description -- Policies implemented by the CCP in Xinjiang since c. 2016 have become a central issue in PRC international relations, leading to international determinations that those policies constitute genocide; scrutiny of global supply chains for Xinjiang cotton, textiles and polysilicon; US sanctions on companies and individuals and Congressional inquiries directed at Airbnb and other multinationals operating in Xinjiang; and diplomatic boycotts of the Olympics. The assimilationist policies, if most extreme in Xinjiang, are related to the broader Zhonghua-izing campaign against religion and non-Mandarin language and perhaps even to intensified control over Hong Kong and efforts to intimidate Taiwan—an aggressive intolerance of cultural and political diversity that is emerging as a central feature of Xi Jinping's tenure. This talk will review the Xinjiang crisis to date and suggest how we should understand these events and trends. --Presented by the APARC China Program.

Join the Uyghur Human Rights Project for a discussion of the Chinese translation of our recent report Under the Gavel: Evidence of Uyghur-Owned Property Seized and Sold Online. The report reveals evidence of the Chinese government's confiscation of property belonging to imprisoned Uyghur businesspeople, and their sale on the Alibaba Group's e-commerce website Taobao. The report analyses the Chinese government's targeting of Uyghur businesspeople as members of the social elite, alongside intellectuals and religious leaders. The government perceives these groups as a threat to Party and state authority due to their status outside of official institutions and their role in maintaining Uyghur culture. Speakers: Ms. Nyrola Elima, Professor David Xia Yeliang, Ms. Asiye Abdulahad. Moderator: Dr. Teng Biao.

Gender and Genocide in the 21st Century

This two day conference (September 20-21, [2021]) convenes legal, gender, and genocide experts from around the world to discuss the four recent and/or ongoing asserted genocides of the Uyghurs, Rohingya, Yazidis, and Tigrayans. Our panels of experts will examine State responses to genocide, challenges to justice for gendered crimes during conflict or genocide, and how the crime of genocide itself is gendered.

USCIRF & TLHRC Hearing: Ending Genocide: Accountability for Perpetrators. Jul 28, 2021 10:30 AM in Eastern Time (US and Canada)

https://www.zoomgov.com/webinar/register/WN_WOmlqv94QFGu2iCGL-eHfg

Please join the U.S. Commission on International Religious Freedom (USCIRF) and the Tom Lantos Human Rights Commission (TLHRC) for a joint virtual hearing on how perpetrators of mass atrocities can be held accountable for international crimes, including genocide, committed against religious communities.

Despite the 1948 Genocide Convention and declarations of "never again", perpetrators around the world continue to commit genocide, including against religious communities with impunity. Holding perpetrators accountable for their crimes is imperative for deterrence and is a key element in providing justice to the victims of these crimes. While States have the primary obligation under international law to criminally prosecute those responsible for mass atrocity crimes, international and hybrid courts can help close the accountability gap.

Several religious communities targeted by genocide in recent years continue to raise their voices for justice. Witnesses will discuss how the U.S. government and the international community can identify and support opportunities to hold perpetrators of mass atrocities accountable.

Opening Remarks

- Rep. James McGovern, D-MA, Co-Chair, TLHRC
- Rep. Chris Smith, R-NJ, Co-Chair, TLHRC
- Nadine Maenza, Chair, USCIRF
- Nury Turkel, Vice Chair, USCIRF

Panel I

Gendering the Uyghur Genocide

Description: In March, Newlines published its groundbreaking Uyghur Genocide Report that found China in breach of the 1948 Genocide Convention. While parliaments, policymakers, and world leaders have been debating this issue, many conversations are missing the critical element of a gendered analysis of genocide. Our panel of gender and legal experts will discuss how genocide is a gendered crime, examine the genocide being perpetrated against the Uyghurs, and weigh in on how the U.S. and other countries can hold China accountable.

<https://register.gotowebinar.com/register/2584784024812088080>

Join the Uyghur Human Rights Project for a discussion of our most recent report, "The Government Never Oppresses Us": China's proof-of-life videos as intimidation and a violation of Uyghur family unity. The report analyzes the phenomenon of the family members of overseas Uyghurs appearing in state-produced videos denying human rights abuses in the region and calling on their relatives to cease speaking out. These videos serve as a tool of misinformation, intimidation, and fear directed at the overseas Uyghur community.

Speakers include: Emily Upson, Author, "The Government Never Oppresses Us"; Ferkat Jawdat, Uyghur Activist; William Nee, Research & Advocacy Coordinator, Chinese Human Rights Defenders (CHRD).

Details - It's been three years since renowned Uyghur writer Perhat Tursun vanished into China's internment camps, along with more than a million other Uyghurs. This Sunday, several of Perhat's friends will be holding an online discussion event to raise awareness of this remarkable writer, his unjust imprisonment, and the crisis in the Uyghur region. #FreePerhat by:

Tahir Hamut Izgil, Poet and filmmaker

Muyesser Abdul'ehed Hendan, Writer and educator

The role of media in reporting on China's persecution of the Uyghurs

The European Foundation for Democracy cordially invites you to an online discussion with:

Dolkun Isa, President of the World Uyghur Congress and Vice-President of UNPO; Nevşin Mengü, Turkish Journalist; Giulia Pompili, Journalist, Asia-Pacific Desk, Il Foglio. Jan 28, 2021 04:00 PM in Brussels. https://us02web.zoom.us/webinar/register/WN_xGQi8U03SU-h1wkmkxmdDg

As the world is still caught-up in the Coronavirus pandemic, China's repressive policies and persecution of the Uyghurs continue in silence. Torture, forced labour, sterilisation of Uyghur women are all taking place on a day-to-day basis in the Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region in China. Free and independent media plays a crucial role in denouncing and raising awareness on the gross violations of universal human rights being perpetrated against the Uyghurs by the Chinese Communist Party. This webinar explores how independent quality media can serve as remedy against the ongoing persecution of the Uyghurs by providing a comprehensive and objective outlook on the situation.

Seminarium om uigurernas situation i Kina, arrangerat av Svenska PEN. Svenska PEN. Dec 11, 2020. <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=MLtILlqzhMM>

Med anledning av att Svenska PEN publicerade rapporten, Writing against oblivion – Culture and Language as Means of Oppression and of Resilience in the Xinjiang Region, som belyser situationen i den västra regionen Xinjiang där miljontals människor, däribland uigurer, kazaker och andra muslimska minoriteter, fallit offer för en storskalig assimileringsspolitik, hölls ett seminarium på Bonniers Konsthall. Medverkade gjorde författaren Per Wirtén, rapportförfattaren Elin Alfredsson Malmros, den i Sverige bosatta uiguriska poeten Abdushukur Muhemmet och Sveriges Radios Kinaexpert Hanna Sahlberg. Gert Lundstedt läste uigurisk poesi.

Språk som förtryck och motstånd - situationen för uigurska författare i Kina. Svenska PEN, live December 10 at 8:58 AM. <https://www.facebook.com/svenskapen/videos/1284408861912058/>
Efter decennier av förtryck från kinesiska myndigheter riskerar uigurnas språk, kultur och identitet att utplånas helt. I en färsk rapport från Svenska PEN vittnar fem uiguriska författare i exil om förföljelser, arresteringar och fängslar där det enda brottet är att de utövat sin mänskliga rättighet att uttrycka sig fritt på sitt eget språk.

Svenska PEN välkomnar en av de intervjuade uiguriska författarna, Abdushukur Muhammet, som sedan länge är verksam i Sverige, till ett samtal med Elin Alfredsson Malmros, statsvetare och författare till PEN-rapporten "Writing Against Oblivion: Culture and Language as Means of Oppression and Resilience in the Xinjiang region" samt sinologen Fredrik Fällman från Göteborgs universitet. Moderator är Marit Kapla, journalist, författare och styrelseledamot i Svenska PEN.

Vor einem Jahr bewiesen die „China Cables“ die Existenz der Zwangslager in Ostturkestan (chin. Xinjiang). Seither häufen sich alarmierende Berichte über die Situation der Minderheiten in Ostturkestan: Mindestens eine Million Uigurinnen und Uiguren werden in Lagern festgehalten und Zehntausende zur Arbeit in Zuliefer-Fabriken von internationalen Markenfirmen gezwungen. So ergab eine Recherche der New York Times, dass zahlreiche chinesische Schutzmasken-Hersteller auf Zwangsarbeit setzen.

Die Kasachin Sayragul Sauytbay war Gefangene eines chinesischen Zwangslagers in Ostturkestan. Die ehemalige Staatsbeamtin wurde Zeugin, wie unschuldige Menschen misshandelt, gefoltert und zur Arbeit gezwungen wurden. Seit ihrer Flucht erachtet sie es als ihre Aufgabe, aus ihrer Insider-Perspektive über die Zwangslager zu berichten, zum Beispiel im Buch „Die Kronzeugin“, das sie gemeinsam mit der Journalistin Alexandra Cavelius verfasst hat. Am Online-Podium mit der GfbV spricht Sayragul Sauytbay über die Menschenrechtslage in Ostturkestan, die Verantwortung der Schweiz sowie über die Handlungsmöglichkeiten der internationalen Staatengemeinschaft.

Forced Labour Fashion: How the Uyghur Crisis Taints our Clothes.

To mark the International Day for the Abolition of Slavery, we hosted a special panel discussion on one of the most serious modern slavery crises of our time. Freedom United, Premiered Dec 3, 2020. <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=QGSEbweWqTk>

A special panel discussion on one of the most serious modern slavery crises of our time will mark the International Day for the Abolition of Slavery on December 2.

Hundreds of thousands of Uyghurs and other Turkic and Muslim people in China are trapped in a system of 're-education' as part of the biggest detention of an ethno-religious group since World War II.

The event will focus in particular on how this crisis links to the global fashion industry, which sources vast quantities of yarn and cotton produced through what are essentially state-sponsored forced labor programs.

Panelists include: Jewher Ilham, Program Associate at the Worker Rights Consortium and daughter of imprisoned Uyghur scholar Ilham Tohti; Rahima Mahmut, Uyghur activist and UK project director at our partner organization World Uyghur Congress; Raphaël Glucksmann MEP, journalist, director, and a prominent voice on the Uyghur crisis in the European Parliament; Chloe Cranston, Business and Human Rights Manager at our partner organization Anti-Slavery International.

The Persecution of the Uighur Muslims in China – Where to Go From Now?

by The Coalition for Genocide Response. The All Party Parliamentary Group on Uyghurs and the Coalition for Genocide Response would like to invite you to a webinar:

"The Persecution of the Uighur Muslims in China – Where to Go From Now?"

16 November 2020 at 4 PM (GMT). Zoom Webinar (Side event to the Ministerial on FoRB)

Over the recent months, more and more evidence has been coming to light about the atrocities against the Uyghur Muslims in China, including of arbitrary detention of over 1 million Uyghur Muslims, killings in detention, torture and inhuman treatment of detainees, the forced separation of children from their parents, forced sterilisation, forced labour, forced organ harvesting, enforced disappearances and much more. Considering the powerful position of China in the world order, including at the UN Security Council, it is unlikely that decisive actions will follow to address the crimes. However, this does not mean that there are no options. The speakers will consider what are the options that can and should be taken in the case.

Speakers include:

Alistair Carmichael MP, Member of the UK House of Commons, Co-chair of the APPG on Uyghurs
Lord Alton of Liverpool, Peer at the UK House of Lords, Patron of the Coalition for Genocide

Response

Sir Geoffrey Nice QC, British barrister

Nury A. Turkel, US-educated Uyghur-American lawyer, USCIRF Commissioner

Modern technologies enable new ways of monitoring and tracking minorities – a whole new level of mass surveillance. The extent of this is probably nowhere more evident than in the Chinese province of Xinjiang. Massive amounts of private data are collected from facial recognition cameras and mobile apps to target Muslim Uighurs. Already in 2017, BuzzFeed News reporter Megha Rajagopalan wrote an article on how the Chinese government turned Xinjiang into a police state. Two years later the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists (ICIJ), with Bethany Allen-Ebrahimian as lead reporter, published the “China Cables”. They confirmed what was long suspected: the systematic surveillance of the Muslim Uighurs. Reportedly hundreds of thousands of Uighurs have been held in camps. Outside of the camps there seems hardly any chance of walking around unobserved.

How does China use big data and algorithms to arrest Uighurs? What influence does facial recognition have on systematical monitoring? To what extent is the rest of China under surveillance? Where are we heading with the rise of mass surveillance worldwide? Join the public webcast on these issues with Bethany Allen-Ebrahimian and Megha Rajagopalan. Asia Society Members can additionally register for the 30 minutes (virtual) Talk at the Library directly afterwards to ask further questions.

Bethany Allen-Ebrahimian was the lead reporter for ICIJ's China Cables. She is an investigative journalist covering China for Axios from Washington, D.C. Bethany previously worked as a reporter and editor for the Foreign Policy magazine, was a national security reporter for The Daily Beast, and has also published with The Washington Post, The Atlantic, and The New York Times. She has published numerous ground-breaking investigations regarding China's covert funding and political influence in the United States and elsewhere in the world.

Megha Rajagopalan - is an international correspondent (formerly China bureau chief) with BuzzFeed News and Asia 21 Young Leader. She has reported extensively on digital privacy, security, and growing abuses in Xinjiang and reported from China for six years. Most recently Megha has been interviewing over 30 people who were held in camps and prisons in Xinjiang. She was a 2011 Fulbright fellow in Beijing, where she conducted research on the Chinese news media and was previously a research fellow at the New America Foundation in Washington, D.C.

An event in the #Uyghur language with prominent Uyghur activists including @UyghurCongress President @Dolkun_Isa will discuss the July 5, 2009 anniversary.

China's Crimes Against Humanity and the Enslavement of the Uyghur People

Holocaust Memorial & Tolerance Center of Nassau County

Tuesday, June 16, 2020, 1:00 - 2:00 PM

HMTC presented a virtual program, "China's Crimes Against Humanity and the Enslavement of the Uyghur People," on June 16, 2020. The speakers were: Dr. Adrian Zenz, a Senior Fellow in China Studies at the Victims of Communism Memorial Foundation, and Rushan Abbas, the founder and executive director of Campaign for Uyghurs, who outlined the ethnic cleansing of the Uyghur Muslim minority population currently taking place in western China, which the U.S. Congressional-Executive Commission on China has labeled as "Crimes against Humanity." The program was co-sponsored by the Islamic Center of Long Island, the Nassau County Office of Asian American Affairs and The Social Justice Committee of the Unitarian Universalist Congregation at Shelter Rock.

About the Speakers

Elise Anderson, Sr. Program Officer for Research & Advocacy, Uyghur Human Rights Project

Dr. Elise Anderson earned dual PhD degrees in Central Eurasian Studies and Ethnomusicology from Indiana University-Bloomington in August 2019. Her doctoral research, which is based on years of primary research in the Uyghur region, focuses on the relationships between Uyghur music and politics. She is fluent in Uyghur and proficient in Mandarin. In 2019, she served as Liu Xiaobo Fellow at the Congressional-Executive Commission on China, a U.S. federal commission tasked with monitoring the status of human rights and the rule of law in the PRC.

Dru Gladney, Professor & Chair of Anthropology, Pomona College

Dru Gladney specializes in the peoples, cultures and politics along the ancient and modern Silk Road—in particular, issues of globalization and transnationalism in China and its close neighbors. Over the last few years, he has engaged in a large comparative survey of nomadic families in Western China, bolstered by in-depth fieldwork with nomadic Kazakhs in the Altai Mountains bordering China and Mongolia.

Nurnisa Kurban, Board Member, Uyghur LA

Dr. Nurnisa Kurban is an Uyghur American and Board member of Uyghur LA. She is also an assistant principal at Helen Bernstein High School. Her goal is to educate people about Uyghurs and the human rights violations and atrocities that they are facing in China.

"The idea of East Turkistan: a global history in Chinese and Uyghur contexts."

Talk description: When Chinese officials attempt to justify the internment of roughly one million Uyghurs in re-education camps, they often mention the "East Turkistan movement," which they characterize as an organized terrorist project. Mere mention of "East Turkistan" within the Uyghur home region puts the speaker at risk of enforced disappearance. At the same time, influential Uyghur nationalist groups abroad take umbrage at the use of any term other than "East Turkistan" to describe the Chinese administrative unit of Xinjiang, often claiming that the name is an ancient indigenous term. Both of these claims obscure the history of the idea of East Turkistan, which emerged from a conversation that stretched across Central Asia, the Middle East, Europe, and Russia, and unfolded over the course of eight centuries, only taking its current form in the 1930s. This talk shows that the term East Turkistan originated in Enlightenment-era Europe, but also reflected 11th-century political realities in Turkic Central Asia. The talk then outlines the ramifications of the East Turkistan idea in Uyghur and Chinese contexts, in an attempt to clarify political and social forces driving the atrocities in Xinjiang/East Turkistan today.

Panel

Nury Turkel is a U.S.-based Uyghur activist and attorney. Turkel was born in a re-education camp in Kashgar at the height of the Cultural Revolution. He is the former president of the Uyghur American Association, as well as the former executive director of the Uyghur Human Rights Project.

Prof Dibyesh Anand is the Head of the School of Social Sciences at the University of Westminster and Chairperson for Westminster BME Staff Network. He is the author of monographs "Geopolitical Exotica: Tibet in Western Imagination" and "Hindu Nationalism in India and the Politics of Fear" and has spoken about and published on varied topics including Tibet, China-India border dispute, Hindu nationalism and Islamophobia in India, majority-minority relations in Asia, human rights, and the colonial occupation in Kashmir.

Rahima Mahmut is an Uyghur singer, human rights activist, and award-winning translator of Soyungul Chanisheff's poignant prison memoir "The Land Drenched in Tears". Her latest work includes consultant and translator for the ITV documentary "Undercover: Inside China's Digital Gulag"; and translator for the latest BBC documentary "China: A New World Order". She is the UK Project Director for the World Uyghur Congress.

David Ball is founder of the Uyghur Solidarity Campaign and organiser of the monthly Uyghur solidarity protests outside the Chinese Embassy. An active socialist, trade unionist and Labour Party member, he wrote the emergency motion (proposed by Finchley and Golders Green CLP) that was carried overwhelmingly at Labour Party conference 2019 and committed Labour to active, proud and unequivocal support of the Uyghur people's human rights, calling for the Chinese State to end the oppression. He organised the petition campaign for this policy commitment to be carried through into Labour's election manifesto.

Jack Baker is a Sixth Form student, founding member of the One World Movement and co-organiser of the January 2020 "Stand with Hong Kongers, Uyghurs and Tibetans" rally.

Uyghur Poetry in a Time of Crisis

The Yale Department of Comparative Literature

When: Monday, February 10, 2020, 4:00 PM

Where: Linsly-Chittenden Hall 101, 63 High Street, New Haven, CT 06511

Speaker/Performer: Tahir Hamut Izgil

Description: Uyghur poetry emerged from a millennium of Turkic literature in the eastern Islamic world, while Uyghur poetic modernism developed over the last century in dialogue with Russian, Western, and Chinese literature. In recent years, due to unprecedented repression by the Chinese government, many Uyghur poets have disappeared into internment camps while others have fled into exile. One of the leading exile poets, Tahir Hamut, will visit Yale to recite his own work and that of his contemporaries. Joshua Freeman (Princeton Society of Fellows) will provide translation into English. Following the reading, Izgil and Freeman will discuss Uyghur poetry and translation practices with Yale Comparative Literature faculty Sam Hodgkin and Peter Cole.

Sponsor: This event is co-sponsored by Near Eastern Languages and Civilizations; East Asian Languages and Literatures; and at the MacMillan Center, the Council on Middle East Studies; the Council on East Asian Studies; the Translation Initiative; and Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies.

Panopticism with Chinese Characteristics-Expanding Prison. Panel discussion on the human rights violations by the Chinese Communist Party and how they affect the world.

<https://www.eventbrite.com/e/panel-discussion-panopticism-with-chinese-characteristics-expanding-prison-registration-80825712883?aff=ebdssbdestsearch>

About this Event: Here be violent, tumultuous times. As we enter the third decade of the “Chinese Century,” one must recall the comment made by the great poet: “Neo-China arrives from the future.” The perceived permanency of the People’s Republic of China is maintained by an extensive matrix of digital surveillance systems, optimized for maximum social control. From the great mountains of Tibet to the scorching deserts of East Turkestan to the megalopolises of the Central Plain, the Chinese Communist Party has built the most advanced panopticon in human history. But do not be dispirited by the vision of this dystopian imaginary; for underneath the spectacle of control lies the prospect of a radical reimagining of a new emancipating future. In this discussion, we ask: what is the current state of Chinese digital authoritarianism? What lessons can we draw from past resistances against China? What tactics can we employ against the Chinese Panopticon?

Shining a light on the Uyghur crisis

Wednesday, July 17, 2019, 6:00 - 8:00 pm, United States Institute of Peace, 2301 Constitution Avenue, NW -- Entrance on 23rd Street. Washington, DC 20037. RSVP

here: <https://www.eventbrite.com/e/irf-roundtable-ministerial-reception-registration-65253956340>

Please join other Ministerial participants for an evening reception open to all. The reception is an opportunity for survivors, officials, scholars, religious and secular leaders, advocates, activists and press to come together at the conclusion of the formal civil society meetings of the 2019 Ministerial to Advance Religious Freedom. A brief speakers program will shine a light on the Uyghur crisis of ethno-religious cultural extermination, combining an asphyxiating techno-surveillance police state with a massive archipelago of secret detention camps holding 1-3 million Uyghurs and other Turkic Muslims since early 2017.

Confirmed Speakers:

Sam Brownback, Ambassador-at-Large for International Religious Freedom

Anwar Khan, President, Islamic Relief USA

Greg Mitchell, Co-Chair, IRF Roundtable

Lisa Curtis, Senior Director for Central and South Asia, National Security Council, White House

USCIRF Vice Chair Nadine Maenza

Tom Gallagher, CEO and Publisher, Religion News Service

Dolkun Isa, President, World Uyghur Congress

Omer Kanat, Director, Uyghur Human Rights Project

Master of Ceremonies: Nury Turkel, Board Chair, Uyghur Human Rights Project

The Mass Destruction and Desecration of Uyghur Mosques by China.

Opening Remarks: Prof. Tenzin Dorjee, Chair, U.S. Commission on International Religious Freedom

Speakers: Bahram Sintash, Founder, Uyghurism.com; Omer Kanat, Director, Uyghur Human Rights Project; Benedict Rogers, East Asia Team Leader, CSW. Co-moderators:

Louisa Greve, Director of External Affairs, Uyghur Human Rights Project. Fernando Burges, U.S. Representative, UNPO. Tue, July 16, 2019, 4:00 PM – 5:00 PM EDT. Room 309, Marvin Center, George Washington University, 800 21st Street, NW, Washington, DC 20052, USA

Thousands of mosques in the Uyghur homeland have been bulldozed since 2016. Satellite photos and witness testimony paint a devastating picture of the Chinese government's assault on Uyghur places of worship in East Turkestan. Please join us for a presentation of stark evidence of the Chinese government's systematic campaign to wipe out not only Uyghur religious devotion, teaching and education but also Uyghur community life and Uyghur identity itself. The Chinese government's bulldozing, closure, and other forms of desecration of sacred spaces proceeds in concert with the wholesale imprisonment of Imams, religious scholars and their families, as well as widely documented mass atrocities against millions of Uyghur men, women and children throughout East Turkestan.

Today i gave the lecture on uyghur issues at Summer School of Global minority right in National University of Public Service in Budapest which are organized by Nations University of Public Service, Tom Lantos Institute and Middlesex University.

"It has been over 70 years since our namesake, Monsieur René Cassin, said 'never again' to the horrors of the Holocaust, and Raphael Lemkin coined the word 'genocide' to prevent future mass killings. But genocide keeps happening, and there are worrying signs that it may happen again in the far West of China."

Over the past five years, a growing number of Xinjiang Uighurs have been sent to re-education camps by the Chinese government, most without trials or release dates. Estimates have reached as high as one million detainees. The Chinese government has framed these camps as schools that attack terrorist beliefs and give Uighurs the work and life skills necessary to thrive in a modern economy. It has received very little pressure or public condemnation from its Central Asian neighbors, from Muslim countries, or from its trading partners in the developed world. This human rights crisis raises questions central to the role and practice of diplomacy. What justification is there for bringing foreign diplomatic pressure to bear on issues that a country defines as central to its identity and existence? What do we know about the success of different types of advocacy, whether through diplomatic channels, pressure from international organizations, or NGO-led protest? To what extent does the crisis in Xinjiang affect the stability of Central Asia, or the fate of separatist movements in Tibet, Hong Kong, and Taiwan?

Says that: "This is the twenty-first century rope that capitalists will sell to hang themselves. And it ought to be a lesson to companies like Google, which is performing cutting-edge AI research in China and contemplating even greater investment in that country. ... Additionally, we must stop our own companies from helping China build this new Evil Empire. Companies like Thermo Fisher Scientific, which sells the DNA sequencers China uses to build genetic dossiers on its ethnic minorities."

Understanding the Uighur Situation in Xinjiang. The Henry Jackson Society [London], Jan 10, 2019 House of Lords, Committee Room 4, Westminster, London SW1A 0AA, United Kingdom
We invite you to join the panel discussion about the Uighur situation in Xinjiang
About this Event - In August of last year, human rights experts in the UN called on the People's Republic of China (PRC) to release the nearly one-million Uighurs that have been interned in re-education camps, under the pretext of countering terrorism. The historic parallels of detentions based on religious identity in the 20th century are obvious. And yet, rather than attempt to ameliorate the damage to its reputation by stopping or slowing the arrests, Beijing has continued to expand the facilities for more prisoners and attempted to re-brand them as “labour training” camps. The province of Xinjiang – far in the West of China – has a significance for all of us. This approach toward detentions and extra-legal measures could reflect the Chinese approach toward power more generally, and what kind of order Beijing may seek to build. China’s utilization of technology and media highlights the dangers of authoritarian states using both to create a surveillance society – an Orwellian techno-nightmare as it were. Finally, while some Western media has reported on the Uighur situation, far fewer global media outlets than would be expected to comment have done so – particularly in the Muslim world – leading to fears that the PRC’s propensity to link economic ties to political quiescence may be having a chilling effect on discussion of human rights issues. - The Henry Jackson Society is pleased to invite you to join the panel discussion in which Benedict Rogers, Rosie Blau, Dr. Enver Tohti and Rahima Mahmut will discuss the Uighur situation in Xinjiang. SPEAKERS: Benedict Rogers, Christian Solidarity Worldwide; Rosie Blau, The Economist; Dr. Enver Tohti, Exiled Medical Doctor from Urumqi; Rahima Mahmut, Singer, translator and human rights activist. CHAIR: Lord Hannay of Chiswick. <https://www.eventbrite.co.uk/e/understanding-the-uyghur-situation-in-xinjiang-tickets-53865682707>

--In the Chinese region of Xinjiang, tens of thousands of ethnic Uyghurs and other Muslim minorities have been detained inside enormous extrajudicial 're-education camps'. China claims the region faces a serious threat from Islamist militants and separatists, stirring up tensions between the mostly Muslim Uyghur minority and the ethnic Han majority. After months of denial, the Chinese government now claims these camps are benign vocational training centers, but many outside observers assert that they are little more than prisons where detainees are subjected to political and cultural indoctrination without legal recourse. As more allegations come to light about the treatment of Uyghurs and other ethnic minorities, China faces mounting pressure from international human rights groups, governments, and academics to provide access to these camps and put an end to any coercive and illegal practices. Speaking at this important panel on Uyghurs in China and how the world should react are: Nury A Turkel (Uyghur Human Rights Project); James Leibold (Associate Professor, Politics and Philosophy, La Trobe University); Louisa Greve (Uyghur Human Rights Project); Euan Graham (Executive Director, La Trobe Asia) (chair).

China's Xinjiang detentions. 05 Dec 2018, Wednesday. START: 06:00 PM - END: 7:00 PM
WHERE: Lowy Institute, Level 3, 1 Bligh Street, Sydney NSW, Australia 2000
<https://myaccount.lowyinstitute.org/events/chinas-xinjiang-detentions>
--China is holding hundreds of thousands of Uighurs in detention camps in Xinjiang, western China, in what appears to be a systematic targeting of an entire ethnic and religious group in the name of national security. After first denying their existence, China now claims the camps are vocational centres designed to combat extremism. The Uyghur community, however, tell a different story – of detainees being forced to denounce their Islamic faith and swear allegiance to the communist party. The Lowy Institute's Richard McGregor will host a discussion of the situation in Xinjiang, and how the scale of the camps was uncovered. The panel will feature Nury Turkel, the Washington-based chair of the Uyghur Human Rights Project, Dr Mamtimin Ala, President of the Australian Uyghur Association, David Brophy, of Sydney University, and Lowy Institute researcher Kelsey Munro.

--This talk will focus on the central role that natural resources played in shaping Chinese state power and authority in China's far western province of Xinjiang. Based on my recently published book, Natural Resources and the New Frontier: Constructing Modern China's Borderlands, my talk will highlight the often overlooked role played by an assortment of Chinese and Soviet state agents, as well as a wide variety of non-state actors, each of whom seeking to stake their own claim to Xinjiang's lucrative natural resources. Their combined efforts to gain access to the region's gold, wool, petroleum, and rare minerals served to construct the foundations of Chinese state power and authority in this distant border region.

UK Parliamentary Roundtable on Xinjiang. 3 July 2018

<https://www.rights-practice.org/news/parliamentary-roundtable-on-xinjiang>

On 3 July 2018, The Rights Practice helped to organise a Parliamentary Round-table on increased repression and forced assimilation in Xinjiang, China. The All-Party Parliamentary Human Rights Group invited parliamentarians to the round-table, in which Nicola Macbean, Executive Director of The Rights Practice, gave opening remarks on the gross human rights violations taking place in Xinjiang and the implications this has for everyone involved in China.

Dr. Rachel Harris, SOAS, University of London, spoke on the Chinese government policy towards Uyghur culture in Xinjiang, one of the most heavily policed areas in the world, and described the widening of the anti-extremism campaign. Dr. Adrian Zenz, European School of Culture and Theology, Germany, outlined the evidence of a large scale and sophisticated political re-education network designed to detain people for long periods of time and which the Chinese government officially denies. This was followed by a moving personal testimony given by Rahima Mahmut, Uyghur singer and human rights activist, about the violations suffered by the Uyghur community, they fear mass detention and ill treatment. The exiled Uyghur community have been unable to contact family members for over a year.

The roundtable was chaired by Catherine West MP and attended by other parliamentarians, NGOs, academics and members of the Uyghur community. It ended with a discussion about how the international community should respond and the action that needs to take place.

Chinese Sanctions Enforcement Just Got Even Harder. A new campaign is blurring the lines of what's implicated in forced labor. By Aaron Glasserman, an academy scholar at the Harvard Academy for International and Area Studies and a 2023-24 China fellow at the Wilson Center. AUGUST 15, 2023, 12:35 PM. <https://foreignpolicy.com/2023/08/15/china-sanctions-enforcement-uyghur-xinjiang-forced-labor-trade-export-import/>
Within China, it can be difficult and even dangerous for businesses to try to determine where products and parts come from and whether their supply chains are linked to forced labor or any sanctioned entities. Chinese government raids on the offices of multiple international consulting firms in recent months and a sweeping new anti-espionage law have heightened foreign companies' fears about carrying out due diligence research.
At the same time, even the imports that are clearly linked to sanctioned entities can enter the United States undetected by passing through third countries or in packages valued below the de minimis threshold for reporting and inspection. A new state-led campaign in China is poised to make enforcement of these sanctions even more difficult.

A 71-year-old Uyghur grandpa was sentenced to 14 years in prison.

What crime did he commit? In 1964, when he was 12, he studied the Quran for 4 months. After half a century later, the Chinese Communist Party sentenced this old Muslim man for 14 years.

"... the UYSİD (the Uyghur Industrialists and Entrepreneurs Association), founded in 2010 with the ostensible aim of fostering Uyghur business exchange between Turkey and China. However, its activities extend beyond business, encompassing the realms of politics, civil society, and cultural exchange. Sabir Boghda, a PRC-born Uyghur and the chairman of UYSİD, has played a pivotal role in promoting CCP's interests in Turkey. Boghda's involvement in CCP's united front work, including prestigious appointments and organizing events, highlights his significance in the party's agenda. In 2015, he attended the annual session of the Chinese People's Political Consultative Conference in Beijing as an overseas delegate. He has been appointed by CCP in various united front organisations as an associate/member. This includes the China Overseas Exchange Association (COEA), the All-China Federation of Returned Overseas Chinese (ACFROC) and China Overseas Friendship Association (COFA). Boghda's role as a conduit for CCP propaganda aimed at Turkish audiences is particularly concerning. Through media engagements, such as interviews and publications, he has propagated the narrative of Xinjiang's economic potential and Turko-Chinese cooperation. Notably, these narratives conveniently omit the sensitive issue of the Uyghur plight in Xinjiang and the negative impact on Turko-Chinese relations. Boghda's affiliations with media outlets and his close ties with the PRC Consulate in Istanbul raise questions about the authenticity and objectivity of his statements..."

Ciudad Juárez acquires video surveillance equipment from Chinese companies banned by the U.S. By Elizabeth Rosales. Empower, 06/07/2023. Translated from Spanish.
<https://empowerllc.net/en/2023/06/07/surveillance-border-dahua-hikvision/>
While the United States bans the acquisition of Chinese technology for mass video surveillance due to national security risks, these devices are being used on the Mexican side of the border. Cities in four northern Mexican states have facial recognition equipment with capabilities for mass surveillance and at least one, Ciudad Juárez, purchased Dahua and Hikvision devices in 2022. These brands were banned by the U.S. government in 2021 due to an alleged espionage threat that the Chinese government has denied for years. But these Chinese companies are also accused by governments and international organizations of contributing to the repression of ethnic and religious minorities in Xinjiang, where there are cases of torture, sexual abuse, and forcer labor, and where both brands have had operational links to the region. As a result of the United States-Mexico-Canada Agreement (USMCA), the three North American countries assumed commitments to prohibit the importation of products made with forced labor, but this has not prevented Mexico from acquiring them.

I questioned in the Turkish Parliament today "Why are the following Uyghur leaders are barred entering Türkiye? While no other country in the world got such practice?"

The congressional candidate, Greg Hughes, spoke at a conference alongside CCP officials in 2019. A candidate running in Utah's upcoming special congressional election has urged a more cooperative relationship with China, at one point traveling to Shanghai to participate in a conference headlined by officials from Chinese Communist Party bureaus tasked with influencing foreign figures. He has also blamed U.S. military and intelligence efforts for demonizing China.

Leaving Al-Aqsa behind during his pilgrimage to Beijing, Palestinian leader Abbas declared that the Uyghur Genocide had no connection with human rights issues. Further legitimizing the Genocide against Uyghur Muslims, he claimed that China is combating terrorism and radicalization.

We acknowledge that the Palestinian government supports the Uyghur Genocide. However, as a son of a concentration camp survivor, I have not heard of any Palestinian organization rejecting the assertion of Mahmoud Abbas. As a prominent Uyghur human rights figure and former president of the Uyghur American Association, I express gratitude towards Netanyahu for his significant achievements against Palestinian terrorists and radicals. Should I do so, almost 100% of Uyghur leaders worldwide would voice their objections against me. This is where we differ, dear Palestinians!

A Uyghur student who was detained in Xinjiang in December after posting a video on WeChat of the "white paper" protests has been convicted of "advocating extremism". Kamile Wayit, 19, was detained in Atush on 12 December the day after returning home from university in Henan, a province in central China. She has not been heard from since, but last week a spokesperson from China's ministry for foreign affairs confirmed to the Economist magazine that Wayit had been sentenced on 25 March "for the crime of advocating extremism". The spokesperson did not confirm the length of the sentence but it can be up to five years.

--In this second episode of a special two-part series, The Economist's senior China correspondent, Alice Su, investigates China's repressions of Uyghurs at home and abroad.

From 2017 to 2019 China locked up more than a million Uyghurs and other ethnic minorities in "re-education camps" in Xinjiang. During that time most Uyghurs living overseas were cut off from everyone they knew in China. Recently the Chinese Communist Party has closed many of the camps. It wants the world to forget what happened in Xinjiang and what is still happening today. It wants Uyghurs inside and outside China to keep quiet.

Alice Su explores how the Chinese state is able to control Uyghurs overseas through their families. She speaks to Nigara and Kewser, two Uyghurs who left China, about making the biggest decision of their lives; family or freedom?

The bipartisan law, the Uyghur Human Rights Policy Act, was a crucial first step to address the egregious acts of genocide committed in Xinjiang by the Chinese Communist Party (CCP). Congress then passed the bipartisan Uyghur Forced Labor Prevention Act to ensure that goods tainted with slave labor would not be able to enter the United States. Unfortunately, Beijing has continued its genocide against Uyghurs and other ethnic groups in the Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region (XUAR). Congress should further expand on existing sanctions and visa prohibitions against Chinese government officials to hold them accountable for their crimes, such as forced abortions or sterilizations.

U.S. Senators Marco Rubio (R-FL) and Jeff Merkley (D-OR) introduced the Uyghur Genocide Accountability and Sanctions Act \(UGASA\). In addition to expanding sanctions and travel restrictions on Chinese officials responsible for the ongoing genocide of Uyghurs, the bill would also authorize the U.S. State Department and the U.S. Agency for International Development to provide assistance to victims of genocide, allow them to broadcast initiatives to counter Chinese propaganda regarding the CCP's ongoing acts of genocide, promote the preservation of cultural and linguistic heritages repressed by the CCP, mandate disclosures to the Securities and Exchange Commission of entities directly or indirectly engaged in activity supporting the CCP's genocide in the XUAR, and fund organizations documenting human rights abuses in Xinjiang.

Thread about Roger Waters, Pink Floyd artist, now a big defender of Putin and China:

In 2022, in an interview by RT, he reminded the US of the "one China" policy, suggesting that Taiwan is actually part of China. He also called the ongoing Uyghur genocide in Xinjian, China, "absolute nonsense", telling the interviewer to "go away and read about it."

The complaint names the French subsidiary of Japanese clothing giant Uniqlo and its parent company Fast Retailing, as well as Inditex, the owner of the Zara brand, French fashion house SMCP and US-based footwear manufacturer Skechers.

Interesting development this week: @jinko_solar has sold its factory in the Uyghur Region.

Pleased to see a company exiting the Uyghur Region, where 1m people have been put into internment camps & where 3m are subjected to state-imposed forced labor.

Justin Trudeau says Canadian critical minerals are more expensive than China's because 'we don't use slave labour'. Speaking in New York, Trudeau said modern trade agreements don't need to "single out or punish bad actors" like China but should enshrine environmental and labour standards that would exclude authoritarian regimes. Trudeau suggests China uses slave labour in lithium production. China is the world's largest producer of the lithium used in cell phones and electric vehicles. Doina Chiacu, Reuters, Apr 28, 2023. <https://driving.ca/auto-news/industry/trudeau-china-slave-labour-lithium-production>

"If we're honest ... the lithium produced in Canada is going to be more expensive, because we don't use slave labour," Trudeau said. "Because we put forward environmental responsibility as something we actually expect to be abided by. Because we count on working with, in partnership with indigenous peoples, paying their living wages, expecting security and safety standards."

China: 'Vocational training' programmes for Tibetans carry risk of forced labour. So-called "labour transfer" and "vocational training" programmes in the Tibet Autonomous Region of China, threaten Tibetan cultural identity and could lead to forced labour conditions, UN independent human rights experts warned on Thursday. 27 April 2023.
<https://news.un.org/en/story/2023/04/1136102>

"Hundreds of thousands of Tibetans have reportedly been 'transferred' from their traditional rural lives to low-skilled and low-paid employment since 2015, through a programme described as voluntary, but in practice their participation has reportedly been coerced," they said in a statement.

Uyghur Forced Labor Prevention Act (UFLPA) which prohibits importation of any goods, wares, articles, and merchandise mined, produced, or manufactured wholly or in part in Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region of the People's Republic of China.

The EU has proposed a Regulation that prohibits economic operators from making available on the EU market products that are made with forced Labour outside or inside the EU.

On the 23 of February 2022 European Commission made a directive titled: 'Corporate Sustainability due diligence' which aims to foster sustainable and responsible corporate behavior that anchors on human rights and the environment.

Germany has enacted the Supply Chain Act: With effect from January 2023, the Act requires companies to comply with due diligence obligations and ensure that there are no abuse of rights in their supply chains.

Other countries that have put in place these laws include the UK(Modern Slavery Act 2015); Australia(Modern Slavery Act 2018); South Africa(Basic Conditions of Employment Act, The Prevention and Combating of Trafficking in Persons Act).

Ending forced Labour is high on the Agenda of many states.

SDG 8 focuses on Decent work for all.

Vietnam's garment and textile industry has been a vital driver of the country's economy. While economic integration with the global economy and trade liberalization have created lucrative opportunities for the industry, they have also raised challenges for businesses such as ensuring compliance with fundamental labor rights, including eliminating forced labor. The article examines the impact of the US Uyghur Forced Labor Prevention Act on the garment and textile industry in Vietnam.

"The Xinjiang Police Files is an investigation by a team of independent outlets that sheds light on the Chinese State's alleged detention of over a million Uyghurs in internment camps. The investigation, involving journalists from ten European media houses, revealed previously unknown details, including confidential instructions from the authorities and speeches by Chinese officials. The leak contained never-before-seen photos of the inside of the camps and evidence of mass internment and arbitrary detention. The investigation triggered a worldwide response, with several foreign ministers calling for transparent investigations into China's human rights violations. Ahead of the 2023 IJ4EU Impact Award Ceremony, we spoke to Christoph Giesen, Der Spiegel Correspondent in Beijing, about The Xinjiang Police Files."

One important way to respond to Xi Jinping's campaign of forced sterilizations, slave labor, family separation, internment, and omni-surveillance of the Uighur people is to increase support for Radio Free Asia, which continues in the vital mission of Radio Free Europe after the Holocaust.

Influencers are the new face of Chinese propaganda. Hidden amongst the vlogs about puppies and makeup, they clandestinely allow Beijing to whitewash its crimes against humanity. Despite being blocked in China, YouTube has become a key ideological battleground for the Chinese Communist Party. And they have created a whole new ecosystem of influencers who tow the party line. ... Daria Impiombato, a Researcher at The Australian Strategic Policy Institute, and her team, watched over 1,700 of these videos. Soon enough, they found a worrying grey area in which these influencers operate. Through working for 'multi-channel networks' or MCNs. These "influencer agencies", with state-approved VPN networks, allow them to circumnavigate the all-powerful "Great Firewall of China".

China must release Uyghurs, end grave violations, rules UN committee

In landmark ruling, the UN's committee on racial discrimination has strongly condemned China's persecution of Uyghurs, and decided, for the first time ever, to refer the situation to the UN Secretary-General's Special Adviser on the Responsibility to Protect. Reiterating the most serious concerns expressed by the UN's Human Rights Office and UN independent experts, the committee reminded governments of their obligation to put an end to the most serious human rights violations wherever they occur, in particular racial discrimination. UN rights chief cites 'communication' about issues in China. The new U.N. human rights chief says his office has opened "channels of communication" to help follow up on concerns about the rights of minorities in China, including Uyghur Muslims and Tibetans. High Commissioner for Human Rights Volker Türk, in an address highly anticipated by rights advocates, didn't detail how his office plans to follow up on a critical report on China's western Xinjiang region published in August by his predecessor, Michelle Bachelet. That report cited possible "crimes against humanity" against Uyghurs and others in Xinjiang. Türk noted that the U.N. rights office "documented grave concerns" like arbitrary detentions and family separations in China, and called for "concrete follow-up."

The tea leaf prince: Chinese Communist Party networks in French politics. French MP Buon Tan's links to the CCP's united front system and International Liaison Department.

René Bigey, Alex Joske. Sinopsis, 2.3.2022. <https://sinopsis.cz/en/fr0/>

Abstract

French parliamentarians' links to the Chinese Communist Party's overseas influence agencies have escaped scrutiny. Representing President Macron's party, Buon Tan holds posts in key parliamentary commissions related to China while taking CCP-aligned positions on issues such as Huawei and the genocide against Uyghurs. At the same time, Tan has been a member of several organisations controlled by the CCP's united front system and maintains contacts with the Party's International Liaison Department. Associations with these entities do not demonstrate wrongdoing, but their role in the CCP's efforts to covertly influence foreign politicians is well documented. As this paper represents the first detailed case study of such activities in France, it is likely that more of the CCP's reach into French politics remains to be uncovered.

In the 1990s Gulchehra Hoja was a popular face on Chinese TV, the star of the country's first Uyghur-language kids' show. But as the Chinese authorities began a crackdown on Uyghur culture, Gulchehra had to toe the party line. She felt her TV show was being used to promote government policies that were making life hard for her people. Gulchehra found a way out – moving to the US and becoming a journalist. But it would mean saying goodbye to her family, possibly forever. And it would make her an enemy of the Chinese state. --Gulchehra has written a book called A Stone is Most Precious Where it Belongs.

Pakistan threatens to send Uyghur refugee families back to China. UN officials in Pakistan had stopped renewing refugee cards – until Geneva stepped in. By Erkin for RFA Uyghur. 2023.02.23. <https://www.rfa.org/english/news/uyghur/refugees-pakistan-02232023195022.html>

"Pakistan today is home to about 3,000 Uyghurs, who first began seeking asylum in the country when Chinese troops occupied Xinjiang in 1949. The Chinese government allowed some Uyghurs with relatives in Pakistan to immigrate to the country in 1963 and 1974. In the 1980s, under China's opening-up policy, Pakistan became a hub for Uyghur Muslims making a pilgrimage to Mecca in Saudi Arabia. Some Uyghurs settled there and set up businesses, others got an education, and some Uyghur women married Pakistani men. --But after the 9/11 terrorist attacks in the United States in 2001, China and Pakistan strengthened their cooperation, and Pakistan repatriated numerous Uyghurs to China."

The Ministry of Defense suspended Dutch-Uyghur Munirdin Jadikar (35) as an air force commander after he found out China had imprisoned his mother and sister-in-law. He went to the Ministry for help getting his family out of the Chinese concentration camps, but instead, Defense investigated him and concluded that he was "vulnerable to unwanted influence," Follow the Money (FTM) reports. More than four years later, Jadikar's relatives are still in China's "vocational education and training centers," and Defense still hasn't found a new position for him ...

UHRP Commends Muslim Voices Rejecting Clerics' Tour That Whitewashes Atrocities Against Uyghurs. UHRP, January 17, 2023. <https://uhrp.org/statement/uhrp-commends-muslim-voices-rejecting-clerics-tour-that-whitewashes-atrocities-against-uyghurs/>

UHRP commends the statements of the advisor to the Grand Mufti of Bosnia, Husein Kasazovic, who rejected the delegation's statements supporting the Chinese government's treatment of Uyghurs, saying that "the Islamic community in Bosnia and Herzegovina has data that is not in accordance with" the comments of the two Balkan members of the delegation to China.

A January 17 joint statement by 92 organizations and scholars, from more than a dozen countries, condemned the WMCC delegation's visit to East Turkistan. The statement called on Muslim scholars, communities, organizations, and governments to treat the plight of Uyghurs and of Islam in East Turkistan as an "urgent matter for the whole Muslim community and humanity."

Ties with China strained after it refused to allow Turkish ambassador to visit Uyghur region

Türkiye's Foreign Minister has revealed that China has refused to allow the Turkish ambassador to visit the Uyghur region in the north-western Xinjiang province, admitting it has strained ties between the two nations. At an end-of-year press briefing in the capital Ankara on Thursday, Foreign Minister Mevlut Cavusoglu stated that the Chinese government "said that a humanitarian delegation from Türkiye could come and examine [Xinjiang]. It's been five years since [Chinese President] Xi [Jinping] proposed this. Why have you been preventing this delegation from visiting for five years, why don't you cooperate?" --As a result, he said, "Turkish-Chinese ties have suffered over Beijing being disturbed by our attitude on the Turkic Uyghurs issue. They have extradition requests for people who are our citizens, who live in Türkiye all the time. Therefore, we don't grant any such requests." Addressing claims and reports over the years that Ankara has been extraditing Uyghurs from the country back to China, Cavusoglu called those claims "a total lie", stressing that "We defend Turkic Uyghur's rights in the international arena and this disturbs China. But this is a humanitarian issue." He cited the 48-page report that the United Nations' Human Rights Council published on Uyghurs in September, which found that mass detentions in the Xinjiang region over the years were marked by evident documentation of torture, sexual violence, forced labour, and forced abortions and sterilisations. That report "reveals all [human rights] violations. We have to react to it." Instead of allowing the Turkish ambassador in China to freely visit the region where Uyghur Turks live, Cavusoglu stated, Beijing wants him to follow a "program that they provide."

The Uyghur genocide by China was reported by the Uyghur movement's @RushanAbbas in universities, NGOs and research centers in Israel. At the same time, the leaders of the Jewish community said that the Jewish genocide is similar to the genocide experienced by the Uyghur Turks.

It appears that Turkish police are detaining Uyghurs amidst growing fears Uyghurs are being secretly deported. This comes following Türkiye's @TC_icisleri Interior Minister @suleymansoylu's meeting with Chinese Public Security Bureau delegation led by Du Hongwei on 3 Nov 2022.

"Uighur journalists continue to comprise a significant portion of those serving harsh sentences on nebulous charges. Omerjan Hasan, for example, is serving 15 years for publishing an unofficial history of the Xinjiang region. Ilham Weli, Juret Haji, Mentimin Obul, and Mirkamil Ablimit have been held since 2018 on the accusation of being two-faced – a term Chinese authorities frequently use to describe those they see as openly supporting but secretly opposing government policy. Editor Memetjan Abliz Boriyar, also detained since 2018, is accused of approving the release of books that only later were banned by Chinese authorities. Another disturbing trend: A group of students who worked for Ilham Tohti, the jailed-for-life founder of Xinjiang news website Uighurbiz, are among those believed to have completed their sentences – and then moved to so-called “reeducation camps” instead of being released.” [See article for links].

At least 40 UCITS ETFs exposed to Uyghur repression. Nine ETFs marketed as ESG or SRI also allocated to companies flagged by new research. By Jamie Gordon, ETF Stream, 7 Dec 2022.

<https://www.etfstream.com/features/at-least-40-ucits-etfs-exposed-to-uyghur-repression/>

"A minimum of 40 European-listed equity ETFs, including ESG and SRI products from BlackRock, Amundi, BNP Paribas Asset Management, Vanguard and DWS, are exposed to Uyghur imprisonment and forced labour, research from ETF Stream has found.

The findings are based on a report by non-profit Hong Kong Watch (HKW) and Sheffield Hallam University's Helena Kennedy Centre for International Justice, titled Passively Funding Crimes Against Humanity, which noted at least 13 companies across MSCI indices are "involved in constructing the Uyghur camps, actively use Uyghur forced labour obtained through state-sponsored transfer, or source from suppliers that use Uyghur forced labour obtained through state-sponsored transfer".

Co-organizer Esedullah Uygur, a graduate student at the Harvard Divinity School, said the demonstration's goal was to highlight Uyghur identity. "We wanted to emphasize that the people who lost their lives are Uyghurs," Uygur said. "The genocide is still continuing, so we wanted to bring that up, bring our own narration that Uyghurs are struggling, and it didn't start by the Zero Covid policy. It started before that."

... Co-organizer Munawwar Abdulla, a researcher in Harvard's Department of Human Evolutionary Biology, said previous demonstrations against China's Zero Covid policies organized by Chinese people often did not mention Uyghur struggles.

"It was also important to share that some of these victims who died in the fire actually had relatives in the concentration camps, which of course, none of the Chinese — mainland Chinese population — had really stood up against before," Abdulla said "But now we're seeing people learning about it and realizing that actually, it is a bad policy."

Covid Protests in China Raise Hope for Solidarity Among Activists Abroad. People opposing Beijing over issues like Hong Kong, Taiwan or the persecution of Uyghurs see the moment as an opportunity to find common cause. By Tiffany May and John Liu, NYT, Dec. 5, 2022. Updated 3:42 p.m. ET. <https://www.nytimes.com/2022/12/05/world/asia/china-protests-students-abroad.html>

"On the mainland, the protests may have drawn more attention to the Uyghurs, a mostly Muslim Turkic minority who have been the target of a crackdown that detained vast numbers of them in internment camps. Many in China were aware of a Covid lockdown in Xinjiang that led to shortages of food and medicine. Then the deadly fire last month in the regional capital, Urumqi, set off the recent protests.

But activists and experts said that while the protesters knew about the fire and expressed solidarity with Uyghurs about the lockdown, that empathy did not necessarily extend to the group's broader plight. "Most people in China don't really understand the camp system," said Darren Byler, an anthropologist who studies the minority populations in northwestern China and the Uyghur diaspora."

Victims in Urumqi fire that sparked protests were all Uyghurs, officials confirm. Blaze sparked protests across China over harsh COVID restrictions, lack of freedoms

By Shohret Hoshur of RFA Uyghur. 2022.12.02.

<https://www.rfa.org/english/news/uyghur/urumqi-fire-12022022172846.html>

"Chinese media has not reported the identity of the victims who died in the fire. But an official at the Urumqi fire department and a staffer at the Urumqi State Security Bureau confirmed to RFA that the dead were all Uyghurs. This corroborates the description of Uyghurs living outside the country who were familiar with the apartment building that caught fire. Hebibulla Izchi, who had lived in the building but is now residing in Switzerland, said all the residents of this building all were Uyghurs. He said his cousin, mother-in-law, and sister-in-law all live in the residential building..."

[Another form of genocide denialism: "the administration's frequent and highly inflammatory use of the term "genocide" to describe China's treatment of its Uyghur population in Xinjiang province. Beijing does commit severe repression against the Uyghurs. A recent U.N. Human Rights Council investigative report chose the correct language, determining that China has been committing "...serious human rights violations..." in its August 2022 report on the subject. Yet diluting a culture and even curtailing some reproductive rights of a minority population, however morally reprehensible, do not constitute genocide. That latter term has a potent historical meaning that conjures up images of gas chambers and mass butchery. Whatever State Department lawyers may argue, what China does in Xinjiang is terrible, but it is not genocide, and the U.S. government should stop using that term."

Description: "Controlling data means controlling the future." Those are not George Orwell's words, but instead were uttered in 2015 by Jack Ma, founder of tech company Alibaba. Though Ma has since been brought to heel by the Chinese state, the CCP is constantly expanding the way it harnesses data to bolster its techno-authoritarian rule. Chinese companies now lead the world in AI and facial recognition technology, though they are helped by surprising allies in corporate America. To find out how Xi Jinping's project to command the future is panning out, we're joined by Josh Chin and Liza Lin from the Wall Street Journal, authors of Surveillance State: Inside China's Quest to Launch a New Era of Social Control and Aynne Kokas, the CK Yen Professor at the University of Virginia and the author of Trafficking Data: How China is Winning the Battle for Digital Sovereignty.

U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) announced it is adding a Uyghur Forced Labor Protection Act (UFLPA) "Region Alert" with a new mandatory data element for reporting imports via the Automated Commercial Environment (ACE) system. The UFLPA Region Alert will add new validations that will be performed when the Country of Origin is reported as China for entry and for Manufacturer Identification Code (MID). The new data element will be a required postal code for entries from China. After inputting the postal code, users will receive an error message if the postal code provided is not a valid Chinese postal code. In addition, users will receive a warning message when a Uyghur region postal code has been provided.

- this is likely to be quickly circumvented by Chinese officials?

Asharshylyk, Holodomor in Kazakhstan

The dates of the manmade famine in Kazakhstan perpetrated by Moscow depend on the source. Some say 1931-1933, aligning with the Holodomor in Ukraine. However, most Kazakh sources suggest 1928-1934. Let me be clear: it was a genocide. 1/ [THREAD]

More than 70 civil societies, human rights coalitions and trade unions have released a joint statement on the European Commission's proposals to ban products made with forced labour from the single market. They broadly welcome the proposals but call for them to go further to help the estimated 17.3 million people in forced labour in the private sector globally and the 3.9 million people in state-imposed forced labour.

The European Commission proposals, which follow similar moves in the US such as the Uyghur Forced Labour Prevention Act (UFLPA), were announced last month and will apply to products made both in and outside of Europe.

Christian Braw: Perhat Torsun får Tucholskypriset. Svensk Tidskrift, 18 NOVEMBER 2022.

<https://www.svensktidskrift.se/christian-braw-perhat-torsun-far-tucholskypriset/>

Tucholskypriset instiftades av Svenska PEN 1985 till författare och journalister som förföljs eller hotas. Priset har sitt namn från den tyske journalisten Kurt Tucholsky (1890-1935), som modigt bekämpade nazismen och dog som flykting i Sverige. Årets pristagare är den uiguriske poeten Perhat Torsun. Han är för närvarande fängslad i Sinkiang (Öst-Turkestan) av de kinesiska myndigheterna, som gett honom en fängelsedom på 16 år. Priset – 150.000 sek – utdelades i hans frånvaro tisdagen 15 november på Sven-Harrys konstmuseum i Stockholm. Därmed har uigurnas nödläge på nytt fått en belysning.

"For instance, for #TheGambia, which currently is leading a case at the @CIJ_ICJ on the #RohingyaGenocide & itself benefitted enormously from @UNHumanRights & other @UN mechanisms when facing atrocities, to support this statement is unconscionable. Or for Uzbekistan--which successfully addressed a serious forced labor problem through cooperation with the international community & has worked to support humane counter-extremism approaches rooted in tolerance--should not be supporting this statement. Its really shameful for any country to support China's claim that these issues are outside the purview of the Council, but its esp perverse for HRC member countries that ALSO have directly benefitted from working with the UN or regional organizations on their own arguably "domestic" or "internal" issues.

“Originally published in March of 2019, Youtube account CHINA LIVE posted a five-part series entitled, “Visiting a Re-Education Camp in Xinjiang” which recorded the daily lives of individuals in re-education facilities. Each episode followed an individual throughout camp and covered topics including family relations, removal of religious garb, and integration into e-commerce platforms.

On March 28, 2019, the Chinese government published a white paper entitled, “The Fight Against Terrorism and Extremism and Human Rights Protection in Xinjiang”. This paper outlined the strategy employed within re-educational facilities to “de-radicalize” the region. The paper provides an overview of the centres’ curriculum which included lessons on the Chinese language, vocational skills, and courses on eradication of religious extremism.

... The Xinjiang Documentation Project team was made aware in July of 2021, that this series had been removed from CHINA LIVE’s platform and the account was subsequently deleted.”

In the second and final part of our series "The Black Gate: A Uyghur's Family's Story," a Uyghur man returns to China to find his children who've been sent to "boarding schools" and his wife who's spent two years in prison. In the Xinjiang region of western China, hundreds of thousands of Uyghurs and other Muslim ethnic groups have been arrested and detained. Many are still desperately searching for their families.

"... deeply concerned that the OHCHR, without the authorization of the Human Rights Council and the consent of the country concerned, released the so-called "assessment" on Xinjiang, China, which is based on disinformation and draws erroneous conclusions. We are deeply worried that it will undermine dialogue and cooperation in the field of human rights, and exaggerate the existing trend of politicization and polarization at the Human Rights Council.

We believe that the OHCHR should abide by the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations, respect countries' sovereignty and territorial integrity, adhere to the principles of universality, impartiality, objectivity, non-selectivity and non-politicization, respect the authoritative information provided by the government of Member States, and conduct constructive dialogue and cooperation with Member States on the basis of equality and mutual respect.

UN SPECIAL RAPPORTEUR'S REPORT: "REASONABLE TO CONCLUDE" EXISTENCE OF FORCED LABOR IN XINJIANG. Posted by Oliver Young | Aug 19, 2022.

<https://chinadigitaltimes.net/2022/08/un-special-rapporteurs-report-reasonable-to-conclude-existence-of-forced-labor-in-xinjiang/>

A report released this week by UN Special Rapporteur on Contemporary Forms of Slavery Tomoya Obokata stated that it is "reasonable to conclude" that there is forced labor in Xinjiang, and that certain instances of it "may amount to enslavement as a crime against humanity." Separate from the long-overdue Xinjiang report by UN High Commissioner for Human Rights Michelle Bachelet, which is expected to appear before she steps down at the end of this month, this report on forced labor provides one of the strongest critiques to date of China's human rights policies in the region.

WUC WELCOMES UN SPECIAL RAPPOREUR'S REPORT ON CONTEMPORARY FORMS OF MODERN SLAVERY. Press Release – World Uyghur Congress. Posted on August 16, 2022.

<https://www.uyghurcongress.org/en/wuc-welcomes-un-special-rapporteurs-report-on-contemporary-forms-of-modern-slavery/>

The World Uyghur Congress (WUC) welcomes the UN Special Rapporteur on Contemporary Forms of Modern Slavery's report that "finds it reasonable to conclude" that forced labour has been taking place in East Turkistan. The report found that Uyghurs, Kazakhs and other Turkic groups have been subjected to repressive and abusive practices as part of Chinese state-mandated forced labour systems. The Special Rapporteur, Tomoya Obokata, further found that "the nature and extent of powers exercised" meant that "some instances may amount to enslavement as a crime against humanity."

"U.S. Senators Marco Rubio (R-FL) and Bob Menendez (D-NJ) introduced the Sanctioning Supporters of Slave Labor Act to expand the current scope of sanctions on those committing human rights abuses against Uyghurs. The bill would impose secondary sanctions on those that do business with and provide support for foreign entities who have been sanctioned for their Uyghur human rights abuse. A companion bill was introduced in the U.S. House of Representatives by Congressman Jim Banks (R-IN)."

Urgent Statement: APRRN calls on the Royal Thai Government to comply with its legal obligations to Uyghur refugees. Bangkok, 29 July 2022. <https://sites.google.com/view/aprrn-frdp/our-work/statements>

The Asia Pacific Refugee Rights Network (APRRN) urges the Royal Thai Government not to deport Uyghur refugees held in arbitrary detention. No return to China is safe for Uyghurs. APRRN urges the Royal Thai Government to immediately release these refugees or utilize available resettlement options. A total of 54 Uyghur refugees have been arbitrarily detained for more than eight years. The recent news of the transfer of 44 of these men to a single detention site close to a Bangkok airport is deeply concerning. All but a handful of this group have been convicted of no criminal offence and are detained solely because of their status as Uyghur refugees.

Uyghur Forced Labor Database

Find out which companies have reported links to Uyghur forced labor. Jewish World Watch, 2022. <https://jww.org/site/uyghur-china-forced-labor-database/>

"The Uyghur Forced Labor Database is a groundbreaking project detailing how global companies are complicit in forced labor. The database – the most extensive to date – brings to light more than 800 national and international companies and their reported links to Uyghur forced labor and the ongoing genocide of the Uyghur people in East Turkestan (also known as the Xinjiang region of China). --Use the search bar to find out if a company has known links to Uyghur forced labor in its supply chain."

It's nice to finally get a hand on the May/June edition of @WIRED Magazine with my story on the erasure of the Uyghur tech scene in Xinjiang.
In the past years, local founders, IT experts, and bloggers have been sent to camps. The Uyghur language online sphere has been vanishing.
Experts and Uyghurs I talked to say that erasing the Uyghur Internet is erasing a part of the Uyghur cultural identity. But it is also seen as an attack on the local economy: A local entrepreneur spoke about how they used to compete with Chinese tech firms before the crackdown
An Uyghur developer explained how the Chinese govt increasingly made it impossible and dangerous for them to work.
Both escaped the country. Many were not so lucky. There is a list of notable Uyghur IT experts that have been arrested compiled by @shahitbiz Stay tuned for the online version of the story!

China to buy Xinjiang cotton, but state stockpiling won't save mills from massive losses amid US ban. To help stabilise China's reeling cotton industry, the state will buy up to a half-million tonnes of Xinjiang cotton from mills starting on Wednesday. But Xinjiang's cotton-ginning mills are still likely to lose a fortune, having paid much more for raw cotton last autumn, and upstream pressure is only expected to continue. Uyghur Forced Labour Prevention Act takes effect in US, banning imports from Xinjiang. Cotton, tomatoes and polysilicon, a material used in the solar panel industry, are among 'high priority' sectors that will face scrutiny by US customs agents. How the US' Xinjiang labour law has crippled China's cotton industry before even entering effect. Chinese traders in Xinjiang say losses have been mounting for months, with vast inventories unsold as buyers shun what was once the world's most expensive cotton. Far-reaching implications from Uygur Forced Labour Prevention Act are expected to keep clouding trade relations between US and China, even as President Biden mulls tariff cuts. More countries support China on Xinjiang amid US-led clique's siege. West politicizes UN session to maintain hegemony; US dominance opposed by developing countries. By GT staff reporters. Published: Jun 15, 2022, 10:22 PM. <https://www.globaltimes.cn/page/202206/1268215.shtml>
On Tuesday, the second day of the 50th session of the HRC, 47 countries - mostly consisting of European's developed countries, the US and its allies - signed a joint statement to attack the human rights situation in China's Xinjiang, Xizang and Hong Kong regions. In response, on behalf of nearly 70 countries, a representative from Cuba made a joint speech to oppose using human rights as excuses to interfere with China's internal affairs, saying that human rights issues should not be used as political tools. Moreover, more than 20 countries made separate speeches at the HRC to support China, making it nearly 100 countries in total that had voiced their understanding and support to China's stance.

Sanctioned hardline former Xinjiang chief Chen Quanguo moves to rural affairs role for 'last job before retirement'. (CNSNews.com) – Accusing U.N. human rights chief Michelle Bachelet of having “legitimized and whitewashed” China’s atrocities in Xinjiang, a U.S.-based Uyghur advocacy group says she should resign. The call from Campaign for Uyghurs (CFU) followed a long-delayed visit to China by Bachelet which left human rights activists as well as the U.S. and other governments disappointed.

"The visit by Michelle Bachelet, UN High Commissioner for Human Rights, to China – which we had worked for a long time to bring about – failed to achieve what we had hoped. Due to the restrictions imposed by the Chinese side, free, unhindered access to persons and places was not possible during the trip. An independent assessment of the situation on the ground could therefore not be carried out. We still expect the High Commissioner to publish the announced report on the human rights situation in Xinjiang – including the findings from the remote monitoring – as soon as possible."

Hacked files reveal Chinese “shoot-to-kill” policy in Uighur detention camps - John Sudworth, BBC News, May 24, 2022. <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=HTp54QwxV8U>

A huge collection of data including images linked to China's mistreatment of Uighurs and other ethnic minorities has been handed to the BBC.

The information was hacked from Chinese police computers. It includes evidence of a shoot-to-kill policy for anyone trying to escape from so-called “re-education” camps in the western region of Xinjiang. Over the past few years more than a million Uighurs are believed to have been detained in the camps and made to undertake forced labour. China denies claims of torture and carrying out forced sterilisations and abortions. It says claims that Uighurs are being mistreated and made to undertake forced labour are “entirely fabricated”.

Huw Edwards presents a BBC News at Ten special investigation by John Sudworth.

[Alena Douhan, U.N. Special Rapporteur on Negative Impact of Unilateral Coercive Measures on Human Rights]

"Alena Douhan, a U.N. expert, has lobbied for rogue regimes against Western sanctions.

China and Russia have directed funding to the office of Alena Douhan, a Belarusian academic who has used her appointment as one of the U.N.'s special rapporteurs to lobby openly on behalf of authoritarian regimes. The revelations have a powerful lawmaker calling for her ouster and a traditionally reticent State Department saying that her job should not even exist. Douhan's mandate as special rapporteur is to investigate the negative impact of unilaterally imposed economic sanctions on human rights. That framing was crafted by authoritarian regimes in 2015 in order to cast Western human-rights sanctions as illegal."

ILO Conference in Geneva: the roar of the toothless tiger. By ratifying Conventions 29 and 105 of the International Labor Organization (ILO), China has pledged to do everything in its power to prevent possible forced labor. But paper is patient, and the ILO is trapped in its strict procedures. Possible consequences for systematic forced labor in China lie years in the future, despite pressing evidence. Adidas, Puma, Boss & Co: Baumwolle aus China-Zwangsarbeit? | STRG_F, May 6, 2022. Recherche und Film von Manuel Daubenberger, Florian Guckelsberger.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=w0bhOilZ29Q>

Schon lange gibt es einen Verdacht: Baumwolle in Top-Modemarken soll unter Zwangsarbeit geerntet oder weiterverarbeitet worden sein. Und zwar in der entlegenen Provinz Xinjiang im Westen Chinas. Dort werden Minderheiten wie die Uiguren offenbar systematisch von der Zentralregierung unterdrückt und verfolgt. Viele landen in Lagern oder Gefängnissen und werden dort offenbar zu Zwangsarbeit gezwungen – auch auf Baumwoll-Feldern. Was das mit uns zu tun hat? 20% der Baumwolle weltweit stammt aus Xinjiang. Sie hat eine besonders hohe Qualität, wenn sie von Hand gepflückt wird. Sie muss also in vielen Klamotten stecken.

Dass die Gefahr von Zwangsarbeit groß ist, haben viele Textilunternehmen offenbar erkannt: Hugo Boss, Adidas und Puma erklärten, sie würden keine Baumwolle aus Xinjiang in ihren Produkten haben. Das nachzuverfolgen war bislang allerdings sehr schwer. Unabhängige journalistische Arbeit ist in Xinjiang nicht möglich. Aber wir hatten da eine Idee, wie man die Herkunft der Baumwolle in unseren Klamotten bestimmen kann. Dafür braucht es ein bisschen Chemie. STRG_F Reporter Manuel und Florian waren im Labor, haben Baumwolle in Matratzen geschmuggelt und ehemalige Zwangsarbeiter im Exil getroffen.

A Christian Chinese national who spent 10 months in a Xinjiang detention camp has arrived in the United States after months of behind-the-scenes lobbying by U.S. lawmakers, human rights activists and international lawyers. Why it matters: The man, Obulbek Turdaqun, will provide evidence that international human rights lawyers say is vital to the case they have submitted to the International Criminal Court (ICC) prosecutor arguing that China has committed crimes against humanity in Xinjiang.

According to statements released by Amnesty International and Safeguard Defenders on April 4, Abula [Buheliqiumu] and her 13-year-old daughter were arrested by Saudi police in Mecca on March 31. The mother and daughter were told that they would be deported back to China with two other Uyghur men, 52-year-old Uyghur religious scholar Aimidoula Waili and Abula's ex-husband, Nuermeiti Ruze. The two men were arrested in Mecca in November 2020 and they have been in detention ever since.

Saudi authorities must immediately release four Uyghurs – including a 13-year-old girl and her mother – who are at grave risk of being taken to repressive internment camps if sent back to China, Amnesty International said today amid fears that deportation plans for the group may already be under way. Buheliqiemu Abula and her teenage daughter were detained near Mecca on Thursday and told by police they faced deportation to China along with two Uyghur men already held, according to a message received by Abula's friends.

Abula is the former wife of Nuermeiti Ruze, who with Aimidoula Waili has been detained without charge in Saudi Arabia since November 2020.

Authorities in China have reportedly detained more than one million Uyghurs and other ethnic minorities since 2017. Turkey, with strong ethnic and cultural ties to the Uyghur people, has been a safe haven for refugees fleeing China. But China's growing influence in Turkey poses problems for them. We report on how one family has been torn apart as China tries to silence Uyghur voices of protest.

"[The report] highlights the very flawed nature of proceedings and the conflation of religious and cultural practices with vague and expansively conceived crimes. Domestic law in China may provide a legal basis for imprisonment, but this can still constitute arbitrary detention in international law. The criminal law is enabling very long prison terms for many Uyghurs ... Criminal proceedings also intersect with forced labour since Chinese prisoners are always required to participate in productive labour. —A version in Chinese will soon be available.

Threatened, harassed, punished: The Uyghur translators defying China to tell Xinjiang's story. Journalists rely on a short supply of Uyghur interpreters to investigate the human rights crisis in northwest China. The CCP is intent on muzzling them. BY FRANKIE VETCH, Coda Story, 17 FEBRUARY, 2022. <https://www.codastory.com/authoritarian-tech/uyghur-translators-interpreters/>

"Rahima Mahmut is one of the few Uyghur translators willing to work in the open. Her commitment to enabling journalists to cover the Uyghurs exposes her family back home in China to enormous risks, where a vivid picture has emerged of systematic torture and sexual violence, forced sterilization, "reeducation," and child-parent separation.

--John Simpson goes behind Xi Jinping's Great Wall of Iron: How China's Uyghur population became the target of a merciless campaign of collective punishment.

--Katie Stallard on the subjugation of Xinjiang: Xinjiang has long been treated with suspicion. At least one million Uyghurs and other ethnic minorities have been imprisoned in the Xinjiang region. The Chinese say they are combating separatism and religious extremism. Western governments call it genocide.

--Rian Thum and Musapir on the suppression of Uyghur culture: Shaped over centuries by pilgrimage, trade, art and war, a unique culture has been suppressed and exploited by Beijing. Can Uyghur distinctiveness re-emerge?

--Elif Shafak on why the greatest threat to the Uyghurs is Western apathy: We know that populist dictators are emboldened by each other's atrocities, so how many more disappearances will it take before China crosses the West's "red line"?

Pressure is mounting on Parliament Hill [Canada] for the government to take action on international slave labour even as another bill meant to bring scrutiny to Canadian firms doing business abroad was introduced in the House of Commons on Tuesday.

On Feb. 4, a collection of current and former parliamentarians wrote a letter to Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Finance Chrystia Freeland, raising concerns about Canadian pension funds investing in China-based firms complicit in human rights abuses in Xinjiang. The letter asks Ottawa to pass a "Modern Slavery Act" that includes regulations about pension fund investments.

UN accused of colluding with China to delay Xinjiang human rights report until after Beijing Winter Olympics. Leaked documents show China's negotiating position over an inspection of Xinjiang has not changed for years, amid criticism of a 'mutually convenient stalemate' - The UN human rights commission says there is no timeline to release the report, which has been in the works for three years. Finbarr Bermingham in Brussels. South China Morning Post, February 3, 2022. <https://www.scmp.com/news/china/article/3165629/un-accused-collaborating-china-delay-xinjiang-human-rights-report-until>

"The United Nations and China have been accused of fabricating a 'mutually convenient stalemate' after its top human rights body confirmed it will not publish a report on alleged abuses in the Chinese region of Xinjiang before this month's Winter Olympics. . . .

"The two have also been locked in years of negotiations over an inspection of conditions in Xinjiang by human rights chief Michelle Bachelet.

"But documents obtained by the South China Morning Post suggested China's negotiating position had not changed since 2019, raising questions as to the nature of the talks."

Chinese officials recently shared their anti-Western views... on Dong Fang TV (东方卫视), one of the most popular satellite TV channels in China. The hosts of "This is China", the channel's flagship show, claimed Western culture is inherently evil: ... "Actually, Westerners do not seem to understand that there are evil elements deeply embedded in their culture. The Chinese culture, on the contrary, advocates for being kind to others. It is in our cultural genes. Western culture... is destroying the people and is evil by its nature. It judges things from a malevolent outset and produces corrupted thoughts, the kind of thoughts the Chinese would never think. Westerners harbor slanderous ideas about the origin of Covid-19 and misinformation about Xinjiang. Tuniaz, an Uyghur born in Aksu in December 1961, joined the Chinese Communist Party in July 1983... Tuniaz has publicly defended the internment camps as a counter-terrorism measure.

Tuniaz even spent a few months at Harvard's Ash Center as a new world fellow in 2012, Financial Times reports. Ash Center wrote about him in an article published in 2012.

On December 10, 2021, the U.S. Department of the Treasury added Tuniyaz to its Specially Designated Nationals (SDN) list. Persons on the list have their assets blocked in the U.S., and Americans cannot deal with them.

Im Heyne Verlag ist kürzlich das neue Buch der Journalistin Andrea C. Hoffmann erschienen, und das hat es in sich: Eine Uigurin berichtet über die unendlich grausamen Erfahrungen, die sie bei der Rückkehr in ihre Heimat in einem Lager in China gemacht hat. Es geht um Gehirnwäsche, Folter und Verbrechen gegen die Menschlichkeit. Ohfamoos hat die Autorin gebeten, darüber zu berichten und Elke Tonscheidt hat ihr Fragen gestellt. Lest im folgenden Beitrag, wie grausam dieses Schicksal ist – und doch gibt es auch Hoffnung.

Drei Jahre lang befand sich Mihrigul Tursun in der Gewalt der Chinesen, die in der Provinz Xinjiang sogenannte „Umerziehungslager“ für Angehörige der uigurischen Minderheit betreibt.

Investor's Uyghur Comments Are Even Worse Than You've Heard. By JIM GERAGHTY.

National Review, January 18, 2022, 9:08 AM. <https://www.nationalreview.com/the-morning-jolt/investors-uyghur-comments-are-even-worse-than-youve-heard/>

"... the comment from Chamath Palihapitiya, a Sri Lankan-born Canadian and American venture capitalist, that he doesn't care about the Uyghurs in China. But he went much further, and he said worse things. This wasn't an ambush interview; this was his own podcast with his friends. This wasn't a brief comment taken out of context; this was an impassioned argument that criticizing China's human-rights record was deplorable. This isn't the usual case of a businessman being struck blind when it comes to the abuses of Beijing; this is a man who could afford the consequences of doing the right thing and standing up against a crime against humanity... and who deliberately chooses to stand with the victimizer against the victims.

Uyghurs living in Turkey have filed a lawsuit against Chinese concentration camps, where they have their relatives in arbitrary detention, Türkiye News 24 reports. ... After submitting the petition to the Attorney General's Office, the lawyers Güliden Sönmez, Rümeysa Kabaoğlu, and Muhammet Furkan Yün, made a joint press statement on behalf of the families. They appealed for the closure of Chinese concentration camps. The statement says that the Chinese government has committed religious and ethnic-based atrocities against the Uyghurs and other ethnic minorities in East Turkistan. These include genocide, deliberate killing, torture, cruel treatment, and enforced disappearances. The lawyers submitted the appeal to the judiciary under Turkish Law. The statement mentioned 19 complainants. Nine are Turkish citizens, and 116 are victims, including children. Most have been detained or forcibly disappeared. Some of the victims had lost their lives in the camps.

["For Southern Baptists, this moment should be seen as a shared victory for the cooperating churches of our convention," Leatherwood said in written comments for Baptist Press. "Six months ago, we spoke with one voice to condemn the genocide that is being carried out against the Uyghurs. That helped spur on more conversations, more advocacy and, ultimately, the legislative action needed to pass this bill. It proves that the voice of the SBC matters when it is focused, timely and rooted in scripture."]

In his much acclaimed book, "The War on the Uyghurs: China's Internal Campaign against a Muslim Minority", Sean Roberts, an associate professor of international affairs and anthropology at George Washington University, makes a strong case that what's happening to Uyghurs in China amounts to a blatant act of cultural genocide. The book also explores how the US-led 'War on Terror' has been used by Beijing as a cover and justification for the ongoing persecution of Uyghurs. In this interview, Roberts explains "The War on Uyghurs," how China implements its policies in this war, and why "Uyghur genocide is a symptom of a greater malaise in the world" that the global community must be vigilant about.

This week, a slew of new reports on China's online propaganda campaigns was released. As researchers documented, the CCP is increasingly using foreign influencers to disseminate pro-China narratives on Western social media—particularly regarding the crimes against humanity in Xinjiang—in order to increase engagement and defend against foreign critics.

The books ... also include titles that amplify the Communist Party's official line. One book extols life in Xinjiang, where United Nations experts have said China interned one million ethnic Uyghurs in a network of camps. Peter Irwin, an advocate with the Uyghur Human Rights Project, told Axios the "piecemeal approach" the U.S. has taken with sanctions, targeted customs restrictions and business advisories can only be effective to a certain point. This is where "the rubber meets the road" on rhetoric vs. action, Irwin says: The bill would impose "the first real costs" the Chinese government has ever faced for its atrocities in Xinjiang.

The 312 intellectual and cultural elites interned, imprisoned, or otherwise forcibly disappeared since April 2016 come from a range of professional fields, including medical experts, university professors, editors, poets, and singers. The government's attack on elites is a critical weapon in China's multi-pronged and brutal campaign of social re-engineering in the Uyghur homeland. It is clear evidence of the government's intent to destroy Uyghur cultural identity by imposing total control over intellectual and cultural production.

BREAKING: the first-ever leak of "Top Secret" remarks by a Chinese head of state shows how Beijing is behind nearly every aspect of the atrocities in Xinjiang: Internments / forced labor / birth control & reducing Uyghur population shares / big data policing / boarding schools/1

<https://threadreaderapp.com/thread/1465409699575042050.html>

+ select tweets:

The files show that Xi Jinping, Premier Li Keqiang and another former central government official directly and indirectly demanded policies that were then implemented, esp. after 2016:

- Internments
- Coercive labor transfers
- Centralized boarding education
- Birth control

... The leak is an identical subset of the Xinjiang Papers first reported by the New York Times in 2019. BUT: the Times never published the transcripts, didn't mention several key documents, didn't bring out key links, and didn't disclose the secrecy level of Xi's speeches. For example, the Times' 2019 report said that Chen Quanguo ordered officials to "round up everyone who should be rounded up."

But it didn't say that Xi Jinping ordered them: "those who should be seized should be seized, and those who should be sentenced should be sentenced."

... The Xinjiang Papers that were originally reported on by the NYT on November 16, 2019, are not to be confused with the China Cables, which were published in full by the ICIJ and myself (<https://jpolrisk.com/wash-brains-cleanse-hearts/> and <https://icij.org/investigations/china-cables/about-the-china-cables-investigation/>)

VINOHRADSKÁ 12 V ORIGINÁLE. Přehrát 00:00 / 29:58

PŘEPIS ROZHOVORU ↓ 17. 11. 2021 | Prague

Úterní epizoda v originálním znění: Up to three million Uyghurs have been held according to human rights organizations in the internment camps run by the Chinese government. Last week the conference in Prague heard witness accounts from former inmates of the so-called re-education camps. They describe incarceration, mistreatment, violence and hunger. As the next winter Olympic games hosted by Beijing draw closer, calls for international pressure are mounting. What exactly is happening in Xinjiang province? How does the Chinese government explain its policy towards the muslim minority? And why is the international community mostly silent?

Justice for the Uyghurs: What the US Can Do. [Swedish article, in Expressen, showing that Ericsson, a major telecom company owned by Swedish investment company Investor and the Wallenberg family, is using Uyghur forced labor in a company in Xianning, outside Wuhan: the Hubei Yihong Precision Manufacturing Co Ltd.

According to the article, the forced labor factory was first revealed in a recent report from the Australian Strategic Policy Institute (ASPI) - and has been featured in local Chinese press. But the involvement of Ericsson was revealed by the @Expressen investigation. A company report in Sept. 2020 described @Ericsson as a "main customer" buying things like screen back lighting and battery protective equipment. This has since been scrubbed. -- Ericsson was in the spotlight recently for speaking up for the Chinese telecom company Huawei's market access in Sweden, apparently under the influence of Chinese instructions to do so or face restrictions in China.]

Liz Truss pulls no punches about 'genocide' of Uighurs by China. Matt Dathan, Home Affairs Editor, The Times [London], Monday November 1, 2021, 12.01am GMT.

"Liz Truss has privately accused China of committing genocide in a marked change from her predecessor as foreign secretary, The Times has been told. Dominic Raab stopped short of describing China's persecution of the Uighur Muslims as genocide when he was foreign secretary, insisting the international community had to be "careful" before making such claims.

Truss is seen as more hawkish on China than both Raab and Boris Johnson and let her views be known in a meeting with Caroline Wilson, the UK ambassador to China.

When Wilson was appointed in October last year she discussed Britain's relationship with Beijing in a meeting with Truss in her role as international trade secretary. According to an ally of Truss, Wilson ended their discussion by asking why the UK couldn't treat China "like we treat the French". According to the source, Truss said: "Because the French aren't committing genocide."

"Export records showed Del Monte, Unilever, Nestle and UFC NutriAsia purchased thousands of tonnes of tomato paste in the last two years from Cofco Tunhe, a company implicated by new research in the coercive labour transfer scheme. Tomato paste was shipped from Xinjiang to factories in Southeast Asia, processed as spaghetti sauces and ketchups, then exported under the Product of Philippines, India, Pakistan origin labels. Labels don't mention use of Xinjiang or Chinese tomatoes."

"CBC found Canadian grocery stores such as Loblaws, Sobeys & Whole Foods work with Italian processors who admit to using Xinjiang tomatoes, but said these products don't come into Canada - they are sent instead to markets like the U.K, Australia and Africa.

Antonio Petti Fu Pasquale Spa — currently under investigation by Italian authorities for allegedly passing off foreign tomatoes as 100 per cent Italian — is a major processor that makes private label pastes and sauces for Canada, the U.S. and the U.K.

The Road to Glasgow Does Not Lead Through Beijing. Biden's administration is being whipsawed between climate goals and China policy goals. By Robert Kuttner, October 20, 2021.

<https://prospect.org/environment/road-to-glasgow-does-not-lead-through-beijing/>

"Beijing is astutely playing the climate card by threatening Biden that if the U.S. wants happy news out of Glasgow, it must stop criticizing China's human rights violations..."

"One issue is the importation of Chinese goods made with Uyghur forced labor and other human rights abuses in the Xinjiang region. In July, the Senate unanimously passed by voice vote the Uyghur Forced Labor Prevention Act, which would flatly ban such imports. A substantively identical measure passed the House last year. My sources say Kerry and national security adviser Jake Sullivan have requested the House leadership to block floor action in the House for the sake of appeasing Beijing.

The National Security Council is vigorously denying this. A spokesperson said in an emailed statement, "It is absolutely false that the National Security Advisor made such a request. We share Congress's concern about forced Labor in Xinjiang and in fact have taken concrete measures on our own including but not limited to visa restrictions, Global Magnitsky and financial sanctions, export controls, import restrictions, the release of a business advisory and rallying the G7 to commit to take action to ensure all global supply chains are free from the use of forced labor including from Xinjiang. It is the PRC that has consistently sought to link their action on climate with us making changes in the bilateral relationship, and we reject that linkage." A State Department spokesperson indicated that Kerry also did not ask to block floor action. [...]

US lawmakers seek further actions to provide safe harbour to Hongkongers and Uygurs. Members of Congressional-Executive Commission on China call on both Congress and US President Joe Biden to do more on asylum initiatives. Several bills that would provide protections are stalled legislatively. South China Morning Post, October 20, 2021.

<https://www.scmp.com/news/china/diplomacy/article/3152945/us-lawmakers-seek-further-actions-provide-safe-harbour>

"Members of the US Congress urged President Joe Biden on Tuesday to ease asylum requirements and take other steps to help those fleeing Hong Kong and other parts of China where Beijing is accused of rights abuses.

"The appeals came during a hearing of the Congressional-Executive Commission on China (CECC), and as several bills that would provide protections to such individuals continue to languish. "We're moving too damn slow here in Congress," Representative James McGovern, a Massachusetts Democrat and co-chair of the commission, said."

At least 55 killed, scores injured in suicide attack at mosque in Afghanistan's Kunduz. AFP / Dawn [Pakistan]. Published October 8, 2021 - Updated. <https://www.dawn.com/news/1650836>

"The Islamic State-Khorasan (IS-K) group claimed responsibility for the deadly suicide bomb attack.

In a statement released on its Telegram channels, the group said that an IS suicide bomber "detonated an explosive vest amid a crowd" of Shia worshippers who had gathered inside the mosque.

In a second statement, IS said the "perpetrator of the attack was an Uighur Muslim", a minority that the "Taliban had vowed to expel" from Afghanistan. The militant group, bitter rivals of the Taliban, has repeatedly targeted Shias in a bid to stir up sectarian violence in Afghanistan."

"More than 2000 people rallied in Paris to protest the Chinese Communist Party's genocide against Uyghurs and others in the Uyghur homeland (ET). The protest was organized by Uyghur organizations, including the Uyghur Institute of Europe, World Uyghur Congress, Uyghur groups from the Netherlands, Germany, and Norway. Hundreds of Uyghur youngsters from throughout Europe, as well as public celebrities such as Raphael Glucksmann, a Member of the European Parliament (MEP), and French actress Lucie Lucas, took part in the demonstration."

Chinese gov has a new white paper out focused on Xinjiang population. Its central distortion is to say Uyghur pop. increased from 2010 to 2020 (it did), when the problem is that Uyghur births were brutally suppressed from 2017 onward.

So they're hiding the crash in Uyghur population growth rates 2017-2020 by presenting all data in a block that includes a period of high Uyghur growth rates (2010-2016). They never say what happened between 2017 and 2020.

There's also an unusually high number of bald-faced lies for a white paper. Many of them amount to: well-documented form of oppression x clearly isn't happening in Xinjiang. Evidence? The constitution prohibits it.

A more typical distortion (omission rather than plain lies) is in ethnic proportions. They give them for the present, but don't want to say that the proportion of Han in Xinjiang was around 6% when the CCP took over. It's now over 30%, thanks state-sponsored settler policy.

It's telling that they won't tell us what the current population growth rate for Uyghurs is. How did 2020 compare to 2019? This would seem to be crucial data for a state looking to convince the world that it is not preventing births in an indigenous group.

But refuting white papers is not all that interesting. More interesting is that China's gov has implicitly enshrined the Uyghur Tribunal (plus some very identifiable work by scholars on birth prevention, child separation, and specific industries' forced labor) in a white paper.

Mamtimin Ala, a Uyghur activist, talks with Celeste Marcus not only about the Uyghur genocide in China, but also about the syncretistic beauty and wealth of Uyghur tradition. Among the tragedies of the Uyghur story is that they are known most often for the horrors they now endure, and not for their vast, rich history. The Analysis of Uyghur culture - and Chinese culture - sheds much light on the origins of the current outrage.

Von der Leyen's subtext: It's all about China. From a ban on goods produced by forced labor to an Indo-Pacific strategy, the EU is signaling concerns about China. Politico.eu, BY STUART LAU. September 15, 2021, 3:35 pm.

<https://www.politico.eu/article/european-commission-ursula-von-der-leyen-state-union-2021-china-xi-jinping/>

On forced labor, von der Leyen said it's time for the EU to have a ban on import goods produced by prisoners and camp inmates — a step up from her trade commissioner's preference for a less restrictive "due diligence" scheme. This is of major importance to China as it would be likely to target goods from the western region of Xinjiang, where there is a large-scale crackdown against the Muslim minorities.

"We will propose a ban on products on our market that have been made with forced labor because human rights are not for sale, at any price," von der Leyen told Parliament. It remains unclear how the Commission can establish whether or not goods are produced by forced labor as Xinjiang is largely off-limit to Western diplomats and international human rights groups.

"After the attacks of 2001 on the United States, China and the US cooperated on counterterrorism. Washington even designated a Uyghur group as a terrorist organization. In the 20 years since Sept. 11, the two countries have come to see terrorism threats in China differently. China built a network of draconian-level surveillance and launched its "people's war on terror." The US, meanwhile, has removed the group from its terrorist list and labeled China's treatment of ethnic minorities in Xinjiang as genocide."

An exchange about what "engagement" with China should mean now. See my response to William Overholt's (Nomura, Rand, Harvard) letter in The Wire China and his appearance on Sinica Podcast in support of shirt-maker Esquel's operations in Xinjiang.

Overholt doesn't mention Esquel's 22 year partnership with Xinjiang Production Construction

Military Corps 新疆生產建設兵團, which got it on the US Entity List (now Esquel has been conditionally removed after a PR and legal effort)

Esquel has been cleared by US of direct use of slave labor, but does that mean it's good Corporate Social Responsibility to work in today's Xinjiang? What is the new face of mindful engagement? Is simply not polluting water and not using forced labor the proper standard?

The Mills of Lancashire did not directly use slave labor, but they depended on chattel slavery in the US south. Mutatis mutandis there are parallels to using XJ cotton and operating in XJ's environment today, where all authorities are complicit in genocidal policies, esp. XPCMC.

Global capitalism has followed the gradual move of cotton-growing and spinning from east China into Xinjiang, chasing the last sources of dirt-cheap labor in the PRC. We should be aware of how international corporations are involved in the colonialism in the Uyghur Region . . . whenever we put on a shirt. (Esquel makes clothing for Ralph Lauren, Tommy Hilfiger and Hugo Boss among others.)

ABSTRACT

Chinese academics and politicians argue that Xinjiang's 'terrorism' problem can only be solved by 'optimizing' its ethnic population structure. High ethnic minority population concentrations are considered a national security threat. 'Optimizing' such concentrations requires 'embedding' substantial Han populations, whose 'positive culture' can mitigate the Uyghur 'human problem'. Scenarios that do not overburden the region's ecological carrying capacity entail drastic reductions in ethnic minority natural population growth, potentially decreasing their populations. Population 'optimization' discourses and related policies provide a basis to assess Beijing's 'intent' to destroy an ethnic minority population in part through birth prevention per the 1948 United Nations Genocide Convention. The 'destruction in part' can be assessed as the difference between projected natural population growth without substantial government interference and reduced growth scenarios in line with population 'optimization' requirements. Based on population projections by Chinese researchers, this difference could range between 2.6 and 4.5 million lives by 2040.

<https://www.grassley.senate.gov/news/news-releases/grassley-colleagues-introduce-bill-to-end-lending-to-china-from-world-bank-and-asian-development-bank>

WASHINGTON – Sen. Chuck Grassley (R-Iowa) today joined Sen. John Barrasso (R-Wyo.) and 17 senators in introducing legislation that will end lending to China from multilateral development banks, including the World Bank and Asian Development Bank.
"China has been lending development money outside its borders to extend its influence for years while taking in U.S. taxpayer dollars via the World Bank and other global institutions. What's worse is that these loans may have helped free up resources used to violate human rights and force Uighurs into internment camps. There's no reason the world's second largest economy needs these funds. I've led legislative efforts to hold China and the World Bank accountable, and I'm pleased to join Senator Barrasso and my other colleagues to continue this work. It's past time to set in statute an American policy that opposes these loans to the communist government of China," Grassley said.

China expressed support for the Taliban's role in Afghanistan's future while warning it to cut ties with a separatist movement in the Xinjiang region, in a clear expression of Beijing's geopolitical goals in the Central Asian country. Just days after meeting with top U.S. officials in the port city of Tianjin, Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi welcomed a nine-member delegation from the Taliban that included chief negotiator and top political leader Mullah Abdul Ghani Baradar. Chinese leaders also took the opportunity to demand that the Taliban sever all ties with the East Turkestan Islamic Movement, which Beijing has frequently blamed for attacks in its far western Xinjiang province. The movement "poses a direct threat to China's national security and territorial integrity," Wang said, adding that "it is the common responsibility of the international community to fight against ETIM." Taliban leaders at the meeting pledged to respect the national security of China, Mohammad Naeem, spokesman for the Taliban's political office, said in a Twitter statement."

Episode Description

Free to Think talks with Dr. Jo Smith Finley, a reader in Chinese studies at Newcastle University, UK. In March 2021, Dr. Smith Finley, among others, was sanctioned by the government of the People's Republic of China, including a ban on traveling to China, a freeze on assets, and a ban on collaborating with Chinese counterparts, whether in China or abroad.

The sanctions were in retaliation for Dr. Smith Finley's research about reported human rights violations in the Xinjiang Uighur Autonomous Region. These include the forced internment of over one million Uighurs, a largely Muslim ethnic minority, in what some have labeled an ongoing attempted genocide. By targeting the careers of scholars outside of China, the sanctions represent a dramatic escalation in the Party-state's campaign to censor information that is contrary to the official national narrative, and a threat to academic freedom everywhere.

"A former construction contractor who visited the Dabancheng facility in 2018 told the AP that it was the same as the "Urumqi Vocational Skills Education and Training Center," and had been converted to a detention facility in 2019, with the nameplate switched. He declined to be named for fear of retaliation against his family.

"All the former students inside became prisoners," he said."

US tightens the screw on China over Uyghur crackdown. Eyes on Asia. RFA, Podcast Episode. Jul 17, 2021. <https://open.spotify.com/episode/4NKSMeyFUysf7qy028UveQ>

Episode Description

In the six months since outgoing Secretary of State Mike Pompeo issued a determination that China's treatment of Uyghurs in Xinjiang met the definition of genocide, Washington has ramped up policies aimed at making China change course in the vast, troubled region -- restricting exports suspected of being made with Uyghur forced labor, blacklisting companies in the region, and pressing for UN and other international scrutiny on the Xinjing issue. What is the significance of this shift by the United States from symbolic statements of condemnation of China and support for Uyghurs to concrete actions? And what will come next? Eyes on Asia asks RFA Uyghur Service Director Alim Seytoff to explain the rapid succession of developments.

The Uyghur Poets. Heart and Soul. BBC radio, Fri 16 July 2021.

<https://www.bbc.co.uk/programmes/w3ct2gj2>

Uyghur poetry is and has been for centuries a fundamental part of the culture, with most members of the community writing and learning poetry by heart. It ranges from the poetry of religious song through to simple folk poetry and as well as complex modernist verse. It should come as no surprise then that as the community faces widespread persecution by the Chinese authorities and at a time of great despair and fear for them, Uyghurs are using poetry as a powerful means of support, succour and resistance. We hear how poetry is helping connect members of the Uyghur diaspora across the planet, and also how people within the Chinese internment camps are still managing to compose poems and in some instances smuggle them out. We hear from poets and academics as well as an eye witness who spent months teaching in the camps, who describes how the ability to recite poetry in their minds helps people there retain a sense of their Uyghur identity under the most difficult circumstances.

The following poems which appear in the programme were translated by Joshua Freeman:

"Tarim River" - Perhat Tursun

"No Road Back Home" - Abduqadir Jalalidin

"The Protest" - Tahir Hamut Izgil

EU votes for diplomats to boycott China Winter Olympics over rights abuses. Non-binding resolution also calls for governments to impose further sanctions on China as tensions rise. Helen Davidson in Taipei. The Guardian, Fri 9 Jul 2021 03.21 EDT.

<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2021/jul/09/eu-votes-diplomats-boycott-china-winter-olympics-human-rights-abuses>

The European parliament has overwhelmingly passed a resolution calling on diplomatic officials to boycott the 2022 Beijing Winter Olympics in response to continuing human rights abuses by the Chinese government. In escalating tensions between the EU and China, the non-binding resolution also called for governments to impose further sanctions, provide emergency visas to Hong Kong journalists and further support Hongkongers to move to Europe. It was passed with 578 votes in favour to 29 against, with 73 abstentions, and was supported by all of Europe's mainstream political groups, including the centre-right European People's party (EPP) group of the German chancellor, Angela Merkel, and the centrists of France's Emmanuel Macron.

The 28-point resolution called for EU officials and member states to decline all government and diplomatic invitations to the 2022 Winter Olympics "unless the Chinese government demonstrates a verifiable improvement in the human rights situation in Hong Kong, the Xinjiang Uyghur region, Tibet, Inner Mongolia and elsewhere in China".

The following is attributable to Spokesperson Ned Price:

Today Secretary Blinken met with seven Uyghur internment camp survivors, advocates, and relatives of individuals detained in Xinjiang to express the United States' commitment to work with allies and partners in calling for an end to the People's Republic of China (PRC)'s ongoing crimes against humanity and genocide against Uyghurs and members of other ethnic and religious minority groups in Xinjiang; to prevent the refoulement of such persons to the PRC; and to promote accountability for the PRC government's actions and justice for victims and their families. The United States will continue to place human rights at the forefront of our China policy and will always support the voices of activists, survivors, and family members of victims who courageously speak out against these atrocities.

Pakistan's Khan backs China on Uighurs, praises one-party system. Imran Khan repeats his country's support for the Chinese government regarding its policies in Muslim-majority Xinjiang province. Aljazeera, 2 July 2021. <https://www.aljazeera.com/news/2021/7/2/pakistan-imran-khan-china-uyghurs>

"Khan, who was elected to power in a general election in 2018, said electoral democracy "straight-jackets you" when it comes to reforms, and lauded the "flexibility" of the Chinese model. Up until now, the feeling was that electoral democracy is the best way where you get leadership based on merit, and then hold that leadership accountable. But what the CPC has done is that without that electoral democracy it has actually achieved that much better," he said.

... "The No. 5 Intermediate School in Altay (in Chinese, Aletai), the only school in the city where the Uyghur language was the medium of instruction, became a starting place for some of the earliest detentions in that city during the first half of 2017.

In less than three months, local police said to be working with national security authorities had detained seven educators from the high school, taking them away as they wore black hoods over their heads.

The detainees included school principal Rayhan Amat, who later died during interrogation at one of the many internment camps China set up beginning in 2017 that are believed to have housed 1.8 million Uyghurs and other Muslims, according to sources from the region.

The seven educators — including geography teacher Rayhan Musa, Russian language teacher Akbar, and computer science teacher Alim — disappeared one after the other in 2017 ... "

"Bachelet ... dropped a hint to the Human Rights Council that she has other options, while still pursuing negotiations with China on a visit that have dragged on since September 2018. "In the meantime, the office continues to deepen its analysis and assessment of the alleged patterns of human rights violations in Xinjiang," she said on Tuesday. Bachelet has the authority to collect testimonies of abuses remotely, without a mandate from the council or invitation from the country concerned. She and a predecessor initiated such probes on killings by security forces in Venezuela, the disputed Kashmir territory and southeastern Turkey."

GENEVA (AP) — China pressured Ukraine into withdrawing its support for a call for more scrutiny of human rights in China's western region of Xinjiang by threatening to withhold Chinese-made COVID-19 vaccines destined for Ukraine unless it did so, diplomats told The Associated Press on Friday. Ukraine briefly joined a statement by over 40 countries, presented by Canada at the Human Rights Council in Geneva on Tuesday, urging China to allow immediate access for independent observers to Xinjiang. Some human rights groups have alleged Chinese mistreatment of Muslim Uyghurs and others in the region. - On Thursday, Ukraine pulled its name off the list of supporting states after Chinese authorities warned Kyiv that they would block a planned shipment of at least 500,000 doses of COVID-19 vaccines to Ukraine unless it did so, said diplomats from two Western countries. The diplomats spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to discuss the matter publicly. ... Canadian Ambassador Leslie Norton said in a statement Tuesday that "credible reports indicate that over a million people have been arbitrarily detained in Xinjiang." Norton's statement was initially backed by 41 countries and is now supported by 44. Ukraine was briefly country No. 45. Also Tuesday, a Chinese diplomat decried shortcomings in Canada's own rights record, pointing notably to abuses against Indigenous peoples. Belarus read a joint statement -- allegedly by 64 countries -- speaking out in defense of China's right to manage its own internal affairs such as with Hong Kong or Xinjiang. A spokesman for the council's secretariat said Belarus had not provided a list of those 64 countries.

"... even if giant US mutual funds like Vanguard, State Street and BlackRock – all heavily invested in China’s economy – move quickly to comply with Biden’s order, their investments in an entirely separate group of Chinese firms could come under scrutiny next: the millions of shares they own in companies based in Xinjiang, the far-west Chinese region where Washington and others accuse Beijing of committing genocide against the Uyghur ethnic group."
