b, Timeline of the genocide & historical background (selective)

1755. Dzungar genocide committed by Chinese Emperor Qianlong, who built the Puning Temple near Beijing, to celebrate the genocide of the neighbors of the Uyghurs. In 2021, the current Chinese leader visited the temple, praising Qianlong (cf. Lopsang Gurung, 2021)
1750s onwards: Continued Chinese military conquest of 'Xinjiang' (New Conquest' in Chinese), but only limited settlement.
1870s. Abortive attempt, by Chinese colonial activists under Zuo Zongtang, to force-assimilate Uyghurs to Chinese Confucian morality. Probably influenced by European nationalist ideas.
1884. The Chinese imperial government declares Xinjiang to be a province 1911-12. Chinese revolution created the Chinese Republic, which insisted on keeping the imperial conquests. Mongolia later was the only nation to successfully break free and obtain independence; Tibet and East Turkestan (Xinjiang) failed, despite periods of self-rule.
1933-34. Independent East Turkestan Republic.
1944-49. Second East Turkestan Republic (Soviet-guided).
1945. World War II ends; United Nations established; decolonization carried out in some parts of the world (Africa, etc.) — but not for the colonial possessions of China and Russia.
1949. Ehmetjan Qasim (1914–1949), President of the Second East Turkestan Republic, and other leaders killed when their plane mysteriously crashed on its way to negotiations in China.
1949-50. Chinese re-conquest of 'Xinjiang' (and, of Tibet) by the new Communist government in Beijing, which terminated the Second East Turkestan Republic.
1954. Xinjiang Production & Construction Corps (XPCC), a state-military company, set up to exploit the region's resources, and (for the 1st time), bring large numbers of Chinese settlers.
1955. Formal establishment of the Uyghur Autonomous Region of Xinjiang as part of new Communist China.

1960s. Mao Zedong's "cultural revolution" ravages the Uyghur region.
1980s. Semblance of normalcy re-established.

1990. Baren (Barin) massacre, of people protesting abortions and family size control.
1994. Karamay fire incident, in which 325 people perished.
1997. Ghulja massacre, one of several incidents involving Uyghur protests.
2009. Urumchi 'riots': bloody confrontations provoked by a clash in faraway Guangzhou.

2014. Yarkand village massacres, of protesters triggered by the policing of prayer.
2014. Xi Jinping, China's new supreme leader, visits Kashgar; reportedly angry over failure of too-slow assimilation efforts over the previous decades; uses several terrorist incidents as excuse to plan a massive collective punishment
2014. Ilham Tohti, prominent moderate Uyghur advocate, is given life sentence for "separatism"

2016. Xi Jinping appoints Chen Quanguo as Xinjiang communist chief, to plan and launch the multi-pronged genocide (construction of camps, recruitment of guards, procuring coercive equipment, plus accompanying measures to curb Uyghur language, culture and religion, destroying mosques, etc.)

2017. Mass detentions begin; phone lines are cut, Uyghurs in exile lose contact with their families; now alerted, foreign researchers, journalists begin reporting on the new camp system under development using satellite imagery, and interviewing eyewitnesses, whose reports begin to emerge, describing the forced assimilation procedures of the camps and the cruelties associated with the brainwashing

2018. Chinese authorities acknowledge existence of camps, which they had denied; begins efforts to use fake camps to invite journalists from "friendly" countries; occasionally misfires

2018. The U.N. Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination, holds hearings on Xinjiang, and issues stern advice for China to restore human rights. Chinese government refuses

2019. Start of the annual battles at the United Nations Human Rights Council (Geneva), for or against China's genocidal policies. Nearly all Muslim countries choose to support China

2019. Leaks of Chinese internal documents: "China Cables" (ICIJ), and "Xinjiang Papers" (NYT)

2019. Leak of police drone film of Kashgar detainees transferred to camps in Ghulja; caused another stir when it re-circulated in 2020, reminding the world of China's near-total news blackout

2019. After a 2-year inquiry, Canada's Parliament becomes the first of a series of parliaments and governments to condemn the atrocities as a genocide as per the UN Genocide Convention

2020. US adopts Uyghur Human Rights Policy Act, to sanction Chinese officials and companies

2020. Conclusive evidence of genocidal mass sterilizations discovered in Chinese govt. documents, and eyewitness testimony; also widespread abuse of women, mass family separations, etc.

2020. Some camp detainees transferred to forced labor (in cotton and other industries); young people also sent directly to Eastern Chinese factories, away from their homeland. Other detainees are transferred to prisons; some camps continue. (All clearly part of a master plan to break the transmission of Uyghur, Kazakh culture, and force them to assimilate or die)

2020. In late September, Party chief Xi Jinping gathers Communist elite for public meeting to endorse his brutal Xinjiang policies as "Entirely Correct."

2021. The EU, US, UK, and Canada issue more sanctions over the atrocities; China retaliates w. sanctions on Western elected politicians, individual scholars, and think tanks

2021. Newlines Institute & 50 legal experts concludes the Chinese campaign is genocide

2021. Uyghur Tribunal held in London; gathers testimonies from eyewitnesses and others; in December, concludes the campaign is genocide

2022. Leak of more Chinese internal documents: "The Xinjiang Police Files," incl. large trove of victim's mugshots; and documents re-confirming top Chinese leaders' direct responsibility

2022. In May, a widely criticized staged visit to China by UN high commissioner for Human Rights, Michelle Bachelet, who fails to call for an international tribunal (as for Bosnia or Rwanda)

2022. US adopts Uyghur Forced Labor Prevention Act, to block imported goods made with slave labor. Enforcement clearly an issue. Similar legislation enacted in the EU.

2022. Triumphant visit July 12-13 to Xinjiang by the Chinese leader, Xi Jinping (following closely on similar triumphant visit July 1, to Hong Kong, which also had been subdued by force, to stop the popular pro-democracy demonstrations in 2019)

2022. Office of the UN high commissioner for Human Rights, Michelle Bachelet, belatedly issues a report on Xinjiang just before resigning, 31 August 2022. The report is instantly condemned by China; a struggle ensues at the UN, over whether to bury it, or debate it.

2022, Oct. 6, UN Human rights council member countries vote narrowly to not allow further debate on the Bachelet report.

2022, Nov. 25, the U.N. Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination reiterates its 2018 concerns over Xinjiang and refers them to the UN Office on Genocide Prevention and the Responsibility to Protect [https://ishr.ch/latest-updates/china-must-release-uyghurs-end-grave-violations-rules-un-committee/], which is obliged to react, but even by June 2023 has not done so [cf. https://twitter.com/UyghurProject/status/1673446070989340674].

2022. Nov. 24 fire in Urumchi apartment building kills multiple Uyghur families, sparks nationwide protests in China and among Chinese abroad, against government's harsh Covid lockdowns. Some Chinese participants, inside & outside China, express solidarity with Uyghur victims.

2023, Feb. 13, China cancels planned visit of Xinjiang governor Erkin Tuniyaz to Brussels, Paris, and London, after criticism and threats of lawsuits over his part in the abuse of Uyghurs.
2023. Arab League participates in staged trip to Xinjiang; on June 14, Palestinian leader Mahmoud Abbas again endorses China's genocide, in Beijing, saying the situation in the Uyghur region "has nothing to do with human rights."
2023, Sept. 21, Life prison sentence for Professor Rahile Dawut verified: It was meted out already in 2018 but kept secret by China's authorities
2023, Sept. 26, Three UN experts issue an alarm regarding the forced assimilation of Uyghur children systematically detained and separated from their families
2023, Oct. 18. Led by the UK, 51 countries issued joint statement on human rights violations in Xinjiang, at the UN (Turkey and Somalia dropped since last year; also Fiji later dropped = 50 nations); later followed by a statement by 72 other countries, including Gambia(!), endorsing China's genocide 2023, Dec. 26. China issues sanctions on US open-source analysis firm Kharon and two researchers, for their Xinjiang research.

2024, Jan. 23. China is criticized at a human rights review session of the UN in Geneva, incl. for oppression in Tibet and Xinjiang/East Turkistan. However, some countries praise it.
2024, March. Arab delegation again visits Xinjiang/East Turkistan to endorse and praise China's genocidal policies.
2024, March. 200% surge in EU imports from China's Xinjiang region noted.
2024, April. After long delays, European Parliament passes law banning forced labor products.
2024, April. Updated ILO Forced Labor Guidelines revised to directly target Uyghur forced labor.
2024, April. Huge numbers of imprisonments in Xinjiang/East Turkistan revealed: over 450k people imprisoned since launch of the genocide; much higher rates than anywhere in China.
2024, April. Former UN Special Rapporteur Fernand de Varennes concludes that "What is happening in Xinjiang & in Tibet is not just a series of massive violations of human rights. It's part of the intentional direction, part of [a] Chinese colonisation process."
2024, May. U.S. adds 26 Chinese cotton/textile companies to its import ban list, protested by China.
2024, June 5-6. Turkish Foreign Minister Hakan Fidan visits Urumchi & Kashgar, first official Turkish visit since the start of the genocide. (In April 2012, then-PM Recep Tayyip Erdogan visited). Fidan declares support for China's "sovereignty" and "anti-terror policies," wears shirt and tie in East Turkestan national colors (!); sources claim he asked China to defend Uyghur 'cultural rights.'
2024, June 27, World Uyghur Congress wins case at UK National Crime Agency, on blocking cotton imports made with slave labor, to the UK.
2024, July 8-11, The Court of the Citizens of the World, a privately organized court in the Hague, the Netherlands, confirmed crimes against humanity and genocide charges against Chinese President Xi Jinping regarding China's treatment of Uyghur Muslims and ethnic Tibetans.
2024, July 11, Argentina's Federal Court of Criminal Cassation ordered the nation's Prosecutor to open an investigation on criminal complaint originally filed August 2022, by the World Uyghur Congress, Uyghur Human Rights Project and Lawyers for Uyghur Rights.
2024, July 13, The Court of the Citizens of the World (a private citizen's court in the Hague, Netherlands) issues a verdict against China of genocide and crimes against humanity.
2024, 27 Aug. The office of the UN high representative for human rights issues a report marking the second anniversary of the Bachelet report, which China denounced and rejected.

2024, Oct., at the UN, 15 countries call on China to release Uyghur and Tibetan prisoners.
2024, Oct., China holds 'World Media Summit' in Urumchi.
2024, Oct., World Uyghur Congress elects new leadership at meeting in Sarajevo.

2025, Febr., After the overthrow of the Assad regime, the new Syrian government's Ministry of Education announced that students from East Turkestan will receive free education. Uyghur soldiers who assisted in the victory are later integrated into the new govt's armed forces.
2025, Feb. 27. Despite offers from third countries, Thailand deports 40 Uyghur refugees to China under the cover of night, driving them to the airport with blacked-out windows to prevent press coverage. A Chinese plane flies them to Kashgar; China's state media celebrate, while the UN and several countries, organizations and Thai politicians protest the refoulement.
2025, March 15. The new US government axes funding for Radio Free Asia and Voice of America which have both long reported on the Uyghur genocide. Chinese state media celebrate.
2025, March 19. Thailand's deputy prime minister and the justice minister fly to Kashgar for a staged visit to select Uyghurs from the group of 40 that was forcibly returned to China from Thailand on Feb. 27, posing for photos and claiming they are fine; contested in Thailand.
2025, April 1. China claims to have organized tailored Xinjiang visits for diplomats from 43 countries., cites ambassadors from Somalia, Cuba and Pakistan praising the situation there.
2025, April 23. UK state energy company decides to no longer source solar panels made with slave labor from China.
2025, May 1. China lifts sanctions against five European parliament members but keeps them on European and Canadian scholars and others. EU parliament said Xinjiang sanctions would remain.
2025, May 3 and ongoing. Radio Free Asia shuts language services after US government terminating funding, including for Uyghur and Tibetan reporting.
2025, May 21. Turkey arrests Chinese spying ring using fake cell towers used to eavesdrop on Uyghur and Turkish targets in Turkey. Raises doubts about Chinese equipment everywhere (including telecommunications, solar panels, etc.).
2025, May 23-25. World Uyghur Congress in Munich, Germany.
2025, June. In Kashgar, the visiting director of Princeton University Press praises China's "multiculturalism" and promises to tell the world through her publishing.
2025, June. Argentina's highest criminal court accepts Uyghur universal jurisdiction case brought by the Church Court Chambers [UK] et al.
2025, July 1, Ma Xingrui replaced as Communist Party chief of Xinjiang with Chen Xiaojiang, the director of the state Ethnic Affairs Commission (and, its first Han Chinese director).

2025, August. China's embassy in Bangkok, Thailand, succeeds in censoring art exhibit that mentioned the plight of Uyghurs and Tibetans in China.
2025, Sept. 8. UN High Commissioner for Human Rights declares that "In China, the progress we have sought for the protection of the rights of Uyghurs and other Muslim minorities in Xinjiang, as well as Tibetans in their regions, has yet to materialize."

The following is a detailed eyewitness account attributed to a Falun Gong practitioner from Urumqi, originally published in Mandarin on the Clear Wisdom website and translated here with minor stylistic edits. While authored anonymously, it is nevertheless consistent in many aspects with what has been reported elsewhere, and also mentions specific information about a concrete victim that is consistent with what has been reported in internal police records. Furthermore, given Clear Wisdom's history of providing reports that have consistently seen multiple details corroborated, we consider the account as highly credible and recommend it strongly, as it gives a rare perspective of the camp system (coming from a demographic that wasn't the main target of the mass incarcerations). -- Other versions (external): 中文, ئۇيغۇرچە

= In this video series, we examine what's happening now on the ground in Xinjiang:
Part 1 above focuses on the culture erasure of the Uyghurs: how Beijing has begun erasing the rich cultural and religious heritage in Xinjiang to force the group to become more 'Chinese'.
Part 2 focuses on the use of internment camps and an intensive propaganda campaign to create a more docile region - watch it here: • Inside Xinjiang 2.0 - China's program...
Part 3 explains the challenges Sophia faced as a journalist in Xinjiang, where she was assaulted, intimidated and harassed - watch it here: • Inside Xinjiang: What it's really like to report on China's treatment of the Uyghurs.

Cultural Heritage Under Attack: The United Nations and Uyghur China. The Getty. Sep 11, 2025. https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=4fY8lCP5nQs
"In 2005, the United Nations agreed to a new framework called Responsibility to Protect (R2P) aimed at preventing genocide and crimes against humanity. However, this norm neglected to protect cultural heritage explicitly, despite the fact that the destruction of cultural heritage, including intangible heritage such as traditions and religious practices, often goes hand in hand with ethnic cleansing. This dynamic is playing out today in Xinjiang China, home to the ethnic minority Uyghur people. -- In this episode, former Getty President Jim Cuno speaks with Simon Adams, president and CEO of the Center for Victims of Torture, and Rachel Harris, expert on Uyghur culture and professor of ethnomusicology at SOAS, University of London, about the role of the UN in protecting cultural heritage in times of crisis and the current case of the Uyghur people in China. Adams and Harris are contributors to the recent publication Cultural Heritage and Mass Atrocities, edited by Jim Cuno and Thomas G. Weiss and available free of charge from Getty Publications: https://www.getty.edu/publications/cultural-heritage-mass-atrocities/

"In early April 2023, DAWN and the Uyghur Human Rights Project (UHRP) co-hosted a virtual webinar examining how autocratic governments in the Middle East have aided China's repression of its Muslim communities, especially ethnic Uyghurs from Xinjiang province. Across the Middle East, governments, religious scholars and religious establishments have emerged as key partners in the Chinese government's efforts to "Sinicize" Islam within China. The event brought together activists and experts to address this emerging area of transnational repression and discuss how the international community can respond. Uyghur Transitional Justice Database (UTJD). https://www.utjd.org/news/about Uyghur Transitional Justice Database (UTJD) is an independent nonprofit organization that focuses on the documentation of human rights violations committed against the Uyghurs and other Turkic peoples in East Turkistan (aka. Xinjiang) through the collection of testimonies and research-based advocacy. UTJD was founded in 2017 as a project of the Norwegian Uyghur Committee and became an independent nonprofit organization in 2019.

We have started building reality-based detailed 3D models of internment camps in VR, and possibly in the foreseeable future also 3D models of historical mosques, sacred tombs, and other cultural relics/sites that have been (fully or partially) demolished by the Chinese regime. We aim to create a virtual interactive museum in the future, featuring all things related to the Uyghurs and other Turkic peoples in East Turkistan.

Disinformation, Propaganda, and the Uyghur Crisis.
Tuesday, September 16, 2025. Time: 4:00–5:30 p.m. Location: Capitol Visitors Center, South Congressional Meeting Room (CVC 217), Capitol Hill, Washington DC, USA.
https://uhrp.org/event/disinformation-propaganda-and-the-uyghur-crisis-2/
The Chinese government has invested heavily in propaganda to whitewash and deny the ongoing genocide of Uyghurs in East Turkistan. Foreign vloggers, staged tours for journalists and diplomats, and state-media documentaries hide atrocity crimes with a false image of ethnic harmony.
This panel will bring together leading experts, advocates, and scholars to examine how the CCP's "happy Uyghur" narrative has spread globally, and what governments and civil society can do in response. --Speakers:
Omer Kanat, Executive Director, Uyghur Human Rights Project
Abduweli Ayup, Researcher, Publisher, and Founder of Uyghur Hjelp (Norway)
Rayhan Asat, Senior Legal and Policy Advisor, Atlantic Council Strategic Litigation Project
Professor Rian Thum, University of Manchester
William Nee, National Endowment for Democracy
Olivia Enos, Hudson Institute

Ayup Abduweli, Chinese Linguistic Empiricism and Uyghur Resistance. University of Kansas, Hall Center for the Humanities, 4 p.m, Thursday, September 11, 2025.
https://calendar.ku.edu/event/ayup-abduweli-chinese-linguistic-empiricism-and-uyghur-resistance Abduweli Ayup is a linguist and writer specializing in Uyghur language education. In this presentation, he will show the film All Static and Noise, a documentary on China's Uyghur detention camps, and discuss his work promoting the Uyghur language. The film and presentation (75 minutes) will be followed by Q&A and a reception.
This event is co-sponsored by the Department of Linguistics, the Department of Political Science, the Hall Center for the Humanities, the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, KU International Affairs, the Center for East Asian Studies, and the Center for Russian, East European & Eurasian Studies.

"In 2024, the EU passed a Forced Labour Regulaton that requires companies to prove that their products are free from forced labour. Member states need to incorporate this in their national legislation by 2027. Now, however, the Corporate Sustainability Due Diligence Directive (CSDDD), which is a fundamental piece of legislation that will work in tandem with the forced labour ban, is under attack with the new omnibus proposal. How to motivate brands to end using materials from Xinjiang? And how to encourage governments and individuals to be aware of the origin of their products?"

Guldana Salimjan. State of Dispossession: Politics of Land and Memory on the Sino-Kazakh Borderland. Lecture. Friday, April 04, 2025 3:30 pm to 5:30 pm. JHB 318, Jackman Humanities Building. University of Toronto. 170 St George Street, Toronto ON M5R 2M8
https://www.religion.utoronto.ca/events/dispossession
Description. How does a self-described anti-imperial socialist state conceal a settler colonial project on its frontiers? How are embodied memories and practices entangled with colonial secular reterritorialization? Chinese state-building is contingent on settler colonialism, whether in the Maoist era, the reform era, for national border security during the Sino-Soviet split, or for ecological security in the 21st century. The experience of dispossession on the Inner Asian borderland happens, irreversibly and consistently, as the state's rhetoric about development and modernity changes. Analyzing the contentious narratives of the Chinese state and Muslim Kazakh epistemologies of ancestral land and kinship expressed through life-cycle rituals, oral poetry, and storytelling, this talk demonstrates what it means to be Muslims living through a continuing colonial occupation and the precarious future it unfolds.
About the speaker
Guldana Salimjan is a SSHRC Postdoctoral Fellow at the Department of Historical and Cultural Studies at the University of Toronto. She applies feminist interdisciplinary methods in in her work on colonial technologies, environmental injustice, and lived experience in China's peripheries.

WUC will hold a protest on April 4 in front of the Chinese Consulate in Munich from 15:00 to 16:00, calling for justice for the victims of the Baren Uprising and all #Uyghurs facing persecution today.

"Conducting fieldwork on politically sensitive topics is a challenging task where researchers often struggle to find a balance between safety and accessibility. Since the "People's War on Terror" in the Uyghur Region, studies have aimed to understand the impact of Chinese government policies targeting Uyghurs from diverse perspectives, ranging from global implications to individual experiences. The present talk focuses on the methodological concerns and challenges in conducting interviews on sensitive political issues with different target groups, especially when the researcher's identity becomes the most critical risk factor." — The speaker is Yalkun Uluyol (Koç University), a scholar of comparative politics and international political economy with a PhD in International Relations.

The Terroristization of Xinjiang: Violence, Discourse and Politics in China's Uyghur Region
SPEAKER: Dr. Pablo A. RODRIGUEZ-MERINO, Royal Military Academy Sandhurst, UK
DATE: 12 December 2024 at 10:00 AM
VENUE: Akademie ved CR, Národni 2, Praha 1, sál 205
This talk will investigate how Uyghur-related violent conflict and Uyghur ethnic minority identity, religion, and the Xinjiang region more broadly, became constituted as a 'terrorism' problem for the Chinese state. Exploring the evolution of political violence, official discourse, and contemporary Xinjiang politics from the 18os, the presentation will trace the discursive and political processes by which tensions in the Uyghur region were transformed from a societal issue that required a moderate policy sensitive to the Uyghur ethnic identity into a national security crisis that enable a 'People's War on Terror' against the Turkic Muslim ethnic minorities.

Echoes of Silence: The Impact of Genocide on Uyghur and Rohingya Women
Tuesday, November 19, 2024 10am to 3:45pm. Vern Campus, Eckles Library, Room 118; 2100 Foxhall Rd NW, Washington, DC 20007. https://calendar.gwu.edu/event/echoes-of-silence-the-impact-of-genocide-on-uyghur-and-rohingya-women
"This presentation explores the profound effects of genocide on the lives of Uyghur and Rohingya women, highlighting the intersection of gender, culture, and violence. Through personal narratives and critical analysis, we will examine how systemic oppression shapes their experiences and resilience. By understanding these struggles, we aim to foster awareness and inspire action against ongoing atrocities, advocating for the rights and voices of those often silenced in the discourse on genocide."

À propos de l'événement: Lorsque les Ouïghours et les Kazakhs sont détenus arbitrairement dans des “camps de rééducation” en Chine, les survivants et leurs familles risquent tout pour exposer la vérité. Jewher, une adolescente ouïghoure, arrive aux États-Unis après avoir été violemment séparée de son père à l’aéroport de Pékin.Avec Abduweli, un linguiste torturé pour avoir enseigné la langue ouïghoure, ils rejoignent d’autres survivants à travers le monde pour dénoncer les atrocités et espérer une prise de conscience internationale.
Invité(e) pour la discussion après la projection: David Novack (Réalisateur); Jewher Ilham (Productrice associée , fille du savant ouïghour emprisonné Ilham Tothi); Marie Holzman (Sinologue, présidente de Solidarité Chine); et plus.

"The respect for minority groups in Xinjiang is something that the West should learn from, not point fingers at, said scholars at an international forum on Xinjiang. The International Forum on the History and Future of Xinjiang was held in Kashgar, Northwest China's Xinjiang Uygur autonomous region on Wednesday. Some 170 experts from China, the United States, Australia, Germany, Kazakhstan, Uzbekistan and other countries gathered to hold in-depth discussions on the theme of Xinjiang's history and future." [...] "What is exciting in Xinjiang is the respect for minority people. Clearly, the music, dance and culture have been well-preserved here in Xinjiang," said Mary Tucker-Grim, a professor at the School of Forestry and Environment Studies at Yale University...

Uyghur Poetry and Cultural Erasure
Organised by English PEN. English PEN Literary Salon.
Thursday, 14th Mar 2024, 16:15 - 17:15
This conversation with Uyghur poet and academic Aziz Isa Elkun will explore the rich and historic tradition of Uyghur poetry as well as the violence being brought against Uyghurs by the Chinese government. It will also consider why cultural and linguistic erasure is so often used as a tool of state violence and oppression, and why it is therefore important that Uyghur literature continues to be translated, published and promoted.

Can the ICC be a lifeline for justice for Uyghurs and other Turkic peoples?
Date & Time: Dec 6, 2023 01:00 PM Eastern Time (US and Canada).
https://us06web.zoom.us/webinar/register/WN_E0kgxxWRTve4FKuf1UCuiw#/registration
Description: As the ICC holds its 22nd Assembly of Startes Parties (ASP) in New York, it will have to address several conflicts that currently ravage the world. The Uyghurs Kazakhs, Kyrgyz and other Turkic peoples in East Turkistan (Xinjiang) face decimation by the Chinese Government. It is estimated that almost 3 million of them have been rounded up by the Chinese authorities and incarcerated in “re-education” camps. Countless Uyghurs have been killed and disappeared. Woman have been subjected to sterilisation programs, and children have been snatched from their parents. The ICC can act to investigate the Chinese authorities as thousands of Uyghurs and other Turkic peoples have been targeted and deported from neighbouring Tajikistan, which is an ICC State Party, and will be attending the ASP. The Court therefore has jurisdiction - not over all crimes as China is not a State Party, but a substantial number. That is why in June 2020, lawyers acting for the East Turkistan Government in Exile and Uyghur victims, submitted a complaint with evidence of these widespread crimes to the ICC Prosecutor asking for such an investigation to be opened. Please join us on December 6th to hear from Uyghurs and Kazakhs, legal experts and the lead investigator on the case to address why the ICC should act now.

Abstract--Few issues have had as far-reaching impact on China's relations with the world - economic, technological, political - as Beijing's policies in the Muslim-majority Xinjiang Autonomous Region. From civil society outrage over "re-education camps" in 2018, to the imposition of Western sanctions against officials held responsible for mass human rights violations, to allegations of forced labour in supply chains, to the UN High Commissioner on Human Rights raising possible crimes against humanity in September 2022, the Xinjiang issue has driven decoupling, political tensions and a widenin chasm in perceptions between China and the West. Where have these policies come from? What lines of political thinking underpin them? How does China's own discourse about its Xinjiang policies relate to broader discourses in world politics?

This unique forum brings together research from two leading experts on the subject, who will address the origins and future of the crisis.
Speaker bio: Chi Zhang is British Academy Postdoctoral Fellow at the University of St. Andrews, and the author of Legitimacy of China's Counter-Terrorism Approach: The Mass Line Ethos (Singapore: Palgrave MacMillan). Beatrice Gallelli is Assistant Professor in Chinese language and translation at Ca'Foscari University of Venice who has written on China's official discourse on Xinjiang.

COLONIAL BOARDING SCHOOLS IN CHINA
A full-scale genocide is taking place now in Northwest China. Uyghur, Kazakh, Tibetan, and other minority families are being traumatized through the assimilationist policies of the Chinese Communist Party (CCP), which include children being forcibly separated from their parents and placed in boarding schools where they're systematically stripped of their language, culture, and religion. Join us at 4pm EST Sunday, Nov. 20th [2022] for this online event with our peacebuilder Bill Clark, who heads up our Uyghur advocacy work. No registration required.

Why Uyghurs? Religious Revival, Ethnic Violence and State Response in Xinjiang. Lecture by Yan Sun, City University of New York. Monday, November 7, 2022, 5:00 PM - 6:00 PM.
https://www.international.ucla.edu/apc/centralasia/event/15747
Since mid-2017, reports of massive "re-education" camps in Xinjiang have drawn global attention to China's "war on Muslim Uyghurs." Why has this group been targeted? Latest studies point to "imaginary terrorism," "securitization of Uyghur identity" and "settler colonialism" as the underlying causes. My own study finds a different state-centric dynamic: the party-state's policy of alternatively promoting and restraining religious revival has played a crucial role in contributing to the current state of Uyghurs' plight. In the early post-Mao era, the state sponsored religious revival in Xinjiang (and Tibet) as a mechanism of political integration, to repair damaged relations with key minority communities. This ethnic accommodation, however, encouraged ethnic identity expression and sectarian developments to evolve progressively in directions unintended and undesired by the state. The demise of socialist safety nets and weakened state capacity in the countryside further aggravated the problem. Religious growth then has had to be curbed in increasingly constraining ways, leading to frustrated identity, ethnic mobilization, political resistance, ethnic violence, and ultimately the state's draconian curtailment in the form of "re-education" camps and intense security measures. My discussion will trace the cycles of these developments and end with a brief contrast of the Uyghur and Tibetan cases.
Yan Sun is a Professor of Political Science at the City University of New York, Queens College and the Graduate Center. She is the author of From Empire to Nation State: Ethnic Politics in China (Cambridge 2020), Corruption and Market in Contemporary China (Cornell 2004) and The Chinese Reassessment of Socialism (Princeton 1995). She has also published articles on these topics, including comparative studies of China and Russia, and China and India. A native of Sichuan, her interest in China's ethnic politics stems from childhood memories of banished relatives in Uyghur and Tibetan regions.
[Difficult not to read as a species of "soft" genocide denialism. The atrocities are never condemned]

Ending slavery through boycotts: right or wrong? From fashion to food, workers are subjected to forced labor in the production of our everyday items. So, what can we do about it? As individuals, changing our shopping choices, even stopping buying certain products altogether can feel like the most effective response. Governments might choose to implement import bans to prevent products tainted with forced labor from reaching their shelves like the recent Uyghur Forced Labor Prevention Act in the U.S. But are boycotts and import bans always best – and can we end slavery using these tools? Tune in for a discussion breaking down this issue with Uyghur activist and forced labor expert Jewher Ilham, and labor rights expert Allison Gill.

Government Boarding Schools as a Tool of Genocide in the 21st Century: Uyghur and Tibetan Family Separation. Tuesday, July 26, 2022 | 1:00–2:00 p.m. EDT

From July 24 to 29, Pope Francis is visiting Canada, when he will publicly apologize for the suffering and abuse in the Catholic boarding schools for Canada's indigenous peoples, following his historic apology at the Vatican in April. In May 2022, the U.S. government released an unprecedented report on 53 burial sites at 408 boarding schools for Native American children across 37 states, operating between 1819 and 1969. These historic crimes are recognized as causing lifelong and generational trauma.
Now in the 21st Century, the Chinese government is operating a vast system of colonial boarding schools in Tibet, including at least 50 mandatory boarding preschools holding 100,000 Tibetan children, ages 4 to 6. The Chinese government is also operating mandatory boarding schools for Uyghur children as part of its genocidal policies, in a systematic effort to separate Uyghur children from their families, affecting an estimated 900,000 children. Please join us for a discussion of the implications of these crimes and the need for a policy response.

A Survivor's Voice: Update on the Atrocities Against the Uyghurs in China
Monday, March 7, 2022, at 4:45pm to 6:15pm. Virtual Event

What are the prospects for halting China's mass atrocities in the Uyghur region, which are now entering their fifth year since the start in 2017? An update and discussion. Our special guest is Tursunay Ziyawudun, a survivor of the Chinese concentration camps in the region known in Chinese as Xinjiang. Translation will be provided by Rizwangul NurMuhammad, MPA student at Cornell and also affected by the atrocities. Faculty hosts and facilitators Magnus Fiskesjö, Anthropology and Allen Carlson, Government.
Co-sponsored by the China and Asia-Pacific Studies Program (CAPS), Critical Ottoman and Post-Ottoman Studies, Comparative Muslim Societies, and the Reppy Institute for Peace and Conflict Studies (PACS), as well as the Departments of Asian Studies, Government, and Anthropology.

Terror Capitalism: Producing the 'Terrorist-Worker' in Northwest China, by Darren Byler
Wednesday, March 2, 2022, at 4:45pm. Virtual Event
https://events.cornell.edu/event/terror_capitalism_producing_the_terrorist-worker_in_northwest_china_by_darren_byler Abstract: This talk focuses on some of the key ideas of my ethnographic monograph Terror Capitalism: Uyghur Dispossession and Masculinity in a Chinese City. Drawing on more than 24 months of ethnographic research in the Uyghur region of Northwest China and nearby Kazakhstan between 2011 and 2020, open-source and internal police documents, and extensive interviews with current and former "terrorist-workers" before their detention in 2017, interviews with their family members since detention, and in several cases post release, it considers how Muslim farmers can be turned into unfree workers under the sign of terrorism. By placing these accounts in the context of broader economic transformations in the region and considering how the rise of the "terrorist-worker" figures in scholarship of the frontiers of global economy, the article makes a broader argument about a global turn toward techno-political systems of capital accumulation and state power. Specifically, it considers the roles that dataveillance and legal frames of exclusion play in the rise of what I name terror capitalism—an ethno-racialized system of data and labor expropriation and social control that operates under the sign of the "terrorist." It shows how such a system can generate capital by holding targeted groups in place through biometric and social surveillance, producing forms of self-discipline and unfree labor for private manufacturers.

This discussion will be moderated by Cornell faculty Eric Tagliocozzo, John Stambaugh Professor of History and Esra Akcan, Michael A. McCarthy Professor of Architectural Theory

The Crisis in Xinjiang: What's Happening Now and What Does it Mean? James Millward, Visiting Scholar, APARC, Stanford University; Professor of Inter-societal History, Walsh School of Foreign Service, Georgetown University. Wednesday, February 2, 4:30 - 5:45 p.m. PT.
https://stanford.zoom.us/webinar/register/WN_tGgKJzkvSm2r3hKfeAx6SQ
Description -- Policies implemented by the CCP in Xinjiang since c. 2016 have become a central issue in PRC international relations, leading to international determinations that those policies constitute genocide; scrutiny of global supply chains for Xinjiang cotton, textiles and polysilicon; US sanctions on companies and individuals and Congressional inquiries directed at Airbnb and other multinationals operating in Xinjiang; and diplomatic boycotts of the Olympics. The assimilationist policies, if most extreme in Xinjiang, are related to the broader Zhonghua-izing campaign against religion and non-Mandarin language and perhaps even to intensified control over Hong Kong and efforts to intimidate Taiwan—an aggressive intolerance of cultural and political diversity that is emerging as a central feature of Xi Jinping's tenure. This talk will review the Xinjiang crisis to date and suggest how we should understand these events and trends. --Presented by the APARC China Program.

Today, I attended the #Uyghur Canadian Islamic & Cultural Centre grand opening in Troy, Ontario.
Beside me is Kamila Talendibaeva, #HuseiynCelil's wife.
My thoughts are with Mr Celil, who has been jailed in China for more than 15 years.
Hoping for Mr Celil's release soon.

Gender and Genocide in the 21st Century
This two day conference (September 20-21, [2021]) convenes legal, gender, and genocide experts from around the world to discuss the four recent and/or ongoing asserted genocides of the Uyghurs, Rohingya, Yazidis, and Tigrayans. Our panels of experts will examine State responses to genocide, challenges to justice for gendered crimes during conflict or genocide, and how the crime of genocide itself is gendered.

USCIRF & TLHRC Hearing: Ending Genocide: Accountability for Perpetrators. Jul 28, 2021 10:30 AM in Eastern Time (US and Canada)
https://www.zoomgov.com/webinar/register/WN_WOmlqy94QFGu2iCGL-eHfg
Please join the U.S. Commission on International Religious Freedom (USCIRF) and the Tom Lantos Human Rights Commission (TLHRC) for a joint virtual hearing on how perpetrators of mass atrocities can be held accountable for international crimes, including genocide, committed against religious communities.
Despite the 1948 Genocide Convention and declarations of "never again", perpetrators around the world continue to commit genocide, including against religious communities with impunity. Holding perpetrators accountable for their crimes is imperative for deterrence and is a key element in providing justice to the victims of these crimes. While States have the primary obligation under international law to criminally prosecute those responsible for mass atrocity crimes, international and hybrid courts can help close the accountability gap.

Several religious communities targeted by genocide in recent years continue to raise their voices for justice. Witnesses will discuss how the U.S. government and the international community can identify and support opportunities to hold perpetrators of mass atrocities accountable.
Opening Remarks
• Rep. James McGovern, D-MA, Co-Chair, TLHRC
• Rep. Chris Smith, R-NJ, Co-Chair, TLHRC
• Nadine Maenza, Chair, USCIRF
• Nury Turkel, Vice Chair, USCIRF
Panel I
• Jonathan Agar, Legal Officer, United Nations Investigative Team to Promote Accountability for Crimes Committed by Da'esh / ISIL (UNITAD)
Panel II
• Stephen Rapp, former Ambassador, Office of Global Criminal Justice, U.S. Department of State
• Carmen Cheung, Executive Director, Center for Justice and Accountability
• Alim Seytoff, Director, Uyghur Service, Radio Free Asia
• M. Arsalan Suleman, former Acting Special Envoy to the Organization of Islamic Cooperation, U.S. Department of State

Gendering the Uyghur Genocide
Description: In March, Newlines published its groundbreaking Uyghur Genocide Report that found China in breach of the 1948 Genocide Convention. While parliaments, policymakers, and world leaders have been debating this issue, many conversations are missing the critical element of a gendered analysis of genocide. Our panel of gender and legal experts will discuss how genocide is a gendered crime, examine the genocide being perpetrated against the Uyghurs, and weigh in on how the U.S. and other countries can hold China accountable.

China's Uyghur Proof-of-Life Videos: A tool of intimidation and violation of Uyghur family unity. Tue, Mar 2, 2021 12:00 PM - 1:30 PM EST.
https://register.gotowebinar.com/register/2584784024812088080
Join the Uyghur Human Rights Project for a discussion of our most recent report, "The Government Never Oppresses Us": China's proof-of-life videos as intimidation and a violation of Uyghur family unity. The report analyzes the phenomenon of the family members of overseas Uyghurs appearing in state-produced videos denying human rights abuses in the region and calling on their relatives to cease speaking out. These videos serve as a tool of misinformation, intimidation, and fear directed at the overseas Uyghur community.
Speakers include: Emily Upson, Author, "The Government Never Oppresses Us"; Ferkat Jawdat, Uyghur Activist; William Nee, Research & Advocacy Coordinator, Chinese Human Rights Defenders (CHRD).

The role of media in reporting on China's persecution of the Uyghurs
The European Foundation for Democracy cordially invites you to an online discussion with: Dolkun Isa, President of the World Uyghur Congress and Vice-President of UNPO; Nevşin Mengü, Turkish Journalist; Giulia Pompili, Journalist, Asia-Pacific Desk, Il Foglio. Jan 28, 2021 04:00 PM in Brussels. https://us02web.zoom.us/webinar/register/WN_xGQi8UO3SU-h1wkmkxmdDg
As the world is still caught-up in the Coronavirus pandemic, China's repressive policies and persecution of the Uyghurs continue in silence. Torture, forced labour, sterilisation of Uyghur women are all taking place on a day-to-day basis in the Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region in China. Free and independent media plays a crucial role in denouncing and raising awareness on the gross violations of universal human rights being perpetrated against the Uyghurs by the Chinese Communist Party. This webinar explores how independent quality media can serve as remedy against the ongoing persecution of the Uyghurs by providing a comprehensive and objective outlook on the situation.

Seminarium om uigurernas situation i Kina, arrangerat av Svenska PEN. Svenska PEN. Dec 11, 2020. https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=MLtILlgzhMM
Med anledning av att Svenska PEN publicerade rapporten, Writing against oblivion – Culture and Language as Means of Oppression and of Resilience in the Xinjiang Region, som belyser situationen i den västra regionen Xinjiang där miljontals människor, däribland uigurer, kazaker och andra muslimska minoriteter, fallit offer för en storskalig assimileringspolitik, hölls ett seminarium på Bonniers Konsthall. Medverkade gjorde författaren Per Wirtén, rapportförfattaren Elin Alfredsson Malmros, den i Sverige bosatta uiguriska poeten Abdushukur Muhemmet och Sveriges Radios Kinaexpert Hanna Sahlberg. Gert Lundstedt läste uigurisk poesi.

Språk som förtryck och motstånd - situationen för uigurska författare i Kina. Svenska PEN, live December 10 at 8:58 AM. https://www.facebook.com/svenskapen/videos/1284408861912058/
Efter decennier av förtryck från kinesiska myndigheter riskerar uigurernas språk, kultur och identitet att utplånas helt. I en färsk rapport från Svenska PEN vittnar fem uiguriska författare i exil om förföljelser, arresteringar och fängläger där det enda brottet är att de utövat sin mänskliga rättighet att uttrycka sig fritt på sitt eget språk.
Svenska PEN välkomnar en av de intervjuade uiguriska författarna, Abdushukur Muhammet, som sedan länge är verksam i Sverige, till ett samtal med Elin Alfredsson Malmros, statsvetare och författare till PEN-rapporten "Writing Against Oblivion: Culture and Language as Means of Oppression and Resilience in the Xinjiang region" samt sinologen Fredrik Fällman från Göteborgs universitet. Moderator är Marit Kapla, journalist, författare och styrelseledamot i Svenska PEN.

https://www.gfbv.ch/de/aktiv-helfen/veranstaltungen/china-sayragul-sauytbay/
Vor einem Jahr bewiesen die „China Cables" die Existenz der Zwangslager in Ostturkestan (chin. Xinjiang). Seither häufen sich alarmierende Berichte über die Situation der Minderheiten in Ostturkestan: Mindestens eine Million Uigurinnen und Uiguren werden in Lagern festgehalten und Zehntausende zur Arbeit in Zuliefer-Fabriken von internationalen Markenfirmen gezwungen. So ergab eine Recherche der New York Times, dass zahlreiche chinesische Schutzmasken-Hersteller auf Zwangsarbeit setzen.
Die Kasachin Sayragul Sauytbay war Gefangene eines chinesischen Zwangslagers in Ostturkestan. Die ehemalige Staatsbeamtin wurde Zeugin, wie unschuldige Menschen misshandelt, gefoltert und zur Arbeit gezwungen wurden. Seit ihrer Flucht erachtet sie es als ihre Aufgabe, aus ihrer Insider-Perspektive über die Zwangslager zu berichten, zum Beispiel im Buch „Die Kronzeugin", das sie gemeinsam mit der Journalistin Alexandra Cavelius verfasst hat. Am Online-Podium mit der GfbV spricht Sayragul Sauytbay über die Menschenrechtslage in Ostturkestan, die Verantwortung der Schweiz sowie über die Handlungsmöglichkeiten der internationalen Staatengemeinschaft.

Forced Labour Fashion: How the Uyghur Crisis Taints our Clothes.
To mark the International Day for the Abolition of Slavery, we hosted a special panel discussion on one of the most serious modern slavery crises of our time. Freedom United, Premiered Dec 3, 2020. https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=QGSEbweWqTk
A special panel discussion on one of the most serious modern slavery crises of our time will mark the International Day for the Abolition of Slavery on December 2.
Hundreds of thousands of Uyghurs and other Turkic and Muslim people in China are trapped in a system of 're-education' as part of the biggest detention of an ethno-religious group since World War II.
The event will focus in particular on how this crisis links to the global fashion industry, which sources vast quantities of yarn and cotton produced through what are essentially state-sponsored forced labor programs.
Panelists include: Jewher Ilham, Program Associate at the Worker Rights Consortium and daughter of imprisoned Uyghur scholar Ilham Tohti; Rahima Mahmut, Uyghur activist and UK project director at our partner organization World Uyghur Congress; Raphaël Glucksmann MEP, journalist, director, and a prominent voice on the Uyghur crisis in the European Parliament; Chloe Cranston, Business and Human Rights Manager at our partner organization Anti-Slavery International.

The Persecution of the Uighur Muslims in China – Where to Go From Now?
by The Coalition for Genocide Response. The All Party Parliamentary Group on Uyghurs and the Coalition for Genocide Response would like to invite you to a webinar:
"The Persecution of the Uighur Muslims in China – Where to Go From Now?"
16 November 2020 at 4 PM (GMT). Zoom Webinar (Side event to the Ministerial on FoRB)
Over the recent months, more and more evidence has been coming to light about the atrocities against the Uyghur Muslims in China, including of arbitrary detention of over 1 million Uyghur Muslims, killings in detention, torture and inhuman treatment of detainees, the forced separation of children from their parents, forced sterilisation, forced labour, forced organ harvesting, enforced disappearances and much more. Considering the powerful position of China in the world order, including at the UN Security Council, it is unlikely that decisive actions will follow to address the crimes. However, this does not mean that there are no options. The speakers will consider what are the options that can and should be taken in the case.
Speakers include:
Alistair Carmichael MP, Member of the UK House of Commons, Co-chair of the APPG on Uyghurs
Lord Alton of Liverpool, Peer at the UK House of Lords, Patron of the Coalition for Genocide Response
Sir Geoffrey Nice QC, British barrister

Nury A. Turkel, US-educated Uyghur-American lawyer, USCIRF Commissioner
Erin Farrell Rosenberg, Senior Advisor, Ferencz International Justice Initiative at the US Holocaust Memorial Museum's Simon-Skjodt Center for the Prevention of Genocide

Modern technologies enable new ways of monitoring and tracking minorities – a whole new level of mass surveillance. The extent of this is probably nowhere more evident than in the Chinese province of Xinjiang. Massive amounts of private data are collected from facial recognition cameras and mobile apps to target Muslim Uighurs. Already in 2017, BuzzFeed News reporter Megha Rajagopalan wrote an article on how the Chinese government turned Xinjiang into a police state. Two years later the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists (ICIJ), with Bethany Allen-Ebrahimian as lead reporter, published the “China Cables”. They confirmed what was long suspected: the systematic surveillance of the Muslim Uighurs. Reportedly hundreds of thousands of Uighurs have been held in camps. Outside of the camps there seems hardly any chance of walking around unobserved.
How does China use big data and algorithms to arrest Uighurs? What influence does facial recognition have on systematical monitoring? To what extent is the rest of China under surveillance? Where are we heading with the rise of mass surveillance worldwide? Join the public webcast on these issues with Bethany Allen-Ebrahimian and Megha Rajagopalan. Asia Society Members can additionally register for the 30 minutes (virtual) Talk at the Library directly afterwards to ask further questions.
Bethany Allen-Ebrahimian was the lead reporter for ICIJ's China Cables. She is an investigative journalist covering China for Axios from Washington, D.C. Bethany previously worked as a reporter and editor for the Foreign Policy magazine, was a national security reporter for The Daily Beast, and has also published with The Washington Post, The Atlantic, and The New York Times. She has published numerous ground-breaking investigations regarding China's covert funding and political influence in the United States and elsewhere in the world.
Megha Rajagopalan - is an international correspondent (formerly China bureau chief) with BuzzFeed News and Asia 21 Young Leader. She has reported extensively on digital privacy, security, and growing abuses in Xinjiang and reported from China for six years. Most recently Megha has been interviewing over 30 people who were held in camps and prisons in Xinjiang. She was a 2011 Fulbright fellow in Beijing, where she conducted research on the Chinese news media and was previously a research fellow at the New America Foundation in Washington, D.C.

About the Speakers
Elise Anderson, Sr. Program Officer for Research & Advocacy, Uyghur Human Rights Project
Dr. Elise Anderson earned dual PhD degrees in Central Eurasian Studies and Ethnomusicology from Indiana University-Bloomington in August 2019. Her doctoral research, which is based on years of primary research in the Uyghur region, focuses on the relationships between Uyghur music and politics. She is fluent in Uyghur and proficient in Mandarin. In 2019, she served as Liu Xiaobo Fellow at the Congressional-Executive Commission on China, a U.S. federal commission tasked with monitoring the status of human rights and the rule of law in the PRC.

Dru Gladney, Professor & Chair of Anthropology, Pomona College
Dru Gladney specializes in the peoples, cultures and politics along the ancient and modern Silk Road—in particular, issues of globalization and transnationalism in China and its close neighbors. Over the last few years, he has engaged in a large comparative survey of nomadic families in Western China, bolstered by in-depth fieldwork with nomadic Kazakhs in the Altai Mountains bordering China and Mongolia.
Nurnisa Kurban, Board Member, Uyghur LA
Dr. Nurnisa Kurban is an Uyghur American and Board member of Uyghur LA. She is also an assistant principal at Helen Bernstein High School. Her goal is to educate people about Uyghurs and the human rights violations and atrocities that they are facing in China.

"The idea of East Turkistan: a global history in Chinese and Uyghur contexts."
Professor Rian Thum, Loyola University New Orleans. April 7, 2020, at Worcester State University, Blue Lounge. For further inquiries, please email Martin Fromm at mfromm@worcester.edu.
https://networks.h-net.org/node/22055/discussions/5683070/lecture-uyghurs-and-idea-east-turkestan Talk description: When Chinese officials attempt to justify the internment of roughly one million Uyghurs in re-education camps, they often mention the "East Turkistan movement," which they characterize as an organized terrorist project. Mere mention of "East Turkistan" within the Uyghur home region puts the speaker at risk of enforced disappearance. At the same time, influential Uyghur nationalist groups abroad take umbrage at the use of any term other than "East Turkistan" to describe the Chinese administrative unit of Xinjiang, often claiming that the name is an ancient indigenous term. Both of these claims obscure the history of the idea of East Turkistan, which emerged from a conversation that stretched across Central Asia, the Middle East, Europe, and Russia, and unfolded over the course of eight centuries, only taking its current form in the 1930s. This talk shows that the term East Turkistan originated in Enlightenment-era Europe, but also reflected 11th-century political realities in Turkic Central Asia. The talk then outlines the ramifications of the East Turkistan idea in Uyghur and Chinese contexts, in an attempt to clarify political and social forces driving the atrocities in Xinjiang/East Turkistan today.

Panel
Nury Turkel is a U.S.-based Uyghur activist and attorney. Turkel was born in a re-education camp in Kashgar at the height of the Cultural Revolution. He is the former president of the Uyghur American Association, as well as the former executive director of the Uyghur Human Rights Project.
Prof Dibyesh Anand is the Head of the School of Social Sciences at the University of Westminster and Chairperson for Westminster BME Staff Network. He is the author of monographs "Geopolitical Exotica: Tibet in Western Imagination" and "Hindu Nationalism in India and the Politics of Fear" and has spoken about and published on varied topics including Tibet, China-India border dispute, Hindu nationalism and Islamophobia in India, majority-minority relations in Asia, human rights, and the colonial occupation in Kashmir.
Rahima Mahmut is an Uyghur singer, human rights activist, and award-winning translator of Soyungul Chanisheff's poignant prison memoir "The Land Drenched in Tears". Her latest work includes consultant and translator for the ITV documentary "Undercover: Inside China's Digital Gulag"; and translator for the latest BBC documentary "China: A New World Order". She is the UK Project Director for the World Uyghur Congress.

David Ball is founder of the Uyghur Solidarity Campaign and organiser of the monthly Uyghur solidarity protests outside the Chinese Embassy. An active socialist, trade unionist and Labour Party member, he wrote the emergency motion (proposed by Finchley and Golders Green CLP) that was carried overwhelmingly at Labour Party conference 2019 and committed Labour to active, proud and unequivocal support of the Uyghur people's human rights, calling for the Chinese State to end the oppression. He organised the petition campaign for this policy commitment to be carried through into Labour's election manifesto.
Jack Baker is a Sixth Form student, founding member of the One World Movement and co-organiser of the January 2020 "Stand with Hong Kongers, Uyghurs and Tibetans" rally.

Uyghur Poetry in a Time of Crisis
The Yale Department of Comparative Literature
When: Monday, February 10, 2020, 4:00 PM
Where: Linsly-Chittenden Hall 101, 63 High Street, New Haven, CT 06511
Speaker/Performer: Tahir Hamut Izgil
Description: Uyghur poetry emerged from a millennium of Turkic literature in the eastern Islamic world, while Uyghur poetic modernism developed over the last century in dialogue with Russian, Western, and Chinese literature. In recent years, due to unprecedented repression by the Chinese government, many Uyghur poets have disappeared into internment camps while others have fled into exile. One of the leading exile poets, Tahir Hamut, will visit Yale to recite his own work and that of his contemporaries. Joshua Freeman (Princeton Society of Fellows) will provide translation into English. Following the reading, Izgil and Freeman will discuss Uyghur poetry and translation practices with Yale Comparative Literature faculty Sam Hodgkin and Peter Cole.
Sponsor: This event is co-sponsored by Near Eastern Languages and Civilizations; East Asian Languages and Literatures; and at the MacMillan Center, the Council on Middle East Studies; the Council on East Asian Studies; the Translation Initiative; and Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies.
Admission: Free. Contact: Council on Middle East Studies 203-436-2553 cmes@yale.edu

https://www.eventbrite.com/e/panel-discussion-panopticism-with-chinese-characteristics-expanding-prison-registration-80825712883?aff=ebdssbdestsearch
About this Event: Here be violent, tumultuous times. As we enter the third decade of the "Chinese Century," one must recall the comment made by the great poet: "Neo-China arrives from the future." The perceived permanency of the People's Republic of China is maintained by an extensive matrix of digital surveillance systems, optimized for maximum social control. From the great mountains of Tibet to the scorching deserts of East Turkestan to the megalopolises of the Central Plain, the Chinese Communist Party has built the most advanced panopticon in human history. But do not be dispirited by the vision of this dystopian imaginary; for underneath the spectacle of control lies the prospect of a radical reimagining of a new emancipating future. In this discussion, we ask: what is the current state of Chinese digital authoritarianism? What lessons can we draw from past resistances against China? What tactics can we employ against the Chinese Panopticon?

Shining a light on the Uyghur crisis
Wednesday, July 17, 2019, 6:00 - 8:00 pm, United States Institute of Peace, 2301 Constitution Avenue, NW -- Entrance on 23rd Street. Washington, DC 20037. RSVP here: https://www.eventbrite.com/e/irf-roundtable-ministerial-reception-registration-65253956340
Please join other Ministerial participants for an evening reception open to all. The reception is an opportunity for survivors, officials, scholars, religious and secular leaders, advocates, activists and press to come together at the conclusion of the formal civil society meetings of the 2019 Ministerial to Advance Religious Freedom. A brief speakers program will shine a light on the Uyghur crisis of ethno-religious cultural extermination, combining an asphyxiating techno-surveillance police state with a massive archipelago of secret detention camps holding 1-3 million Uyghurs and other Turkic Muslims since early 2017.
Confirmed Speakers:
Sam Brownback, Ambassador-at-Large for International Religious Freedom
Anwar Khan, President, Islamic Relief USA
Greg Mitchell, Co-Chair, IRF Roundtable

Lisa Curtis, Senior Director for Central and South Asia, National Security Council, White House
USCIRF Vice Chair Nadine Maenza
Tom Gallagher, CEO and Publisher, Religion News Service
Dolkun Isa, President, World Uyghur Congress
Omer Kanat, Director, Uyghur Human Rights Project
Master of Ceremonies: Nury Turkel, Board Chair, Uyghur Human Rights Project

https://www.eventbrite.com/e/the-mass-destruction-and-desecration-of-uyghur-mosques-by-china-tickets-64806116840
Thousands of mosques in the Uyghur homeland have been bulldozed since 2016. Satellite photos and witness testimony paint a devastating picture of the Chinese government's assault on Uyghur places of worship in East Turkestan. Please join us for a presentation of stark evidence of the Chinese government's systematic campaign to wipe out not only Uyghur religious devotion, teaching and education but also Uyghur community life and Uyghur identity itself. The Chinese government's bulldozing, closure, and other forms of desecration of sacred spaces proceeds in concert with the wholesale imprisonment of Imams, religious scholars and their families, as well as widely documented mass atrocities against millions of Uyghur men, women and children throughout East Turkestan.

Today i gave the lecture on uyghur issues at Summer School of Global minority right in National University of Public Service in Budapest wich are organized by Nations University of Public Service, Tom Lantos Institute and Middlesex Univesity.

"It has been over 70 years since our namesake, Monsieur René Cassin, said 'never again' to the horrors of the Holocaust, and Raphael Lemkin coined the word 'genocide' to prevent future mass killings. But genocide keeps happening, and there are worrying signs that it may happen again in the far West of China."

Hidden from View: China's Repression of Uyghurs. Gardiner Museum [Toronto, Canada], Tue May 07, 2019 6:30 pm - 8:00 pm.
"Panel moderated by David Mulroney, Distinguished Senior Fellow at the University of Toronto's Munk School of Global Affairs, and featuring Sophie Richardson, China Director at Human Rights Watch, and Mehmet Tohti, a prominent Uyghur rights activist and campaigner, will delve into Human Rights Watch's ongoing research in the area, and the increasingly pervasive controls on daily life that now face Turkic Muslims."

Over the past five years, a growing number of Xinjiang Uighurs have been sent to re-education camps by the Chinese government, most without trials or release dates. Estimates have reached as high as one million detainees. The Chinese government has framed these camps as schools that attack terrorist beliefs and give Uighurs the work and life skills necessary to thrive in a modern economy. It has received very little pressure or public condemnation from its Central Asian neighbors, from Muslim countries, or from its trading partners in the developed world. This human rights crisis raises questions central to the role and practice of diplomacy. What justification is there for bringing foreign diplomatic pressure to bear on issues that a country defines as central to its identity and existence? What do we know about the success of different types of advocacy, whether through diplomatic channels, pressure from international organizations, or NGO-led protest? To what extent does the crisis in Xinjiang affect the stability of Central Asia, or the fate of separatist movements in Tibet, Hong Kong, and Taiwan?

Says that: "This is the twenty-first century rope that capitalists will sell to hang themselves. And it ought to be a lesson to companies like Google, which is performing cutting-edge AI research in China and contemplating even greater investment in that country. ... Additionally, we must stop our own companies from helping China build this new Evil Empire. Companies like Thermo Fisher Scientific, which sells the DNA sequencers China uses to build genetic dossiers on its ethnic minorities."

Understanding the Uighur Situation in Xinjiang. The Henry Jackson Society [London], Jan 10, 2019 House of Lords, Committee Room 4, Westminster, London SW1A 0AA, United Kingdom
We invite you to join the panel discussion about the Uighur situation in Xinjiang
About this Event - In August of last year, human rights experts in the UN called on the People's Republic of China (PRC) to release the nearly one-million Uighurs that have been interned in re-education camps, under the pretext of countering terrorism. The historic parallels of detentions based on religious identity in the 20th century are obvious. And yet, rather than attempt to ameliorate the damage to its reputation by stopping or slowing the arrests, Beijing has continued to expand the facilities for more prisoners and attempted to re-brand them as "labour training" camps. The province of Xinjiang – far in the West of China – has a significance for all of us. This approach toward detentions and extra-legal measures could reflect the Chinese approach toward power more generally, and what kind of order Beijing may seek to build. China's utilization of technology and media highlights the dangers of authoritarian states using both to create a surveillance society - an Orwellian techno-nightmare as it were. Finally, while some Western media has reported on the Uighur situation, far fewer global media outlets than would be expected to comment have done so – particularly in the Muslim world – leading to fears that the PRC's propensity to link economic ties to political quiescence may be having a chilling effect on discussion of human rights issues. - The Henry Jackson Society is pleased to invite you to join the panel discussion in which Benedict Rogers, Rosie Blau, Dr. Enver Tohti and Rahima Mahmut will discuss the Uighur situation in Xinjiang. SPEAKERS: Benedict Rogers, Christian Solidarity Worldwide; Rosie Blau, The Economist; Dr. Enver Tohti, Exiled Medical Doctor from Urumqi; Rahima Mahmut, Singer, translator and human rights activist. CHAIR: Lord Hannay of Chiswick. https://www.eventbrite.co.uk/e/understanding-the-uighur-situation-in-xinjiang-tickets-53865682707

--In the Chinese region of Xinjiang, tens of thousands of ethnic Uyghurs and other Muslim minorities have been detained inside enormous extrajudicial 're-education camps'.
China claims the region faces a serious threat from Islamist militants and separatists, stirring up tensions between the mostly Muslim Uyghur minority and the ethnic Han majority. After months of denial, the Chinese government now claims these camps are benign vocational training centers, but many outside observers assert that they are little more than prisons where detainees are subjected to political and cultural indoctrination without legal recourse. As more allegations come to light about the treatment of Uyghurs and other ethnic minorities, China faces mounting pressure from international human rights groups, governments, and academics to provide access to these camps and put an end to any coercive and illegal practices. Speaking at this important panel on Uyghurs in China and how the world should react are: Nury A Turkel (Uyghur Human Rights Project); James Leibold (Associate Professor, Politics and Philosophy, La Trobe University); Louisa Greve (Uyghur Human Rights Project); Euan Graham (Executive Director, La Trobe Asia) (chair).

China's Xinjiang detentions. 05 Dec 2018, Wednesday. START: 06:00 PM - END: 7:00 PM

WHERE: Lowy Institute, Level 3, 1 Bligh Street, Sydney NSW, Australia 2000
https://myaccount.lowyinstitute.org/events/chinas-xinjiang-detentions
--China is holding hundreds of thousands of Uighurs in detention camps in Xinjiang, western China, in what appears to be a systematic targeting of an entire ethnic and religious group in the name of national security. After first denying their existence, China now claims the camps are vocational centres designed to combat extremism. The Uighur community, however, tell a different story – of detainees being forced to denounce their Islamic faith and swear allegiance to the communist party. The Lowy Institute's Richard McGregor will host a discussion of the situation in Xinjiang, and how the scale of the camps was uncovered. The panel will feature Nury Turkel, the Washington-based chair of the Uighur Human Rights Project, Dr Mamtimin Ala, President of the Australian Uighur Association, David Brophy, of Sydney University, and Lowy Institute researcher Kelsey Munro.

--This talk will focus on the central role that natural resources played in shaping Chinese state power and authority in China's far western province of Xinjiang. Based on my recently published book, Natural Resources and the New Frontier: Constructing Modern China's Borderlands, my talk will highlight the often overlooked role played by an assortment of Chinese and Soviet state agents, as well as a wide variety of non-state actors, each of whom seeking to stake their own claim to Xinjiang's lucrative natural resources. Their combined efforts to gain access to the region's gold, wool, petroleum, and rare minerals served to construct the foundations of Chinese state power and authority in this distant border region.

UK Parliamentary Roundtable on Xinjiang. 3 July 2018
https://www.rights-practice.org/news/parliamentary-roundtable-on-xinjiang
On 3 July 2018, The Rights Practice helped to organise a Parliamentary Round-table on increased repression and forced assimilation in Xinjiang, China. The All-Party Parliamentary Human Rights Group invited parliamentarians to the round-table, in which Nicola Macbean, Executive Director of The Rights Practice, gave opening remarks on the gross human rights violations taking place in Xinjiang and the implications this has for everyone involved in China.
Dr. Rachel Harris, SOAS, University of London, spoke on the Chinese government policy towards Uyghur culture in Xinjiang, one of the most heavily policed areas in the world, and described the widening of the anti-extremism campaign. Dr. Adrian Zenz, European School of Culture and Theology, Germany, outlined the evidence of a large scale and sophisticated political re-education network designed to detain people for long periods of time and which the Chinese government officially denies. This was followed by a moving personal testimony given by Rahima Mahmut, Uyghur singer and human rights activist, about the violations suffered by the Uyghur community, they fear mass detention and ill treatment. The exiled Uyghur community have been unable to contact family members for over a year.
The roundtable was chaired by Catherine West MP and attended by other parliamentarians, NGOs, academics and members of the Uyghur community. It ended with a discussion about how the international community should respond and the action that needs to take place.

Digital Genocide: The New Battlefield for Uyghur Security and Cultural Survival. By Luca Alexander Pellegrini. September 12, 2025. https://uyghurstudy.org/digital-genocide-the-new-battlefield-for-uyghur-security-and-cultural-survival/

"Websites, forums, and archives created by Uyghurs are being banned, blocked and totally removed. The Chinese authorities deploy advanced censorship, hacking, blocking, and disinformation tactics to erase Uyghur digital footprints, ban their languages online, and monitor dissident activity via artificial intelligence and mass surveillance infrastructure. In a chilling inversion, connectivity becomes a vector of vulnerability instead of a shield.

This unprecedented digital erasure signals a new era: persecuted peoples are now targeted not only by physical violence but through the manipulation and destruction of information. Modern regimes and authoritarian governments understand that deleting records, severing communication, and re-engineering online narratives are as effective in wiping out a people's legacy as physical destruction. Erasing the Uyghurs' online memory, a vital repository for evidence, family contact, and collective resilience, constitutes a new form of cultural genocide."

Geedge & MESA Leak: Analyzing the Great Firewall's Largest Document Leak.
Mingshi Wu, The Great Firewall Report. Friday, September 12, 2025.
https://gfw.report/blog/geedge_and_mesa_leak/en/

"The Great Firewall of China (GFW) experienced the largest leak of internal documents in its history on Thursday September 11, 2025. Over 500 GB of source code, work logs, and internal communication records were leaked, revealing details of the GFW's research, development, and operations.

The leak originated from a core technical force behind the GFW: Geedge Networks (whose chief scientist is Fang Binxing) and the MESA Lab at the Institute of Information Engineering, Chinese Academy of Sciences. The documents show that the company not only provides services to governments in places like Xinjiang, Jiangsu, and Fujian, but also exports censorship and surveillance technology to countries such as Myanmar, Pakistan, Ethiopia, Kazakhstan, and other unidentified country under the "Belt and Road" framework."

Two Major Leaks Illuminate Censorship and Surveillance Sales Into and From China. Posted by Samuel Wade, China Digital Times (CDT), Sep 9, 2025.
https://chinadigitaltimes.net/2025/09/two-major-leaks-illuminate-censorship-and-surveillance-sales-into-and-from-china/

New reporting on two large collections of leaked documents sheds light on the trade of surveillance and censorship technology into and out of China. One, by Dake Kang and Yael Grauer for the Associated Press, builds on an initial collection of thousands of documents leaked from Chinese surveillance company Landasoft to demonstrate how "partnership between American firms and the Chinese police laid the groundwork for China's digital surveillance state as it exists today — the largest and most sophisticated on earth." The other, by a consortium including Amnesty International and The Globe and Mail, focuses on Geedge Networks, a Chinese technology firm co-founded by "Father of the Great Firewall" Fang Binxing, and its sales of censorship and surveillance systems.

"In 2005, the United Nations agreed to a new framework called Responsibility to Protect (R2P) aimed at preventing genocide and crimes against humanity. However, this norm neglected to protect cultural heritage explicitly, despite the fact that the destruction of cultural heritage, including intangible heritage such as traditions and religious practices, often goes hand in hand with ethnic cleansing. This dynamic is playing out today in Xinjiang China, home to the ethnic minority Uyghur people. -- In this episode, former Getty President Jim Cuno speaks with Simon Adams, president and CEO of the Center for Victims of Torture, and Rachel Harris, expert on Uyghur culture and professor of ethnomusicology at SOAS, University of London, about the role of the UN in protecting cultural heritage in times of crisis and the current case of the Uyghur people in China. LeBron Gives Chinese Basketball A Boost. Posted by Arthur Kaufman. China Digital Times (CDT), Sep 11, 2025. https://chinadigitaltimes.net/2025/09/lebron-gives-chinese-basketball-a-boost/
Monday's edition of the People's Daily included a letter in the sports section that appeared to have been written by American basketball star Lebron James. Multiple news outlets initially reported that James had authored the piece, but closer examination revealed that a People's Daily reporter had actually edited and assembled the piece based on comments from group interviews James gave to several journalists while in China. This public relations coup has drawn attention to the rehabilitation of the NBA in China, the growing popularity of basketball in the country, and the ways in which the sport is being used to improve U.S.-China relations, exploit Chinese markets, and shape young male audiences.
... Underpinning James' longstanding interest in China is also in part its massive market. As Stu Woo reported for The Wall Street Journal last week, James and NBA rival Stephen Curry are competing for lucrative brand recognition in China.

So just be careful what we tweet and what we say, and what we do." -- "After more than a dozen trips to China, what has LeBron James learned about the Chinese Communist Party? Major brands skirting Uyghur Forced Labor Prevention Act via China-Vietnam supply chains. September 10, 2025 5:53 PM. https://www.uygurnews.com/major-brands-skirting-uyghur-forced-labor-prevention-act-via-china-vietnam-supply-chains/
"A new investigation has raised fresh concerns that major US and European footwear brands, including Vans, The North Face, Timberland, Skechers, Guess, and Tommy Hilfiger, may be indirectly linked to Uyghur forced labour in China despite international laws designed to prevent it.
According to findings by the Bureau of Investigative Journalism (TBIJ) in partnership with the Pulitzer Center, Uyghurs, Kazakhs, and Kyrgyz workers have been transferred under coercion from East Turkistan to shoe factories in China's Fujian province. The region's city of Jinjiang alone produces one in every five pairs of trainers worldwide.
One facility, Baoshu Shoes, has supplied Skechers, Guess, and Tommy Hilfiger. Another, Sunshine Footwear – operated by Taiwan's Fulgent Sun Group – has produced for Nike, Vans, La Sportiva, and Jack Wolfskin. Chinese state media has openly documented Sunshine's cooperation with labour transfer schemes for over a decade."

Silicon Valley enabled brutal mass detention and surveillance in China, internal documents show. By Dake Kang and Yael Grauer. AP. Updated 1:05 AM EDT, September 9, 2025.

https://apnews.com/article/chinese-surveillance-silicon-valley-uyghurs-tech-xinjiang-8e000601dadb6aea230f18170ed54e88
"Critically, American surveillance technologies allowed a brutal mass detention campaign in the far west region of Xinjiang — targeting, tracking and grading virtually the entire native Uyghur population to forcibly assimilate and subdue them.
U.S. companies did this by bringing "predictive policing" to China — technology that sucks in and analyzes data to prevent crime, protests, or terror attacks before they happen. Such systems mine a vast array of information — texts, calls, payments, flights, video, DNA swabs, mail deliveries, the internet, even water and power use — to unearth individuals deemed suspicious and predict their behavior. But they also allow Chinese police to threaten friends and family and preemptively detain people for crimes they have not even committed.
"Xinjiang police and data systems were… running on American technology including IBM, Cisco, Oracle, and Microsoft" … "Oracle, Microsoft, Intel ... along with Esri, Seagate, Western Digital, Nvidia, Thermo Fisher, and VMWare, then owned by Dell, which advertised cooperation with Xinjiang authorities on its website."

On the solemn 30th anniversary of the Srebrenica Genocide, the Center for Uyghur Studies (CUS) and Campaign for Uyghurs (CFU) convened an international conference in Sarajevo to honor the victims of 1995 genocide in Srebrenica and to sound the alarm on the ongoing Uyghur Genocide in East Turkistan. Keynote remarks were delivered by prominent Bosnian MPs Mehmudović and Adi Kalem, followed by a moving testimony from Ms. Kalbinur Sidik, an Uyghur witness of China's concentration camps, who recounted the immense suffering she witnessed under this brutal system of repression. The panel was moderated by Rushan Abbas, Executive Director of Campaign for Uyghurs. Distinguished speakers included Marco Respinti (Italy), Gjergji Thanasi (Albania), Abdulhakim Idris (USA), Abdujelil Turan (Türkiye), and Muhammed Emin Uygur (Türkiye).

Indonesia Deepens Ties With Xinjiang Despite Human Rights Concerns. China & Global South, August 27, 2025. https://chinaglobalsouth.com/analysis/indonesia-xinjiang-trade-human-rights/
"When the Indonesian Chamber of Commerce and Industry (Kadin) opened its doors to Xinjiang’s state-linked conglomerates this month, the event was billed as a milestone in deepening trade ties. Executives from Jakarta and Urumqi spoke glowingly of “mutual respect” and “resilient supply chains.” The Chinese ambassador in Jakarta, Wang Lutong, highlighted that bilateral trade had surged to nearly $63 billion in the first five months of 2025. And, as if to underscore the cultural affinity between the world’s largest Muslim-majority nation and China’s far-western region, officials spoke of shared Islamic traditions and the promise of halal food cooperation.
The latest flurry of cooperation agreements—including a memorandum between Universitas Al Azhar Indonesia and Tarim University in Xinjiang—are not merely educational exchanges or investment deals. They are part of Beijing’s sophisticated campaign to rebrand Xinjiang internationally, particularly to Muslim-majority nations wary of Western narratives of human rights abuses."

On August 24, 1949, the leadership of the independent East Turkistan Republic was summoned to the Soviet Union under the pretense of negotiations. Three days later, on August 27, 1949, they were treacherously assassinated. Foreign Minister Ahmetjan Qasimi, Interior Minister Abdukerim Abbasov, Defense Minister and Commander of the East Turkistan National Army Iskhakbek Mononov, Deputy Defense Minister Dalelkhan Sugurbaev, and their staff, totaling fourteen individuals, were assassinated for refusing to surrender East Turkistan’s sovereignty and independence. Their assassination, concealed beneath the false narrative of a “plane crash,” was a calculated act by the Soviet Union, in collaboration with the Chinese Communist Party, to decapitate the Republic’s leadership, disable its army, and prevent any effective resistance to the planned Chinese Communist invasion of East Turkistan.
This crime permanently discredits Beijing’s narrative that East Turkistan “voluntarily joined” the People’s Republic of China. The East Turkistan Republic never renounced its sovereignty, never consented to annexation, and never surrendered its independence. Our sovereignty was violently suppressed and held captive through assassination, betrayal, and foreign occupation, not by the will of our people. Seventy-six years later, the East Turkistan Government-in-Exile reaffirms its unwavering resolve to restore the sovereignty and full independence of East Turkistan.

On August 18, the US Department of Labor announced the addition of five sectors to the Uyghur Forced Labor Prevention Act. The Entity List, which identifies foreign enterprises barred from importing goods made with forced labor, was also updated. The report notes that China is the world's leading producer of caustic soda and jujubes, which appear on the department's List of Goods Produced by Child Labor or Forced Labor. In total, that list includes 31 goods from China – more than any other nation – with 21 tied to forced labor in the Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region.

The initial sectors were: Apparel; Cotton and cotton products; Silica-based products (including polysilicon); Tomatoes and downstream products
In 2024, the following were added: Aluminum; Polyvinyl chloride (PVC); Seafood
The updated 2025 UFLPA enforcement strategy added the following sectors: Steel; Lithium; Copper; Caustic soda; Jujubes (red dates)

Justice For All's Save Uyghur Campaign Calls for U.S. Investigation into Entry of Former Chinese Official Linked to Uyghur Genocide. August 13, 2025.
https://www.saveuighur.org/justice-for-alls-save-uyghur-campaign-calls-for-u-s-investigation-into-entry-of-former-chinese-official-linked-to-uyghur-genocide/
"Justice For All's Save Uyghur Campaign has submitted a formal memorandum to the U.S. Department of State, with a copy to the Congressional-Executive Commission on China, urging a full investigation into how former Chinese official Xuan Guojun was able to enter and reside in the United States despite existing sanctions targeting perpetrators of the Uyghur genocide. … Despite this record, Xuan was recently arrested in Arcadia, California, alongside his wife, after their two-month-old infant was hospitalized with a severe head injury. Law enforcement discovered 21 children in their care, prompting an FBI investigation into allegations of abuse, surrogacy-related misconduct, and possible child trafficking or organ harvesting. The couple's business, Mark Surrogacy Investments LLC, is also under federal scrutiny."

Congress: Pass the Uyghur Policy Act. The Uyghur Policy Act was introduced in the U.S. House by Representatives (H.R. 2635) by Reps. Young Kim (R-CA) and Ami Bera (D-CA) and the U.S. Senate (S. 1542) by Senator John Curtis (R-UT). [August, 2025] https://actionnetwork.org/letters/uyghur-policy-act/
The Uyghur Policy Act would:
- Coordinate U.S. government action by designating the Secretary of State to oversee Uyghur human rights-related policies and programs that preserve Uyghurs' ethnic, religious, cultural, and linguistic identities.
- Empower human rights advocates working on behalf of Uyghurs and minorities persecuted by the Chinese government.
- Pressure the Chinese government to end its crackdowns against Uyghurs by increasing accountability to human rights organizations and developing a strategy to close detention facilities and political reeducation camps.
- Support the Uyghur Diaspora by addressing transnational repression and creating reporting mechanisms for Uyghur victims.

U.S. lawmakers are calling for the Department of State to take immediate action and utilize its Rewards for Justice (RFJ) program to investigate China's organ trafficking industry, while The Stop Forced Organ Harvesting Act (H.R. 1503) awaits the Senate. Given the scale of China's forced organ harvesting industry we agree that this should be deemed a "crime against humanity" needing urgent action. @DrNealDunnFL2 @RepMoolenaar

In a small classroom in western China, children once learned to sing and count in the language of their ancestors — Uyghur. Then the doors were locked, and founder Abduweli Ayup went from teacher to enemy of the state. ERASED is a four-part investigation into how China is wiping Uyghur culture from existence — one law, one app, one person, one website at a time. From shuttered schools to vanishing websites, ERASED uncovers an authoritarian regime's campaign to delete a culture — and the unlikely rebels racing to stop it.

The East Turkistan Government-in-Exile categorically rejects the false claims in the PRC's propaganda film "Zuo Zongtang Recovers Xinjiang." East Turkistan has never been part of China. Our sovereign nation was invaded by the foreign Manchu Qing Empire in 1878 under the command of Zuo Zongtang, a Qing imperial officer engaged in colonial expansion, and was unilaterally renamed "Xinjiang" ("colony/new territory") in 1884.

Historical Chinese records from the Han, Tang, Song, Ming, and early Qing dynasties identified East Turkistan and other regions beyond China's frontier at the Jiayu Pass, the westernmost limit of Chinese territory, as "Xiyu (西域, "Western Regions/Western Realms")" or "Wài Guó (外国, "foreign country"), " clearly recognizing them as outside Chinese sovereign domain. The Han-era "Protectorate of the Western Regions" was merely a coerced, temporary, geographically limited foreign presence in some parts of East Turkistan. This arrangement, comparable to China's modern military base in Djibouti, Russia's base in Syria, or U.S. bases in Japan, South Korea, and Germany, was a foreign military foothold that never constituted sovereignty.
Since the Qing occupation in 1878, East Turkistan restored its independence twice as the East Turkistan Republic in the 20th century before the PRC's military invasion and subsequent occupation in late 1949. The present PRC occupation is the continuation of foreign colonial domination, aimed at erasing our national identity and existence through demographic change, political repression, cultural destruction, and genocide. The only foreign forces in East Turkistan are Chinese occupation forces.

Smith, Cochair, Congressional-Executive Commission on China, July 31, 2025. https://www.cecc.gov/media-center/press-releases/chairs-introduce-landmark-uyghur-genocide-accountability-and-sanctions
Washington, D.C. – Senator Dan Sullivan (R-AK) and Representative Chris Smith (R-NJ), the Chair and Co-Chair of the Congressional-Executive Commission on China (CECC), today introduced the Uyghur Genocide Accountability and Sanctions Act of 2025, a comprehensive, bipartisan bill to address the People's Republic of China's (PRC) atrocities targeting the Uyghurs and other Turkic peoples. They were joined by fellow Commissioners Senator Jeff Merkley (D-OR) and Representative Tom Suozzi (D-NY) in introducing this legislation. Representative John Moolenaar (R-MI), the Chair of the House Select Committee on the Chinese Communist Party, also joined in cosponsoring the legislation.
The legislation expands existing sanctions authorities, imposes mandatory visa bans, restricts U.S. government contracts linked to forced labor, and provides assistance to survivors of torture, forced sterilization, rape, and arbitrary detention. It also directs U.S. agencies to preserve cultural heritage threatened by PRC policies, counters disinformation denying the genocide, and bars the sale and purchase of Chinese seafood products in Defense Department facilities due to their ties to Uyghur and North Korean forced labor.

China has recently organised another large-scale international event to cover up the ongoing ethnic genocide crimes in East Turkistan, with the International Folk Music Festival beginning on July 20th in Urumqi. According to related news from the Chinese propaganda outlet called "Xinjiang Daily," the 7th so-called "Xinjiang International Folk Music Festival," jointly organized by China's Ministry of Culture and Tourism, the State Council Information Office, and the so-called "Uyghur Autonomous Regional Government," began on July 20th at the People's Palace in Urumqi.
At the opening ceremony, Deputy Minister of China's Ministry of Culture and Tourism Gao Zheng, the newly replaced Secretary of the so-called "Uyghur Autonomous Regional Party Committee" Chen Xiaojiang, and puppet leader Erkin Tuniyaz, among others, gave speeches. Erkin Tuniyaz mentioned that the International Folk Music Festival has showcased the so-called "Xinjiang image" to the world since it was first held in 2008 and has become a "business card that tells the China story well," which more clearly demonstrates that this event is actually China's false propaganda campaign. Washington, DC -- On Monday, July 21, 2025, a Congressional Briefing on Captive Nations was convened in the Rayburn House Office Building of the U.S. Congress to commemorate #CaptiveNationsWeek 2025, established under Public Law 86-90, the Captive Nations Resolution. The event gathered representatives from East Turkistan, Tibet, Southern Mongolia, US national security experts, and Congressional staff to address the ongoing occupation, repression, and erasure endured by these nations. Enacted in 1959, the Captive Nations Resolution (Public Law 86-90) identifies nations subjugated by communist imperialism, calling for US support to restore their liberty and independence. It explicitly mentions captive nations, such as Turkistan and Tibet, urging support for their liberation and the right to self-determination.

Salih Hudayar, Minister of Foreign Affairs and Security for the East Turkistan Government in Exile, delivered a compelling keynote address, stating, "East Turkistan was explicitly named in the 1959 Captive Nations Resolution, not as part of China, but as a nation subjugated by Communist imperialism." He added, "That law remains in force. And tragically, so too does our captivity." ...

Op-Ed: China's "New Uyghurs": Cultural Erasure Disguised as Celebration. By Tahir Imin Uyghurian, Uyghur Times, 18 July 2025. https://uyghurtimes.com/chinas-new-uyghurs-cultural-erasure-disguised-as-celebration/
... In a chilling display of cultural appropriation and propaganda, China is orchestrating a campaign to create a new generation of "Uyghurs"—not from the Uyghur people themselves, but from Han Chinese children dressed in Uyghur clothing, performing stylized Uyghur dances for cameras. Meanwhile, actual Uyghur children are subjected to a very different reality. Separated from their families, many are forced into Chinese-language boarding schools, stripped of their language, religion, and heritage. Traditional Uyghur dance—once a spontaneous form of joy and cultural expression—is now reduced to a tool for government-controlled spectacles, only allowed when choreographed by the state to display "happy Uyghurs" to the outside world.

"For centuries, many ethnic minorities in China have built their livelihoods around the land. Tibetan nomadic herders, Uyghur and Kazakh farmers and communities like the Yi, Qiang or Tu have long depended on agriculture, grazing and forest products not just for economic survival, but as a way of life deeply tied to ancestral customs and ecological knowledge. That fabric is now fraying. Climate change, rising temperatures and desertification have degraded pasturelands in Tibet and farmland in Xinjiang, undermining herding and agriculture."

The Uyghur Case: A Turning Point for Financial Crime Professionals? Tom Vidovic, MBA summarises the key points and takeaways from our Uyghur Case panels at the 2025 Annual Conference. “The Institute” [London?], 2 Jul 2025. https://www.imlpo.com/articles/the-uyghur-case

Looking ahead, the panel predicted a sharp rise in scrutiny from all sides. Whistle-blowers are likely to be increasingly incentivised to come forward. NGOs are already compiling dossiers and using litigation as a lever for change. Even without a change in the law, the effect of the Uyghur case is already being felt: it was noted that the fast fashion giant Shein reportedly abandoned plans to list in London, at least in part due to public pressure linked to the case.
The key takeaway is clear: the Uyghur decision signals a shift in expectations. Financial institutions have a part to play in combating forced labour, modern slavery or supply chain exploitation as these are predicate offences with real money laundering consequences. Firms must be ready to act, not only to protect themselves, but to live up to the role they play in the fight against financial crime.

“With a showroom in Urumchi, the capital of Occupied East Turkistan, and increasing presence in China, Tesla’s economic endeavors directly contribute to the brutal genocide of Uyghurs and other Turkic peoples,” Salih Hudayar, the foreign minister of the East Turkistan Government in Exile, told Breitbart News in 2023. “The harsh reality is that Uyghurs are subjected to forced labor, if not outright slavery, in extracting lithium for Tesla’s benefit. Tesla’s actions make them an accomplice in China’s horrifying campaign of genocide.”

On 25 June 2025, Global Rights Compliance hosted a webinar to highlight findings of its landmark report, 'Risk at the Source: Critical Mineral Supply Chains and State-Imposed Forced Labour in the Uyghur Region'. The report uncovers global supply chains' exposure to minerals mined and processed in the officially called, Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region (XUAR).
GRC's Director of Forced Labour programme and Project Director, Samir Goswami opened the session by grounding the conversation in the systematic persecution of the Uyghur people, highlighting how they are subjected to genocide and a cascade of human rights violations – including forced sterilisation, mass arbitrary detention, surveillance, and state-imposed forced labour.

"During the summit, the delegation engaged with diplomats, religious leaders, experts, researchers, and students from across Africa. Many participants, particularly religious leaders and Imams from Tanzania, Nigeria, Rwanda, and South Sudan, expressed that they had little or no prior knowledge of the Uyghur people's plight. Also, the delegation distributed educational materials, including books and reports, to attendees from various countries to help bridge this information gap. These materials provided detailed insights into the Chinese government's genocide and systematic repression of the Uyghurs, including restrictions on religious freedom, mass internment camps, and cultural erasure."

Xinjiang Security Expo Reflects the Limits of U.S. Sanctions. By: Jonah Reisboard, China Brief Notes. June 19, 2025 04:34 PM. https://jamestown.org/program/xinjiang-security-expo-reflects-the-limits-of-u-s-sanctions/

Executive Summary:
The annual Central Asia Digital Security Expo in Xinjiang is supported by the U.S.-sanctioned Xinjiang Public Security Bureau and brings technology firms together to network and market their products under the context of the CCP's ongoing campaign of repression.
Federal sanctions, due diligence, and regulatory policies have not limited U.S. exposure to human rights risks or eliminated funding for Chinese corporate R&D, which can be used to innovate the security and surveillance state.
Nearly one third of the Expo participants analyzed have international connections, especially to the United States, in the form of overseas customers and branches, attendance at U.S. expos, or foreign regulatory approvals. Seemingly benign participants present alongside direct perpetrators, who have built Xinjiang Public Security Bureau infrastructure or sell torture devices used by the Bureau.

A recent wave of videos circulating on Chinese social media has drawn attention to a worrying trend: promoting Han Chinese resettlement in East Turkistan. These videos, often featuring people presented as so-called "ethnic minorities" such as Uyghurs, Kazaks, and Dongxiang, appear to be part of a coordinated effort. They invite Han Chinese to come to the region and invest in homes and farmland, effectively encouraging further forced demographic changes in a land already under strict state control. The scripts used in these videos are identical, word for word, verbatim, suggesting a centrally directed campaign rather than independent voices.

Several reports over the past two weeks have shed light on the ongoing human rights issue of Uyghur forced labor and its impact on global supply chains. The most recent report was published on Wednesday, as Donald Trump and Xi Jinping agreed to a trade deal that would see China resuming exports on certain critical minerals. The Global Rights Compliance report on Wednesday analyzed corporate annual reports and marketing, state media, and shipping records to show how four critical minerals—titanium, lithium, beryllium, and magnesium—have a significant presence in Xinjiang, where they are supplied by forced labor:

新しい法律 - 幼稚園は、国家共通語（普通話）を基本の保育・教育言語として用い、就学前の子どもに対する普通話教育を強化し、子どもたちの普通話を話す能力を高めなければならない。この法律の施行により、就学前の児童が家庭でも中国語（普通話）を話さなければならない実質的な義務が生じている。幼稚園に入る前から、国家共通語による教育に円滑に適応できるよう、普通話を習得しておくことが求められるようになった。
こうして、ウイグル人の子どもたちがウイグル語を話せないまま、中国語のみで育つ日常が、ついには家庭の内部にまで法的に及ぶようになっている。

With the enforcement of this law, pre-school children must be substantially obligated to speak Chinese at home. Even before kindergarten, people were required to learn common speech so that they could adapt smoothly to education in the national common language. Thus, the daily life of Uyghur children not being able to speak Uyghur and growing up only in Chinese, finally legally extends to the inside of the household.

Today I walked out of Voice of America for the last time. After six years as VOA's only Uyghur-speaking journalist, I leave with pride in the 300+ stories I reported—and in launching the network's first Uyghur-language program. It came at a cost. China later imprisoned five of my former colleagues—not for any wrongdoing, but simply for having worked with me in the past.
I step away not by choice—but I carry this work forward.
I'm now building Uyghur Monitor, a nonprofit news platform committed to independent reporting and elevating the voices too often silenced. A new chapter begins.

In addition to the 115 hotels that are currently operational in Xinjiang, we identified another 74 in various stages of planning and construction from international hotel giants—Accor, Hilton, Hyatt, IHG, Marriott, Minor Hotels, and Wyndham. Marriott will open at least 13 hotels located in Xinjiang in 2026, including a Ritz-Carlton in Urumqi. IHG will open nine hotels in the region in 2025 and another seven in 2026, including InterContinentals in Urumqi, Kashgar, and Ghulja. (InterContinental is IHG's flagship luxury brand.) ... Moreover, we documented a long list of rights abuses connected to hotels in Xinjiang, including forced labor, presence on territories controlled by an entity under targeted human rights sanctions, financial and management links to Chinese state-owned enterprises, and hotels hosting Chinese state propaganda events. Hilton even opened a hotel on the site of the Duling Mosque in central Khotan, which local authorities demolished in 2018.

The world sanctioned Xinjiang cotton. China turned it into chicken feed. Forced labour in Chinese cotton fields can now be linked to the supply chains of KFC and McDonald's. By Daniel Murphy. TBIJ, May 30 2025. https://www.thebureauinvestigates.com/stories/2025-05-30/the-world-sanctioned-xinjiang-cotton.-china-turned-it-into-chicken-feed
"Cotton has long been the focus of international responses to human rights abuses in Xinjiang. About a fifth of the world's cotton originates from the region. In 2020, US customs banned the import of Xinjiang cotton; later laws banned anything made with the raw material, such as clothes or shoes. Chinese advances in biotechnology mean Xinjiang cotton is being transformed into animal feed, which food multinationals and some of China's biggest farmers are using to raise billions of chickens, pigs, cattle, fish and other animals. The breakthrough also helps China reduce its heavy dependence on US imports of protein, strengthening its hand in the rivalry between the two superpowers."

Journalists fight Trump 'attacks' on media as Beijing ramps up state-run radio. By Sally Brooks. ABC [Australia], Mon 26 May, 2025. https://www.abc.net.au/news/2025-05-27/voa-media-fight-trump-attacks-as-beijing-ramps-up-radio/105273908
"RFA broadcasts dropped from 60 to six frequencies from October 2024 to March 2025.
During the same period, Chinese-state-run China Radio International added 82 broadcasts, according to analysis by a third-party media-monitoring company, Encompass Digital Media.
"They largely target audiences that RFA had to step away from: 26 in Tibetan, 16 in Uyghur, 12 in Chinese, and two in Korean. "Two of those broadcasts — one in Uyghur, one in Tibetan — use the same frequency that RFA once did," the analysis said.
When funding to RFA was cut, authoritarian regimes including Beijing-backed media celebrated the decision, while activists and analysts warned the closures would create information "black holes" that could be filled by Russian or Chinese services."

The East Turkistan Government in Exile (ETGE) strongly condemns the participation of Mr. Francesco Frangialli, Honorary Secretary-General of the United Nations World Tourism Organization (UNWTO), in the launch of China's "Nihao! China" 2025 tourism promotion campaign held on May 24 in Turpan, East Turkistan. Mr. Frangialli delivered a keynote speech during the state-run event, which seeks to attract global tourism to UNESCO sites in China as well as in Occupied East Turkistan, where the Chinese government is actively committing genocide and crimes against humanity.

China is turning its far-western Xinjiang region into a ski tourism hotspot, despite criticism over human rights abuses there targeting mostly Muslim ethnic minorities.
Meanwhile, Nordic outdoor clothing labels are investing in stores in Xinjiang and promoting their brands at the region's ski resorts.
Swedish outdoor brand Fjällräven opened a newly renovated store in Xinjiang's capital Ürümqi just last year, one of six shops it has across the region — and the company tells Radio Sweden it wants to help its customers "enjoy nature, irrespective of political narratives."

--In China's Xinjiang region, Muslim minorities have been branded as extremists and sent to re-education camps for, among other things, not drinking alcohol. Despite this, Absolut Vodka has still been promoted in Xinjiang — and the Swedish label's French owner even funded a party at a ski resort there in 2023, Radio Sweden can reveal. Footage of the event shows guests drinking and dancing, with some wearing traditional clothing associated with Xinjiang's mostly Muslim Kazakh minority: a common motif in Chinese propaganda about the region, according to Amnesty International's Swedish office. Combined, these broadcasters reached a weekly audience of more than 400 million people outside the U.S. around the world. In the last decade, RFA has broken stories on China's detention campaign on ethnic Uyghurs and continued on-the-ground reporting in Myanmar in the midst of a civil war. Now only one staff member of the broadcaster's Uyghur-language service remains, Mamatjan Juma, the former deputy director of the Uyghur language service, said in an interview with NPR.
"We've gone completely dark," says Mamatjan Juma, the former director of RFA's Uyghur language service. "Shutting down the Uyghur service doesn't just mean silencing our newsroom. It means surrendering the information space to the Chinese state propaganda machine and its millions of bots."

Officials from the Xinjiang Production and Construction Corps (XPCC) participated in Harvard's T.H. Chan School of Public Health's executive training programs in 2023 and 2024, according to research by the China-focused think tank Strategy Risks. The program, delivered in partnership with China's National Healthcare Security Administration, focused on health insurance governance and public health policy. Strategy Risks' findings were later reported by the Washington Free Beacon. The U.S. Treasury Department sanctioned the XPCC in July 2020 under the Global Magnitsky Act, citing the organization's central role in implementing mass surveillance, internment, and forced labor policies targeting Uyghurs and other Turkic minorities. The sanctions prohibit U.S. individuals and institutions from engaging in most forms of cooperation with the XPCC.
Bill Ackman, a prominent Harvard donor, publicly commented on the XPCC reports on X (formerly Twitter), writing: "This is not a good look for @Harvard. Harvard should immediately address these accusations and provide transparency to prove they are not correct—or alternatively, explain how this was allowed to occur."

"... Americans may also be pursuing the issue of the deported Uyghurs. This certainly piqued US diplomats in Thailand and the new Secretary of State Marco Rubio. Especially so, when news filtered out on February 27th, with 40 Uyghurs transported from their prison in Bangkok. They were airlifted to Xinjiang in China in an operation undercover. Previously, the United States had received firm assurances from Thai officials that this would not happen. She questioned why Thailand violated prior US assurances on the matter, urging the PM to clarify that situation also."

7 Uyghurs remain in detention in Thailand.
"The People's Empowerment Foundation has expressed serious concerns over the plight of seven Uyghur people who are currently in jail in Thailand.
Chalida Tajaroensuk, chairperson of the civil society group, told the Bangkok Post on Monday that the seven had been divided into two groups.
The first group, consisting of five Uyghurs, was arrested for allegedly escaping a detention centre in Mukdahan in 2020, she said. The five are now serving six-year jail terms in the Klongprem Central Prison in Bangkok, she said." " … the second group consists of two Uyghurs imprisoned at Bangkok Remand Prison while pending trial over their alleged involvement in the Erawan Shrine bombing in 2015. Their next hearing is scheduled to be held next month, she said."

Weaponized Words: Uyghur Language Software Hijacked to Deliver Malware. By Rebekah Brown, Marcus Michaelsen, Matt Brooks, and Siena Anstis. Citizen Lab, April 28, 2025.
https://citizenlab.ca/2025/04/uyghur-language-software-hijacked-to-deliver-malware/
Key Findings

In March 2025, senior members of the World Uyghur Congress (WUC) living in exile were targeted with a spearphishing campaign aimed at delivering Windows-based malware capable of conducting remote surveillance against its targets.
The malware was delivered through a trojanized version of a legitimate open source word processing and spell check tool developed to support the use of the Uyghur language. The tool was originally built by a developer known and trusted by the targeted community.
Although the malware itself was not particularly advanced, the delivery of the malware was extremely well customized to reach the target population and technical artifacts show that activity related to this campaign began in at least May of 2024.
The ruse employed by the attackers replicates a typical pattern: threat actors likely aligned with the Chinese government have repeatedly instrumentalized software and websites that aim to support marginalized and repressed cultures to digitally target these same communities.
This campaign shows the ongoing threats of digital transnational repression facing the Uyghur diaspora. Digital transnational repression arises when governments use digital technologies to surveil, intimidate, and silence exiled and diaspora communities.

The following is a detailed eyewitness account attributed to a Falun Gong practitioner from Urumqi, originally published in Mandarin on the Clear Wisdom website and translated here with minor stylistic edits. While authored anonymously, it is nevertheless consistent in many aspects with what has been reported elsewhere, and also mentions specific information about a concrete victim that is consistent with what has been reported in internal police records. Furthermore, given Clear Wisdom's history of providing reports that have consistently seen multiple details corroborated, we consider the account as highly credible and recommend it strongly, as it gives a rare perspective of the camp system (coming from a demographic that wasn't the main target of the mass incarcerations).

WUC STATEMENT ON CHINESE ESPIONAGE CASE IN SWEDEN. World Uyghur Congress, April 9, 2025. https://www.uyghurcongress.org/en/statement-uyghur-arrested-over-espionage-charges-in-sweden/
"The World Uyghur Congress (WUC) has learned today, based on media reports and a court document, that a Uyghur resident of Stockholm has been arrested on suspicion of spying on fellow Uyghurs in Sweden. The document states that the individual is Dilshat Reshit, who has served as the WUC's Chinese-language spokesperson since 2004. Following confirmation of the serious charges, the WUC Presidency held an urgent meeting and decided to remove Dilshat Reshit from his position in accordance with our by-law and in line with our commitment to integrity, transparency, and the safety of our community. ... As a leading Uyghur organization, the WUC has long warned of these dangerous trends. We have implemented internal counterintelligence measures, as demonstrated by the vetting process required for candidacy to our Delegates and Executive Committee members. However, we lack the institutional and financial resources to confront the full scale and sophistication of transnational repression on our own."

Trump closes de minimis loophole. Packages to US consumers from Chinese-owned fast fashion and discount retailers, like Shein and Temu, will be subject to tariffs. By Simon Glover, EcoTextile, 3 April 2025. https://www.ecotextile.com/2025040355836/news/legislation/trump-closes-de-minimis-loophole/US President Donald Trump has signed an executive order eliminating a loophole which enables Chinese-owned ultra fast fashion and discount retailers, like Shein and Temu, to evade import duties and customs inspections. The so-called 'de minimis' provision allows packages worth less than $800 to enter the US tariff-free and with minimal inspection – meaning that the parcels could also evade the Uyghur Forced Labour Prevention Act (UFLPA).

A delegation of Thai officials and local media visited northwest China's Xinjiang autonomous region between March 19 and 21 in a bid to calm concerns about possible mistreatment of a group of 40 Uyghurs who were deported from Thailand in a secretive pre-dawn operation late last month.
The deportation the Uyghurs, who have been detained by Thai immigration for more than a decade, drew strong rebukes from Western countries, particularly the US, along with human rights groups. Thailand has insisted that the deportation was lawful and mindful of humanitarian concerns, while China has reassured Bangkok that the Uyghurs will be safe.
The Thai delegation included Deputy Prime Minister Phumtham Wechayachai, Justice Minister Tawee Sodsong and Secretary General of the National Security Council Chatchai Bangchuad, and a small pool of local Thai media. Join us at the FCCT clubhouse for a panel discussion on what this all means and an update on the overall Uyghur situation in China.

According to a press release from the Thai government on February 27, the Chinese government officially requested the deportation of 45 Uyghurs who had been detained for over 10 years for illegally entering Thailand, except for a few who had escaped from custody and assaulted officers. These include Polat and four others, whose crimes have ironically saved them. The Minister of Justice stated in a recent press conference that their sentences will be completed in 2029, at which point a decision will be made again.

#Ramadan Ban! A Chinese official interrogating an elderly Uyghur Muslim man to check if he's fasting. A slip of the tongue would have landed him in a concentration camp for "de-radicalisation". For years now, China has banned fasting during Ramadan as part of broader restrictions and ban on religious practice among Muslims in East Turkestan under the guise stamping out religious extremism. Chinese officials also have forbidden Uyghurs from gathering at mosques to pray on Fridays and from observing Muslim holidays. #UyghurGenocide

Trump Has a China Trade War Weapon He Hasn't Picked Up. The administration hasn't tipped its hand as to what its anti-forced-labor enforcement agenda will be. By Richard Vanderford, WSJ. March 21, 2025, 3:39 pm ET. https://www.wsj.com/articles/trump-has-a-china-trade-war-weapon-he-hasnt-picked-up-693b4df4
"The Uyghur Forced Labor Prevention Act, a U.Syu. law targeting forced labor that the Biden administration began enforcing in 2022, bars imports of almost all goods linked to Xinjiang, an expansive region in the West of China that is a major source of cotton, solar-panel components and minerals. The law is in effect, but how it is put into practice is open to interpretation and subject to funding, leaving room for the Trump administration to increase enforcement.

The Biden administration blocked, at least temporarily, more than $3.5 billion in imports using the law and then-Homeland Security Secretary Alejandro Mayorkas took a personal interest in expanding what amounts to a ban list of companies found to have ties to forced labor. Volkswagen saw thousands of its vehicles held up at U.S. ports after disclosing they had included parts made by a banned company.
"I know this issue is a priority of the president, and DHS (Department of Homeland Security) will also have lots of support in Congress for vigorous UFLPA enforcement," said Rep. Chris Smith (R., N.J.), co-chairman of the Congressional-Executive Commission on China, a human-rights watchdog.
But the administration is also a big tent when it comes to China, with space for hawks like Secretary of State Marco Rubio as well as for Elon Musk, who has deep commercial ties to the country, making it difficult to predict how enforcement might unfold."

Voice of America staff put on leave as Trump freezes US-funded media outlets.
More than 1,300 Voice of America employees were placed on leave on Saturday and funding for two US news services that broadcast to authoritarian regimes was terminated, a day after President Donald Trump ordered the gutting of the media outlets' parent company. Founded in 1942, VOA broadcasts in nearly 50 languages and reaches more than 326 million people weekly.

Vice Minister slams US for migrant repatriation in shackles in furious response over Uyghur sanctions. Thailand's Vice Minister defends Uyghur deportation to China, slamming US criticism as hypocritical given ongoing harsh migrant repatriations. "Significantly, the proposed deportation of the Uyghurs was initially denied by Thai officials. Undeniably this is one aspect of the affair that has incensed the United States and Western allies. Indeed, officials misled not only to American diplomats but significantly, the Thai parliament on January 29th, 2025. This came despite a secret decision taken by the National Security Council on January 17th, 2025. Afterwards, Thai Prime Minister Paetongtarn Shinawatra visited Beijing in early February. It is understood that the young PM's meeting with President Xi Jinping cemented the fate of the Uyghurs."

Trump Orders the Gutting of 7 More Federal Agencies, Including Voice of America's Parent. "...the order appears to test the bounds of his authority. Voice of America's parent, the U.S. Agency for Global Media, for example, is congressionally chartered as an independent agency, and Congress passed a law in 2020 intended to limit the power of the agency's presidentially appointed chief executive. Since 2023, the XX Embassy in Bangkok has established a group called the "Resettlement Support Team," which has been interviewing Uyghurs in the Immigration Detention Center (IDC). I have served as an interpreter for these interviews.
On February 13th, just a day before the first hearing, embassy officials told me that if the Uyghur refugees were released from the IDC, they would guarantee their resettlement in their country.

Despite reassurances from the National Security Council (NSC) and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, reports suggest that Thai authorities are still planning to deport 48 Uyghur refugees who have been detained for over a decade to China, where they may face persecution.

People's Party list-MP Romadon Panjor shared a video showing a detention truck entering the Immigration Detention Center (IDC) in Suan Phlu tonight. He, currently at the center, pointed out that the gate is closed tonight, which is unusual. He urged Prime Minister Paetongtarn Shinawatra to clarify the government's plans for the refugees, especially after her recent visit to China.
Since 2015, around 300 Uyghurs have entered Thailand seeking safety. Of these, 170 women and children were sent to Turkey, and 109 were deported to China. Currently, 48 Uyghur refugees remain in Thailand—43 in detention and five in prison for attempted escapes. There have been complaints about their health, including hunger strikes, and fears of deportation continue.

A recently released United Nations agency report compiles evidence that China has dramatically expanded its state-sponsored slavery program tormenting Tibetans and the indigenous Turkic communities of East Turkistan, forcing rural people off their land and making them pick cotton and work in factories to make solar panels.

The revelations are part of a global report published by the International Labor Organization (ILO), a United Nations entity, on Monday. The ILO extensively cites research by the International Trade Union Confederation (ITUC) indicating that the Chinese Communist Party has evolved its slavery program away from the concentration camps popular in East Turkistan for much of 2017 through 2020 and into what it calls the "liberation" of "surplus" rural workers into manufacturing and processing. ...

Never Again, But Not for the Uyghurs: A Shameful Omission. Remembering the holocausts of the past is a mere exercise of rhetoric if present-day genocides are not denounced. Rahima Mahmut, Bitter Winter, 02/07/2025. https://bitterwinter.org/never-again-but-not-for-the-uyghurs-a-shameful-omission/
"Last week, I attended in London the 80th anniversary of Holocaust Memorial Day, a solemn ceremony dedicated to honouring the memory of millions of innocent lives lost during the Holocaust and recommitting ourselves to the promise of "Never Again." I felt the deep pain and loss of those who suffered under the Nazi regime, and was moved by the testimonies of survivors whose courage and resilience have inspired generations. As I listened to the speeches, including that of the Prime Minister Keir Starmer, I was struck by a glaring omission: not a single mention of the ongoing atrocities committed against my people, the Uyghurs. ... Yet the world—and the UK in particular—chooses silence. The evidence of these crimes is overwhelming. ... "
Rahima Mahmut, a Uyghur exile in London, is Executive Director for Stop Uyghur Genocide and Advisor to the Inter-Parliamentary Alliance on China (IPAC).

Abduqadir Abdurrahman, who was 25 years old when he was sentenced, tried to leave the country via south China's Yunnan province to go to South Asia when he was arrested by police in 2015 ...
Abdurrahman was sentenced to five years for "illegal marriage" in addition to the 14 years for the trip, he said, adding that Abdurrahman met and married his wife in a traditional Islamic wedding ceremony conducted by an imam during their sojourn.
Abdurrahman, now 34, is serving his sentence in Xinjiang's capital Urumqi, he said. His wife is also in jail, though the policeman didn't have details about her sentence.

We solemnly commemorate the #GhuljaMassacre of February 5, 1997—a day when thousands of brave #Uyghur youths in #EastTurkistan stood against China's #colonization and genocide, demanding freedom and justice, only to be met with Chinese military forces, bullets, arrests, and brutal executions. Over 150 shot dead. Thousands tortured and executed. Justice remains denied. Their voices were silenced, but their sacrifice will never be forgotten. As #China's #occupation and colonial #genocide continues, we must stand for truth, for justice, and for the freedom and independence of our nation and its people. We remember. We resist. We demand justice.

@DarrenJBeattie, the new acting Under Secretary of State for Public Diplomacy…
- denies the Uyghur genocide
- claims U.S. Government treats white Americans worse than the Chinese Communist Party treats Uyghurs
- says that Uyghurs should be "ashamed" for objecting to CCP oppression
This may be worse than leaving the position vacant. U.S. public diplomacy should advance American interests, not CCP propaganda.

-Includes these strong words of concern from a Thai senate chairwoman:

"Sen Angkhana, chairwoman of the Senate committee on political development, public participation, human rights and consumer protection, on Wednesday expressed concerns shared by human rights organisations that the Uyghur group could face danger if they are sent back to China. Some reports have emerged that such moves are afoot, though the government denies it.
She said that amid controversy, the Prayut Chan-o-cha government returned 109 Uyghur men held at immigration detention centres across Thailand in 2013 to China at Beijing's request, and their fate remained unknown.
The committee had tried to visit the detainees, without success. They had heard one Uyghur was holding a hunger strike while another person died last year. Another remains in a hospital and is seriously ill, she said.
"The committee expresses concern because the detainees may not have had food for a long time, especially the one staging a hunger strike. The committee recommends the International Red Cross visit the Uyghur detainees and provide advice on repatriation," she said.

Phumtham said that since the 48 Uyghurs had entered the kingdom unlawfully, Thailand also had to deal with them according to Thai law. "We must see what can be done. #China is engaged in a dual endeavor—transforming East Turkistan into a sprawling graveyard for Uyghurs through acts of #genocide aimed at erasing their existence, all while ramping up efforts to assert East Turkistan as an integral part of Chinese civilization by digging up ancient graves.
This is being accomplished through extensive archaeological projects designed to fabricate a historical narrative that claims the region and its heritage as distinctly #Chinese.
In China, all scientific endeavors, such as history, archaeology, anthropology, and linguistics, are inherently political and aligned with the goals of the Chinese Communist Party (#CCP).
Archaeology, in particular, functions as a tool of propaganda to legitimize China's colonial objectives in East Turkistan.

"Britain's financial regulator is taking longer than usual to approve fast-fashion retailer Shein's IPO because it is checking its supply chain oversight and assessing legal risks after an advocacy group for China's Uyghur population challenged the listing, according to two sources close to the matter. Britain's Independent Anti-Slavery Commissioner, a monitoring body of the interior ministry, has also raised concerns within government over a Shein IPO because of allegations about labour practices at its suppliers."

IPAC STATEMENT ON LAND TRANSFERS AND LABOUR TRANSFER SCHEMES IN XINJIANG.
We, the Inter-Parliamentary Alliance on China (IPAC) note with profound concern reports of forced labour and coercive land transfer schemes contaminating Xinjiang's agricultural products.
Tomatoes, peppers, and stevia, tainted by forced labour have contaminated the global supply chains of 62 international companies. Disturbingly, goods linked to forced labour are being sold worldwide under trusted, household brand names deceiving consumers and perpetuating the cycle of exploitation. [. . .]

Since their creation, the Turkistan Islamic Party (TIP) has operated with its ideology, objectives, and actions dictated and controlled by Chinese and Turkish intelligence. What happens to them next largely depends on what #China and #Turkiye decide to do with them. For over 23 years, China has used the TIP to demonize #Uyghurs as "terrorists" and justify its ongoing genocide and colonization of #EastTurkistan. The presence of Uyghurs affiliated with TIP in Syria has been a key part of this strategy, allowing China to legitimize its brutal campaign of #UyghurGenocide under the guise of so-called "counterterrorism." This image is profoundly unsettling, and an increasing number of similar images are appearing on social media. It depicts the deliberately altered flag of the East Turkistan Republic, now featuring the Islamic shahada. A closer examination reveals that the same TIP, which was exploited by #Chinese and #Turkish intelligence to entice #Uyghurs into #Syria, has been used to portray them as terrorists, thereby branding all Uyghurs in East Turkistan as such.
This labeling has served as a crucial justification for China's genocidal actions against the Uyghurs in the name of "anti-t[e]rrorism."
The TIP has never effectively challenged China and has remained silent about how it has been manipulated shamelessly to justify this genocide. […]

A campaign by China's government to rewrite the cultural identity and history of the country's minority ethnic groups and political dissidents is increasingly being waged on American shores, activists told a U.S. congressional hearing on Thursday.
The Tibetan, Uyghur, Mongolian and Chinese activists said that while the United States once stood as a bastion of free speech and a redoubt of cultural preservation for groups targeted by the Chinese Communist Party, many now feared Beijing's extensive reach.

»AGAINST THE SILENCE« [n.d.], [Nov. 2024]
https://meldahmetoglu.com/about
»Against the silence« is a poignant short documentary that tells the gripping story of Gülzire Tashmamat, a Uyghur living in exile. Gülzire's tireless struggle to remember her disappeared sister symbolizes the silent tragedy and forced silence endured by the Uyghur community worldwide. This film provides an intimate portrait of a woman shaped by loss and hope. Through her eyes and experiences, the film offers insight into the chaotic and magical creative process required to keep an oppressed culture and identity alive in exile. Gülzire's story is a call for recognition and support for a frequently overlooked community.

Notice Regarding the Uyghur Forced Labor Prevention Act Entity List. A Notice by the Homeland Security Department on 11/25/2024.
https://www.federalregister.gov/documents/2024/11/25/2024-27337/notice-regarding-the-uyghur-forced-labor-prevention-act-entity-list
SUMMARY: The U.S. Department of Homeland Security (DHS), as the Chair of the Forced Labor Enforcement Task Force (FLETF), announces the publication and availability of the updated Uyghur Forced Labor Prevention Act (UFLPA) Entity List, a consolidated register of the four lists required to be developed and maintained pursuant to the UFLPA, on the DHS UFLPA website. The updated UFLPA Entity List is also published as an appendix to this notice. This update adds five entities to the section 2(d)(2)(B)(ii) list of the UFLPA and twenty-five entities to the section 2(d)(2)(B)(v) list of the UFLPA. Further, this update includes a technical correction to remove an alias for one entity already on the UFLPA Entity List. Details related to the process for revising the UFLPA Entity List are included in this Federal Register notice.

Yashar Shohret: Chengdu's "white paper youth" disappears for the second time. An original feature from WOMEN我们 magazine, published in English for the first time. HUMAN RIGHTS IN CHINA, Nov 25, 2024. https://hrichina.substack.com/p/yashar-shohret-chengdus-white-paper

Originally published: WOMEN我们, November 30, 2023

A singer striving to create music in his mother tongue, Yashar's fledgling independent career was abruptly interrupted by Chinese state surveillance. In the spring of 2023, he released a song titled "Wake Up." In the hunting scene he described, he was not the hunter, but the prey. "Unable to understand the fate etched on my forehead, loneliness took over–uneasiness, anxiety, worry, and fear."

CHINA: HEALTH CONCERNS FOR JAILED UYGHUR MUSICIAN. Yashar, a Uyghur songwriter and musician, is currently serving a three-year prison sentence for creating music and possessing books in Uyghur language. There are serious concerns about his health in detention, as he suffers from bronchitis and requires regular medication. Convicted of "promoting extremism" and "illegally possessing extremist materials" on 20 June 2024, Yashar endures unjust imprisonment for expressing his cultural identity. n.d. [Nov. 2024].

US bars 29 more Chinese companies over Uyghur slave labor. The move brings the total number of blacklisted companies to over 100. By Alex Willemyns. RFA, 2024.11.25. https://www.rfa.org/english/uyghur/2024/11/25/uyghur-forced-labor-blacklist-29-companies/
The listing, announced late Friday by the Department of Homeland Security, brings the total number of Chinese companies barred from exporting to America due to Uyghur forced labor to 107, following the blacklisting of three other Chinese companies earlier this month.
The companies include producers of agricultural, aluminum and polysilicon products, as well as copper, gold and nickel miners, it says, accusing them of "working with the government of Xinjiang to recruit, transfer, and receive workers, including Uyghurs, out of Xinjiang."

We urge other parliaments and governments across the world to follow suit and recognize that Chinese occupation and colonization of East Turkistan are the root causes of the ongoing genocide of the Uyghurs and other Turkic peoples [...]

CITY IN XINJIANG DELETES VIDEO BOASTING THAT WECHAT RECORDS USER ACTIVITY FOR LAW ENFORCEMENT. Posted by Alexander Boyd | Nov 7, 2024.

"The Municipal Bureau of Justice in Karamay, Xinjiang posted—and later deleted—a skit to Douyin (Chinese TikTok) boasting that WeChat automatically records user activity and shares it with law enforcement. The short video skit warned against sharing pornography and engaging in other unspecified "illegal activity" on WeChat. CDT has translated the skit in full"
"WeChat has started automatically reporting illegal activity... If you use WeChat to send pornographic videos or engage in other illegal activity, the app will screenshot and record evidence, and then share it with law enforcement agencies. Trying to delete it afterwards is pointless... Technology is the new black magic: it leaves criminals with nowhere to hide."
"Karamay is a particularly sensitive place. It was the site of one of the greatest tragedies in modern Chinese history. In 1994, 325 students died after a fire broke out during the performance of a variety show for visiting cadres. The high death toll was attributed to a command, issued by an unknown adult in the audience, telling the students: "Everyone sit down. Don't move. Let the leaders leave first!""

Episode Description

This is the first episode of our Remote Chay Podcast – a podcast where we explore methods of "remote ethnography" and reality on the ground in Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region from an academic, critical perspective. In this episode the three hosts of the podcast, Vanessa Frangville from Université libre de Bruxelles, Björn Alpermann from Julius-Maximilians-Universität Würzburg and Rune Steenberg from Univerzita Palackého v Olomouc introduce the podcast and talk about the development of the methodological approach of remote ethnography and how it and other methods have been used successfully in researching the closed region of Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region in China, homeland to the Uyghurs and also known as East Turkistan. The episode gives a preview of future episodes and situates the podcast within our research project.
This podcast is part of the RX project which received funding from the European Union's Horizon Europe coordination and support action 101079460— REMOTEXUAR— HORIZON-WIDERA-2021-ACCESS-03

JUST IN: Butch Ware, Jill Stein's vice-presidential candidate, has launched a fiery critique against China, focusing on its treatment of Uyghurs and actions in Africa.
Ware, an esteemed historian and activist, called China's treatment of Uyghurs "genocide" and condemned "Han supremacy" for fueling ethnic discrimination. Drawing from personal encounters with Uyghur survivors, Ware emphasized the severity of China's human rights abuses.
In addition, Ware didn't hold back on China's economic presence in Africa, particularly in Senegal, accusing it of "exploitative" practices and "anti-black racism." He directly addressed those defending China, declaring, "Stop caping for Chinese racists" and asserted, "China is not Utopia."
These remarks come as a surprise to some on the left, particularly because Ware's aggressive tone targeted potential supporters within progressive circles.
As the Green Party's vice-presidential nominee, his stance raises questions about why this topic is surfacing now, especially with deep divisions on foreign policy within the progressive movement.

Real face of Kashgar, Uyghurs have to raise Red flag together every Monday morning. They are swearing in front of the communist red flag. In their swear they have to say that they defend Chinese Communist regime, to follow Red Party. They have to say that they are not separatists, to show that they don't believe in religion, they have to promise to prevent their kids, relatives and friends not participate any religious activities.

My comment: this is a fascinating thread: US Green Party VP candidate Butch Ware, posted a message including support for the Uyghurs. His message was countered by a virtual torrent of extremists posting scorn on him for falling for a CIA plot. Just a few applaud his solidarity with the Uyghurs. A few others point out that he left out Ukraine on his list of oppressed peoples worldwide [perhaps because his party leader Jill Stein is known as a friend of Russia's Putin].

Today, we (the Swedish Uyghur Committee) gathered in solidarity to protest in front of the @Sverigesriksdag, solemnly commemorating and condemning the 75th anniversary of #China's invasion of #EastTurkistan on October 12, 1949.
This horrific day marked the beginning of China's 75-year-long campaign of relentless genocide against #Uyghurs and other Turkic peoples, alongside the brutal #colonization and occupation of East Turkistan, continuing to this very day. We called upon Sweden and the international community to recognize this #genocide, acknowledge the #occupation, and support the urgent restoration of East Turkistan's #independence.

This is some evidence that international pressure and attention had at least some impact on the trajectory of Uyghur mass incarceration. This detention facility in Kuqa was being expanded in late 2020 (left). The expansion was never finished and sits the same in 2024 (right).

The 2019-2020 period is when the international community and press started really focusing on the crimes against humanity being perpetrated in Xinjiang, and 2019 is also when we began to see releases from lower-security detention facilities.
This imagery suggests, at least in this camp, that there were plans to expand it right up until some of the facilities were decommissioned - including this one.

Comment from me (MF):
May be too soon to say. Could also be bad planning, overkill, like on other fronts in China.
From the beginning, the camps were meant as a sorting device, to process and then funnel people into the next phases of forced labor, prisons, death, and the mass collection of children.

#Uyghur kids in a kindergarten in #Atush, in my hometown, wearing Hanfu, a #Chinese attire and observing a moment of silence for fallen Chinese.

They are taught to hate the #Japanese. They are forced to dress up like Chinese, act like Chinese and hate like Chinese—a process of Sinicization. These kids do not know that this hate is not theirs but their enemy's. Han Chinese deliberately implant them in their minds.
We were also forced to hate the Japanese, but it failed. Why? Because we hated the Chinese profoundly and consistently as invaders, which saved us from assimilation into Chinese.
But these kids are put under the constant control of the Chinese inside out, from kindergarten to university and from cradle to graveyard.
So concerning. Chinese are genuinely masters of brainwashing. They are demons playing with your most delicate emotions to their interests. Evil is an understatement.

In this year's report, which covers May 1, 2023-April 30, 2024, the Chinese government is one of seven governments identified as committing new incidents of reprisals against people in China who tried to engage with the UN human rights system.
Mention of HK but nothing on Uyghurs or Tibetans:
"The report also said that "a number of cases brought to the attention of the Secretary-General were addressed confidentially," some of which, CHRD understands, were connected to the Chinese government's reprisals. Fear of retaliation for reporting cases of reprisal and the severity of the human rights atrocities in Tibet and the Uyghur regions may account for the fact that there are no named cases of Tibetans or Uyghurs in the report."

This incredible mine discovered in #EastTurkistan, coveted by many countries, holds immense potential. It contains 86 minerals, including those essential for making atomic bombs.
Since #China occupied our homeland, they have not sold even a handful of the mine's soil, keeping this valuable resource untapped and out of reach. Located in the Köktoqay region of Altay Prefecture, this No. 3 mine was discovered in 1939 and played a crucial role in repaying 47% of the Chinese government's national debt to the former Soviet Union.
The contribution of this mine is just a fraction of the vast wealth extracted from East Turkestan, where numerous mines and abundant resources exist. More than 50% of China's economy relies on this wealth, showcasing the critical importance of our land. Notably, this mine supplied the fuel for China's first artificial satellite, "Dong Fang Hong" (The East is Red), and continues to be a primary source for satellite launches. With a depth of 200 meters, a length of 250 meters, and a width of 240 meters, it is home to 86 known types of minerals. Remarkably, this mine was not included on world maps until after 1980, leaving many unaware of its significance. It remains a critical site for geologists from China and around the world.
More importantly, this mine not only supplied the minerals for China's first nuclear bomb but also continues to fuel their military ambitions and technological advancements in aviation and space travel. This is just a small part of how China exploits East Turkistan's resources while perpetrating #genocide and maintaining their brutal colonial #occupation of our homeland. The ongoing theft of our resources is a stark reminder of the urgency of our struggle for justice, independence and international recognition. #Colonialism

Under the 2015 slavery act, companies that supply UK customers must annually disclose what action they have taken to ensure no modern slavery exists in the business or its supply chains. After pressure from human rights groups and investors, VW in December said that it had carried out an audit of its plant in Xinjiang, which is run by a joint venture with state-owned SAIC. It said that the audit, carried out by Berlin-based consultancy Löning and an unnamed Chinese law firm, had applied the internationally renowned SA8000 standard and found "no indications of any use of forced labour". But a leaked document, which was also reviewed by Der Spiegel and ZDF, showed failures to comply with the standard. [...]

The latest expansion of the UFLPA list is a sign of America's ongoing dedication to making forced labour an economically unsustainable practice. ... Among the companies listed in the UFLPA are fertilizer manufacturer Rare Earth Magnesium Technology Group Holdings and its parent company Century Sunshine Group Holdings, both based in Hong Kong. These two firms are accused of sourcing raw materials from Xinjiang, which is widely known for its use of forced labour. Kashgar Construction Engineering (Group) Co Ltd, Xinjiang Habahe Ashele Copper Co Ltd, and Xinjiang Tengxiang Magnesium Products Co Ltd have also been linked to directly employing Uyghur forced labour. The complete list of 73 banned manufacturers and exporters can be found in this Federal Register Notice.

PRC Positive Messaging Frames Successful Colonization in Xinjiang. Niva Yau. Jamestown, September 4, 2024. https://jamestown.org/program/prc-positive-messaging-frames-successful-colonization-in-xinjiang/
Executive summary:

-- Through television broadcasts overseas, like Jongugu Sapar in Kyrgyzstan, the People's Republic of China (PRC) presents an image of ethnic harmony and economic development in Xinjiang, downplaying or omitting signs of colonialism, forced labor, or suppression of Turkic cultural identity.
-- The PRC's positive messaging about Xinjiang has been successful in Central Asia, where positive historical narratives about and some nostalgia for the Soviet Union influence perceptions of PRC actions.
-- By tailoring content to resonate with local beliefs, the PRC successfully projects its foreign policy goals and strengthens its regional influence. For instance, anti-colonial rhetoric, while rife in PRC discourse in Africa, goes unmentioned in Central Asia.

CHINA'S "WHATABOUTISM" AFTER SUMMER SCANDALS PARODIED. Posted by Alexander Boyd. China Digital Times, Aug. 29, 2024. https://chinadigitaltimes.net/2024/08/chinas-whataboutism-after-summer-scandals-parodied/
"In its foreign propaganda, China often combats bad press with examples of similar incidents abroad. Examples include denying the mistreatment of Uyghurs while decrying the genocide of Native Americans in the United States. The State Council Information Office releases a report highlighting American human rights abuses each year in response to the U.S. State Department's Country Reports on Human Rights Practices. The Ministry of Foreign Affairs often uses the SCIO response to deflect questions about China's human rights issues. (...) A similar tendency after domestic scandals has been lampooned by Chinese netizens..."

"The Chinese government has recently adopted similar terminology shifts in Xinjiang and Tibet. Chinese state media and other official communications in both English and Chinese now often refer to people in Xinjiang as 'Xinjiang people' (Xinjiang ren), rather than referring to their specific ethnicity such as Uyghur, Kazakh, or Han. For example, this social media post by official newspaper the Global Times refers to Uyghur children as 'Xinjiang kids' and 'children in China's Xinjiang' rather than calling them Uyghur.

Chinese authorities have also begun using the term 'Xizang' instead of 'Tibet' — Tibetans' preferred name for their homeland — in English-language state media and other official communications, after an official white paper issued in November 2023 ..."

Two years after its Xinjiang report, the UN's OHCHR issues a statement calling on Beijing to "fully investigate" rights violations, "including torture."
However, the statement comes not from Volker Türk directly but from his office, and the term "crimes against humanity" which the 2022 report used is not mentioned. Türk pursues a policy of engagement over China's "counter-terrorism" laws, hoping to get Beijing to alter its legal framework. The fundamental problem, however, is not "counter-terrorism," but Beijing's strategy of comprehensively crushing all expressions of distinct ethnic identity, coupled with an attack on the ethnic population itself.

The UN's 2022 report emphasized the mass internments but gave much less space to discussions of birth prevention and forced labor, both policies that have not only continued but apparently intensified. In sum, the UN's approach is inadequate, and given the ongoing nature of the atrocities, it is too weak to address the continued systematic attacks against ethnic populations. https://www.ohchr.org/en/press-briefing-notes/2024/08/china-update-work-un-human-rights-office

Both the @realDonaldTrump and @JoeBiden - @KamalaHarris administrations recognized the #UyghurGenocide, yet the 2024 #Democratic and #Republican platforms fail to address this ongoing humanitarian crisis, the largest persecution of an ethnic or religious group since the #Holocaust. Acknowledging genocide is not enough; it demands decisive action.
The omission of the #Uyghur genocide from both party platforms is a grave disservice to those suffering under #China's brutal genocidal regime. The U.S. must move beyond recognition and commit to meaningful actions to end these horrors and support the people of #EastTurkistan, including their right to external self-determination and freedom. Both parties have a moral duty to lead the global fight against #genocide and uphold the principles of #HumanRights and #Freedom.

The Absence at a Uyghur Exile's Wedding. Jewher Ilham's father is in a Chinese prison for 'separatism.' By Tunku Varadarajan. WSJ, Aug. 8, 2024, at 5:27 pm ET.

"Jewher's father wasn't the only absent parent. Her mother, who lives in Beijing, was denied permission to leave China to attend. How cruel can a regime be, you might ask, to sabotage the wedding of a young woman in this manner? But if Beijing intended to cast a pall over the wedding—to break Jewher's heart and resolve by denying her access to her father and mother—I am happy to report the plan failed. Alongside the haunting sadness, I saw righteous strength and valor. For a few hours in Maryland, East Turkestan rose up in rebellion. There was nothing the Chinese could do to stop it."

The companies include Hong Kong-based Rare Earth Magnesium Technology Group Holdings and its parent, Century Sunshine Group Holdings, which manufacture magnesium fertilizer and magnesium alloy products. Also included is Zijin Mining Group subsidiary Xinjiang Habahe Ashele Copper Co, which mines nonferrous metals.
The companies were added to the Uyghur Forced Labor Prevention Act Entity List, which restricts imports tied to what the U.S. government characterizes as an ongoing genocide of minorities in China's western Xinjiang region. The list now includes over 70 entities tied to products that include cotton apparel, automotive parts, vinyl flooring and solar panels.

"Yook Kearn's sojourn in Xinjiang and his son's travels there a half century later provide some of the book's most compelling imagery and anecdotes. Xinjiang is also the setting in which Wong most fully explores the nature of Chinese empire. The modern Chinese state has a complicated and contradictory relationship with the concept: it views itself as a victim rather than a practitioner of imperialism, while simultaneously claiming to be the natural successor to what is often said to have been the world's most enduring imperial system, the "Chinese Empire."

More than a Mirage: UAE combat aircraft in China. Joint exercises between the UAE Air Force and China's PLA Air Force raise questions about the potential for information gathering on Western aircraft by Beijing, and point to the growing ties between the two countries, which has caused concern in Washington. The United Arab Emirates (UAE) Air Force and China's People's Liberation Army Air Force (PLAAF) began Falcon Shield, their second exercise in China, on 10 July 2024. China's Ministry of National Defense said the joint air exercise was again being held in Xinjiang province but did not identify the air base hosting it. Satellite imagery, however, shows that Hotan Airport in Xinjiang is being used for the exercise; it was also the location for the event in 2023.

Rakhima Senbay's journey through China's reeducation camps in Xinjiang serves as a harrowing testament to the abuse and violation of human rights within these facilities. Her story not only illuminates the personal trauma she endured but also highlights broader issues regarding gendered violence, family separation, and the power of advocacy in seeking justice.

The recent announcement by the Chinese colonial regime in East Turkistan revealed the "Xinjiang" Cultural Tourism Promotion Ambassadors list, honouring 30 celebrities.
This initiative aims to attract tourists to a land of vicious human hunting with a dark history of the cruellest violence while attempting to whitewash the #UyghurGenocide.
It also sends a subtle message that the genocide is almost over, the dripping blood of #Uyghurs and other #Turkic peoples are cleaned up, and the land is now open for visits.
Sadly, some Uyghurs are forced to be part of this promotion, aiding in the denial of the ongoing genocide against their people. They are essentially serving their oppressors in exchange for survival, a tragic display of gratitude towards those who spare them for their loyalty and usefulness for such propaganda campaigns while targeting others. Notable Uyghurs include Dancer Dilnar Abdulla, Singer Dilber, TV host Nighmet, Darwaz successor Adil Hoshur, Basketball coach Adiljan, and Singer Parhat Halik, etc.
Remember: they are not killed just because they are forced to say that nobody is killed.
Singer Dilber is exceptional in this—she is a Finnish citizen and is a useful idiot to exchange her freedom for slavery by aiding her killers in hiding their crimes against her own people.
We will never forget this.

The Hidden Trade-Offs of Climate Policy. Today's green dogmas cannot deliver an energy transition that is fast, just, and sustainable—all at the same time. "China's domination of virtually all clean energy supply chains means that going fast requires accepting human rights and environmental abuses on a vast scale. Weaning the world—or at least the West—off Chinese clean energy technologies means either going slower or accepting some level of environmental destruction associated with mining in places like the United States and Europe, and probably both...
Many climate and clean energy advocates have been quick to praise China for industrial policies that have substantially cut the cost of solar panels, wind turbines, batteries, and electric vehicles. But they mostly ignore the extent to which cheap Chinese clean energy products are inextricably tied up with an economic system built on authoritarian rule, forced labor camps, and other human rights abuses, powered by some of the dirtiest coal plants in the world, and tied to ecologically devastating mining practices in China, Africa, and beyond.
In Xinjiang, for example, copper and other mines rely on Uyghur forced laborers who are required to undergo political indoctrination and perform harsh, hazardous manual work ..."

An Uyghur woman named Heyrinsa Muhammad has been sentenced to an additional 14 years in jail after completing her original 10-year sentence for teaching the Qur'an to young people, which was labeled as "separatism."
This tragic story highlights several important points:
- The #UyghurGenocide continues to be perpetrated by the Chinese authorities against #Uyghurs and other Turkic peoples in #EastTurkistan.
- Religious education is illegal in #EastTurkistan, despite #China's deceptive claims of respecting religious freedom to the #Islamic world.
- #Uyghurs are essentially living in an oppressive open-air prison, where they can be sentenced to lengthy jail terms for anything at any time.
- #Chinese authorities unjustly use "separatism" and "terrorism" to indiscriminately criminalize and punish #Uyghurs.
- Despite #China's fake claims of upholding justice, it is in fact one of the cruelest regimes, suppressing justice with #impunity.

In its recent judgment in World Uyghur Congress v National Crime Agency, the Court of Appeal addressed the application of the money laundering provisions of the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 (POCA) in the context of international supply chains. The appeal court's clarification of the scope of the 'adequate consideration' exemption under POCA has wide-reaching implications not only for businesses with global supply chains but for all professional services firms in the UK.
The case followed an unsuccessful judicial review in which the World Uyghur Congress sought to challenge the decision not to investigate whether consignments of cotton goods into the UK, originating from the Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region of China (XUAR), were the product of forced labour or other alleged human rights abuses by the People's Republic of China. UK court holds authorities' refusal to probe alleged Uyghur forced labour cotton imports unlawful. James Joseph | Keele U. School of Law, GB. JuristNews, JUNE 29, 2024 10:34:57 AM.
https://www.jurist.org/news/2024/06/uk-court-holds-authorities-refusal-to-probe-alleged-uyghur-forced-labour-cotton-imports-unlawful/
The UK Court of Appeal ruled Thursday that the UK National Crime Agency's (NCA) refusal to investigate the importation of Uyghur forced labour cotton from China was unlawful. The Global Legal Action Network (GLAN) and the World Uyghur Congress (WUC) have secured a historic victory, which marks the first successful case globally to disrupt supply chains complicit in the ongoing genocide of Uyghur and other Turkic peoples in East Turkestan/Xinjiang, China. Companies must now ensure their supply chains are free from forced labour or face legal consequences. This landmark decision stems from a case initiated two years ago, where WUC challenged UK government agencies for failing to investigate imports of cotton produced in the Uyghur Region.

Chinese Government Rejects Key Human Rights Recommendations in Latest UN Review. 25 Jun 2024. https://safeguarddefenders.com/en/blog/chinese-government-rejects-key-human-rights-recommendations-latest-un-review
The Chinese government's rejection of recommendations to end its deepening human rights crisis reflects its disdain for international human rights reviews at the United Nations, the undersigned human rights nongovernmental organizations said in a joint statement released on June 25, 2024. … The Chinese government … falsely proclaimed the August 2022 OHCHR report on human rights abuses in Xinjiang, which that office alleged may constitute crimes against humanity, as "completely illegal and void."

Police in Sanya, Hainan Province, broke into a mosque this morning and confiscated books from the prayer shop. According to information provided by local residents: This was a retaliatory measure taken by the Chinese Communist Party (CCP) in response to the police's failure to stop people from bringing their children to the mosque for prayer during Eid al-Adha three days ago. CCP police claim the books are designed to be violent and terroristic.

China has renamed hundreds of Uyghur villages and towns, say human rights groups. Report finds that religious, historical and cultural references have been removed in crackdown by Beijing. Helen Davidson in Taipei. The Guardian, Tue 18 Jun 2024 19.01 EDT.
https://www.theguardian.com/world/article/2024/jun/19/china-has-renamed-hundreds-of-uyghur-villages-and-towns-say-human-rights-groups
"Research published on Wednesday by Human Rights Watch and the Norway-based organisation Uyghur Hjelp documents about 630 communities that have been renamed in this way by the government, mostly during the height of a crackdown on Uyghurs that several governments and human rights bodies have called a genocide. The new names removing religious, historical or cultural references are among thousands of otherwise benign name changes between 2009 and 2023. According to the two organisations that conducted the research, the apparently political changes, which mostly occurred in 2017-19, targeted three broad categories. Any mentions of religion or Uyghur cultural practices were removed, including terms such as hoja, a title for a Sufi religious teacher, which was removed from at least 25 village names; haniqa, a type of Sufi religious building taken from 10 village names; and mazar, meaning shrine, which was removed from at least 41 village names. —The authorities also changed names that referenced Uyghur kingdoms, republics or leaders from before 1949 when the People's Republic of China was founded. The report said there were no longer any villages in Xinjiang with the word "xelpe" or "khalifa" (ruler), or "meschit" (mosque) in their names."

Why we should ban goods made with forced labour. Anti-Slavery International, May 20, 2024. https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=shuz-1eXE9c
We all want to buy goods knowing that nobody has been harmed in making them, but the UK is at an increasing risk of being a dumping ground for goods made using forced labour. The European Parliament has now approved a new law banning goods made using forced labour from the EU's internal market. The US and Canada already have similar laws, and Mexico is developing its own.

While PRC China authorities and companies have denied Uyghur detection or claimed that it stopped, a project just implemented in Tier 1 megacity Shanghai's business district, an area with nearly no Uyghurs, has implemented Uyghur detection across thousands of cameras, IPVM has verified from the project's documents. Banned Chinese cotton from Xinjiang found in 19% of US and global retailers' merchandise. A US law to safeguard its market from products linked to forced labour has not necessarily been effective, a new study using isotope testing suggests. Of the items that tested positive for Xinjiang cotton, 57% featured labels that claimed the origin of the merchandise was US-only.

"The boycott succeeded in silencing 80 writers and artists who were scheduled to speak at the festival and did not join the boycott. They included a few from countries where the cost of free expression is more tangible than social scorn, such as the Uyghur poet Tahir Hamut Izgil, the Indian novelist Geetanjali Shree, the Mexican writer Carmen Boullosa, and five young Afghan women from ArtLords, an international organization of street artists devoted to human rights. After the women fled Afghanistan and became refugees, the Taliban painted over or erased all 2,200 of their murals. Now they've been silenced twice—the second time in a democratic country and by their fellow artists."

Bahram Sintash fighting for his father, journalist Qurban Mamut. Shortly after Mamut's return to China, after a US visit, he was arrested.

At the 11th Plenary Session in Urumchi, the PRC / #CCP openly reiterated their relentless drive to continue their genocidal campaign aimed at achieving "Chinese national rejuvenation." This fascistic, genocidal policy explicitly aims to gradually eradicate the identities and existence of #Uyghur and Turkic peoples in #EastTurkistan, intending to replace these solely with the "Chinese nation."
Restoring East Turkistan's independence is not just a moral imperative but an existential necessity. This is the only path to ensure the survival of Uyghur and Turkic peoples. The people of East Turkistan are running out of time; immediate, decisive international action is required to confront and end #China’s ongoing genocide in #OccupiedEastTurkistan.

#China's United Front Work Department (#UFWD) is Chinese intelligence service that operates to expand the influence of the #CCP both domestically and internationally by co-opting elites, controlling diaspora communities/organizations, and shaping public opinion.
In the case of #EastTurkistan, the UFWD actively works to prevent East Turkistan independence. It achieves this by co-opting #Uyghur organizations and "elites," while simultaneously marginalizing and alienating pro-independence voices. This strategy is guided by directives outlined in the CCP Politburo's secretive yet notorious Document No. 7 (1996).

We unequivocally condemn the #Arab delegation's recent visit to Occupied #EastTurkistan, especially during #Ramadan, a sacred month in #Islam that the Chinese government has sought to erase and prohibit in our homeland. This visit not only supports the campaign of colonization, genocide, and occupation but also deeply disrespects the religious freedoms, rights, and struggles of the Uyghur, Kazakh, Kyrgyz and predominantly Muslim Turkic peoples in East Turkistan.
This Arab delegation, comprising members from #Palestine, #Syria, #Egypt, #Lebanon, #Iraq, #Yemen, #Jordan, and #Tunisia, led by Bassam Zakarneh, a member #Fatah's Revolutionary Council of Palestine, has actively ignored China's ongoing genocide against the people of East Turkistan and the suppression of Islam. Their silence on these issues during their visit starkly endorses these crimes. We call upon the world to look beyond this veil of complicity and join us in our relentless struggle for justice, liberation, and the preservation of the East Turkistani people's future. Image

= Part of longer report: https://www.politico.eu/newsletter/china-watcher/states-prep-for-pacific-conflict/
"The Chinese government is hitting back at critics of its boarding schools in Tibet that international critics say focus more on cultural brainwashing than reading, writing and arithmetic.
The European Union Parliament called for the schools' "immediate abolishment" in December after the United Nations declared them centers of "forced assimilation" in 2023.
Beijing responded to that criticism in a statement that the Chinese Embassy in Canada emailed to China Watcher this week. It portrays the schools as an educational necessity to service children spread across a vast geographical area that makes local community schools impractical. An injection of $35 billion in government spending from 2012-2022 means those schools are "nurturing the minds of our future, reflecting a deep-rooted belief in the transformative power of education." The statement coincides with Chinese state media English-language reporting on Wednesday of alleged foreign Tibet experts parroting Beijing's narrative of the schools' utility.
Tibetan rights activists aren't buying it. "The Chinese government repeats the same, tired arguments about geography being the reason for the boarding school system in Tibet. … China's deliberate attempt to eradicate Tibetan identity, language, and social cohesion is" the schools' purpose, said Lhadon Tethong, director of the nonprofit advocacy organization Tibet Action Institute, which exposed the boarding school system in a 2021 report."

UN rights chief says China committing violations in Xinjiang, Tibet. Reuters. Updated Mon, March 4, 2024, at 5:17 PM EST. https://www.yahoo.com/news/un-rights-chief-says-china-130520673.html
U.N. human rights chief Volker Turk on Monday called on China to implement recommendations to amend laws that violate fundamental rights, including in the Xinjiang and Tibet regions. Rights groups accuse Beijing of widespread abuses of Uyghurs, a mainly Muslim ethnic minority that numbers around 10 million in the western region of Xinjiang, including the mass use of forced labour in camps. Beijing vigorously denies any abuses. "I also call on the government to implement the recommendations made by my Office and other human rights bodies in relation to laws, policies and practises that violate fundamental rights, including in the Xinjiang and Tibet regions," Turk told the U.N. Human Rights Council in Geneva.

AFP: Yesterday, the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights called on China to implement the recommendations made by his Office and asked China to stop the law, policies and practices that "violate" human rights in Xinjiang and Tibet. What is China's response?

"Mao Ning: A happy life for the people is the most important human right. Putting the people front and center, China has worked to realize, protect and advance the fundamental interests of the greatest majority of the people. We have found a path toward better human rights that follows the trend of the times and fits our national realities and made historic achievements in the human rights cause. Currently, China's Xinjiang and Xizang enjoy social stability, economic growth, solidarity among all ethnic groups and harmony among various religious beliefs, and the people there are living a happy life.
China stands ready to carry out dialogue and communication with the UN human rights body and other parties on the basis of mutual respect to enhance understanding, build up consensus and jointly provide positive energy for global human rights governance. In the meanwhile, we urge the UN human rights body to respect the judicial sovereignty of member states, carry out its work under the principle of impartiality, objectivity, non-selectivity and non-politicization, and play a constructive role in promoting the healthy development of the international human rights cause.
I would like to point out that in recent years, some Western countries have attacked and smeared China under the pretext of human rights. They have concocted a number of rumors and lies on issues related to Xinjiang and Xizang. What they did was not at all out of care for human rights, but for the purpose of holding back China's development. Facts prove once and again that the international community has seen more and more clearly about the political agenda and double standards of the US and other Western countries behind their manipulation of human rights issues, and their rumors and lies have been rejected by more and more people. In recent years, more than 100 countries have supported China's just position on issues related to Xinjiang, Xizang and Hong Kong and opposed interference in China's internal affairs under the pretext of human rights at multilateral human rights meetings. This fully proves that the world is not blind to the truth."

An even more vexing issue is the intangible heritage of national minorities. China, which boasts more inscriptions than any other country, has controversially registered practices associated with its Mongolian, Korean, Kyrgyz, Tibetan, and Uyghur populations, whose cultural expressions it strictly controls. One of them is muqam, a Uyghur musical tradition closely tied to Sufi Islam. It was one of the first elements of intangible heritage recognized by Unesco. But, in the past decade, China has reportedly suppressed traditional muqam while promoting secular alternatives that appeal to tourists and glorify the state. (China has denied cultural destruction against Uyghurs.) Official commemoration masks ongoing erasure; on a recent visit to Xinjiang, Xi Jinping posed for pictures with Uyghur musicians in traditional garb, a cruel irony when so many Uyghur musicians and scholars have been imprisoned. (Some have emerged from reëducation camps as champions of state-sponsored ethnic harmony, providing China with a fig leaf of community consent.) The Uyghur Human Rights Project has called on the world's governments to challenge China's inscription of muqam and other Uyghur traditions on the I.C.H. lists.

--LVMH, chaired and largely (48 %) owned by French tycoon Bernard Arnault, is the world's leading luxury goods group. 2023 was the "new record year for LVMH" with €86.2 billion revenue and €22.8 billion profit. Revenue in China is included by corporate communication in the "Rest of Asia," worth 33 % of the total business. NEW: The Discovery Channel produced a "documentary" about Xinjiang with CCP outlet CGTN, airing last month. It presented a sanitized version of the region, where Beijing is carrying out crimes against humanity.
@RepJimBanks led a letter to Warner Bros. Discovery CEO David Zaslav demanding answers about the partnership, including whether it will continue. The five-part video series perpetuates CCP narratives intended to whitewash the atrocities. One of these narratives is the idea that all Uyghurs are happy and gather in public places to dance frequently.
At one point, the video series features a festival, in front of Kashgar's main mosque, where people danced to celebrate Eid. In reality, Beijing has enacted a draconian crackdown on religious expression, barred Muslims in Xinjiang from praying during Eid, and turned that mosque into a tourist attraction that does not admit worshippers (while razing other mosques).

"Among other demands, the letters enlist [Cambridge] University to immediately end all ties with Huawei and other Chinese companies and institutions linked with the Uyghur genocide, to issue a public statement condemning the genocide, and to establish a Genocide-Studies Forum and a Uyghur Research Fund. One open letter states: "That not one research paper in the history of the Faculty has been produced on Xinjiang or on Uyghurs – barring one paper in 2006 – even after mounting and increasingly detailed reports of Uyghur-targeted mass internment and human rights abuses, warrants significant questioning." The campaign began after its co-founder, Nikos Kouthouri-Whittaker, a Chinese studies student, says he found that Faculty members showed "disinterest and disengagement" towards the Uyghur genocide.

"On Wednesday, the company [VW] said it was considering the future of its joint venture with SAIC Motors in Xinjiang after it was claimed a huge test track in the Turpan Basin was built using the forced labour of Uyghur Muslims. Turpan, where temperatures can soar higher than 80 degrees Celsius in the summer, is China's hottest region, known by locals as "the oven". The test track took nearly three years to build and covers space equivalent to 3,270 football pitches, according to Chinese news reports from 2019.

Uyghur Canadians pull out of public inquiry into foreign interference. Robert Fife, Ottawa Bureau Chief; Steven Chase, Senior parliamentary reporter, Ottawa*. Globe and Mail*, Published 31 january 2024. Updated. https://www.theglobeandmail.com/politics/article-foreign-interference-inquiry-uyghur-canadians/
"An organization representing Uyghur Canadians is withdrawing from the public inquiry into foreign interference, a development that threatens to undermine Commissioner Marie-Josée Hogue's ability to hear testimony from all vulnerable diaspora communities facing persecution from China. The Uyghur Rights Advocacy Project wrote to Justice Hogue Wednesday to serve notice that it is formally withdrawing because she granted full standing to former Ontario Liberal cabinet minister Michael Chan, now deputy mayor of Markham, Ont., and independent MP Han Dong. This type of standing means they can cross-examine witnesses and gain access to all evidence collected, including that presented to the inquiry outside of hearings.
Justice Hogue also granted intervenor status to independent Senator Yuen Pau Woo, which allows him to participate in the hearings examining foreign interference in the 2019 and 2021 elections. "These statuses provide access to highly confidential information, potentially jeopardizing our community and others, allowing them to cross-examine witnesses," the Uyghur Rights Advocacy Project said in a statement."

"Looking ahead, the U.N. Human Rights Council (HRC) will adopt China's UPR report in June, after China decides which recommendations to implement. China is then responsible for implementing them before its next UPR cycle in 2029. China will also be encouraged to publish a mid-term report, but it has never done so for past reviews. In 2018, China ostensibly accepted a notable proportion of recommendations, but rejected those relating to grave violations against Uyghurs and Tibetans and to its lack of cooperation with U.N. actors. The International Service for Human Rights (ISHR) has compiled a comprehensive repository of recommendations on human rights in China since 2018, issued by an array of U.N. human rights bodies, with separate repositories for Hong Kong and Macao."

At the UN Human Rights Council in Geneva, significantly more member states have asked China critical questions than in the past. However, China did not provide any clear answers and instead described the accusations as fabricated.
China has ignored Germany's questions regarding the boarding school system in Tibet at the UN Human Rights Council in Geneva. The representatives of the People's Republic did not answer the question on the percentage of Tibetan children in boarding schools, nor did they explain the consequences for families who refuse to enroll their children. Instead, China's ambassador in Geneva, Chen Xu, described the accusations of a systematic eradication of Tibetan culture as fabricated and ideologically motivated...

My comment: Interesting speculations on why the torture death of Sun Renze was detailed in Chinese media, when thousands of other cases are not (even though this article was deleted after only 10 minutes). Some Chinese journalists abroad think it was intentional, riding on widespread dissatisfaction with Xi Jinping's extremist Maoist policies -- especially coming as it does, 2 days before China will be questioned over human rights in Geneva!

Like all other UN countries, they [China] are a member of the ICJ and bound by its jurisdiction when they assent to it, be it through treaty or ad hoc. They even have a judge, Xue Hanqin, who's currently on the bench. However, the PRC ratified under reservation of "not being bound by… article IX of the Genocide Convention." This article submits parties to the ICJ's jurisdiction. Bc Israel did not include such a reservation when ratifying the Genocide Convention, it had implicitly and unreservedly assented to the ICJ's jurisdiction, allowing SA to sue them…
The legality of such reservations is highly controversial and disputed. Under article 19(c) of the Vienna Convention on Conventions, a reservation is void if it is "incompatible with the treaty's object&purpose". The ICJ has yet to rule whether an Art IX Genocide Convention is… legal or not. It sidestepped the question: the legality "depends on the particular circumstances of each case."
https://icj-cij.org/sites/default/files/case-related/12/012-19510528-ADV-01-00-EN.pdf
In sum, suing the PRC would be a test case. When it comes to ICJ jurisdiction, it is certainly not dead on arrival …

Good thread on China's shaky and quite possibly unacceptable "reservation" against a #Xinjiang genocide trial in the ICJ.

In a now deleted article from China's @caixin, the tragic case of Sun Renze in #Xinjiang's Ili Kazakh Autonomous Prefecture was detailed. He was held in Chabuchaer County Detention Center & allegedly subjected to a grueling 7-hour interrogation, leading to his untimely death(1/4)

Alleged interrogation methods used on Sun Renze were harrowing. The report claims he endured waterboarding, electric shocks, and beatings with a deliberate attempt to leave no visible marks while interrogators tried to fabricate evidence to hide their actions. #EndTorture (2/4)

According to Caixin, Ren Tingting, Renze's mother, tirelessly fought for justice for her son amid immense pressure. Her son, detained for allegedly 'causing trouble' in 2018, never regained consciousness after the interrogation and passed away in November of that year. (3/4)

In a quiet ruling on Nov. 6, 2023, the Kuitun City Court found 8 officers guilty of causing Renze's death through violent interrogation. They were convicted of intentional injury, receiving sentences ranging from 3 to 13 years.

Important work by @JimMillward on how historians unwittingly perpetuate Beijing's narratives about major non-Han groups' "historic" belonging to "China":
"A 2019 textbook covering Qing through the People's Republic of China, published by Harvard...stat[es] that Xinjiang, Mongolia, and Tibet were 'unified' by the Qing, thus simply translating the CCP's favoured euphemism for conquest."
Long-standing concepts used to explain Chinese history, such as the tribute system, Sinicization, and the Chinese dynasties serve to "actively inhibit frank recognition of colonialism in China and of the CCP's aggressive assimilation and displacement."

Rebranding China's conflicted Xinjiang region as a tourist destination
Western China's vast and beautiful Xinjiang region became notorious for the arbitrary detention and "re-education" of hundreds of thousands of Muslim Uyghurs, whose language and cultural identity have been seen by China's Communist Party as a threat to its total control. But following global condemnation for its crackdown on the Uyghurs, China claimed its so-called re-education centers were shut down in 2019. CBS News correspondent Elizabeth Palmer recently traveled to Xinjiang on a government tour to see how the region is now being re-branded by China as a fun-filled destination for international tourists. Comment from Adrian Zenz:
...this CBS article by @CBSLizpalmer is arguably weak in its contextual discussion of the multi-faceted atrocities and their ongoing nature. Mass internments are discussed as claims by "human rights groups," w/o mention of academic research or the U.N. report, and w/o explicit discussion of other and ongoing aspects of the atrocity, including continued mass arbitrary internment in prisons, forced labor, birth prevention. While the article is obviously critical about Chinese propaganda efforts, it is unclear to me how much contextual expertise about the policy environment and policy implementation was gathered and included in this reporting.

Comment from Adrian Zenz:
Recently, two new articles on Xinjiang claim that Beijing began to detain up to 1 million Uyghurs "since 2014". I find this misleading.
While the state developed the re-education camp model from that time, initial numbers were quite small, and re-education was not always conducted in facilities (camps). The mass internments started in 2017.
The security environment for Uyghurs deteriorated markedly from 2014/2015, and several emigrated around that time. It is important to understand that the mass internment and police state campaign evolved over the course of several years, and a number of Uyghurs were detained prior to 2017. Even so, the dramatic impact of securitization and re-education on Uyghur society came into full force from late 2016.
For the average non-expert reader, marking 2014 as the start of what is now widely known as a campaign of mass internment is unfortunately misleading, especially given that no further explanation or qualification is offered in these articles.

=excerpt:
Xinhua News Agency: The US issued an annual human rights report related to Xinjiang and sanctioned China's two officials and three companies. China said it will take resolute countermeasures. What are these specific measures?
Mao Ning: By issuing the report, the US once again spread false stories on Xinjiang and illegally sanctioned Chinese officials and companies citing so-called human rights issues. This move constitutes grave interference in China's internal affairs and violates the international law and the basic norms of international relations. The move is designed to vilify China and harmful to the lawful rights and interests of relevant Chinese officials and companies. We firmly oppose and strongly condemn the move and have made serious démarches to the US over this.
In accordance with China's Anti-Foreign Sanctions Law, we will take countermeasures against American intelligence data company Kharon, which has long collected Xinjiang-related sensitive information and provided so-called evidence for America's illegal sanctions related to Xinjiang, Edmund Xu, director of investigations of Kharon, and Nicole Morgret, former researcher of the Center for Advanced Defense Studies. The two persons will be prohibited from entering China (including China's mainland, the Hong Kong SAR and the Macau SAR). China will freeze the property of Kharon and the two persons in China, including their movable and immovable property, and prohibit organizations and individuals in China from transactions and cooperation with them.
We again urge the US to stop smearing China, cancel the illegal unilateral sanctions on Chinese officials and companies, and stop implementing wrongful acts such as the Uyghur Forced Labor Prevention Act. If the US refuses to change course, China will not flinch and will respond in kind.

China Quietly Rebuilds Secretive Base for Nuclear Tests. By Broad, William J; Buckley, Chris; Corum, Jonathan. New York Times, 25 Dec. 2023.
https://www.nytimes.com/interactive/2023/12/20/science/china-nuclear-tests-lop-nur.html
"Lop Nur is a sprawling military base, roughly the land area of Virginia, in the arid Xinjiang region of China's far west. Chinese accounts say the area was chosen for nuclear tests because it was so barren and isolated, without any permanent residents. But the broader Xinjiang region is home to the Uyghurs, a largely Muslim ethnic group that has recently endured mass detentions and pervasive security controls. The Uyghurs have long protested health threats from nuclear tests at the site, which began in 1964 after Mao Zedong decided to build the bomb."

U.S. scrutiny on electronics, mainly from Malaysia and Vietnam, has heightened because of a U.S. law targeting forced Uyghur labor in Xinjiang. Since June 2022, over 6,000 shipments worth $2 billion have faced controls, with $82 million in electronics rejected or inspected in September alone. Malaysia and Vietnam, major exporters, have seen $320 million worth of cargoes denied or checked, nearly three times more than China. The impact of compliance issues on shipment delays remains unclear.

Chinese distant-water fishing ships employ forced Uyghur and North Korean labor in seafood processing plants, supplying goods to the U.S. military and school lunches, a probe said. The Outlaw Ocean Project's investigation revealed violations of the Uyghur Forced Labor Prevention Act, with over $50 million worth of salmon reaching federally funded programs, $140 million worth of seafood sent to U.S. military bases, and over $300,000 worth of canned pink salmon donated to Ukraine, some sourced from Chinese plants using forced Uyghur labor.

All state employees with access to classified information will be banned from travelling overseas without prior approval – and even for a period after they leave the job or retire – under a draft revision of China's state secrets law.
A dozen new clauses have been added to the Law on Guarding State Secrets in the revision, the details of which were made public on Wednesday. The revision – the first in a decade – expands the depth and reach of the law's coverage, ranging from education, technology and internet use to military facilities.

There's a strong risk that by "ethnic minority" Hikvision actually means "Uyghur".
PRC authorities once required a Hikvision AI server with the video analytic "Whether ethnic minority: unknown, non-minority, Uyghur" (是否少数民族: 未知、非少数民族、维族)

"Sen. Bill Cassidy, a Louisiana Republican, was among a bipartisan group of senators to visit China and South Korea last week. It was the first congressional delegation to China since 2019 and came amid strained relations between Washington and Beijing. During the trip, the senators met with Chinese President Xi Jinping.
The Dispatch*: You met with Xi, the leader of a country the United States has said is committing genocide. How central were human rights to that conversation?
Cassidy: What we principally focused on most directly was fentanyl coming to our country, and the uneven trade practices that they denied but we alleged in which companies are favored in China and our American companies don't get equal access, as Chinese companies do in the United States. Now, there was indirect conversation about other things, but not as elevated. ...
The Dispatch*: So to be clear, did any of the senators directly raise Xinjiang or the Uyghurs with President Xi?
Cassidy: We raised it—I can't recall if we raised it directly. Because fentanyl is what we really pounded on, and trade relations. And you can only talk about so many things."

Kazakhstan's information exchange bill with China raises concerns over human rights abuses. Kazakhstan's President Kassym-Jomart Tokayev visited Xinjiang's capital, Urumqi, following his attendance at the Belt and Road Forum in Beijing. During his visit, Tokayev expressed his intention to enhance cooperation and promote tourism between Kazakhstan and China. However, concerns arise due to Kazakhstan's recent Senate approval of an information exchange bill that allows the sharing of personal data of Chinese nationals, including Kazakhs and Uyghurs from Xinjiang, with China. Experts warn that this may facilitate human rights abuses and surveillance. The bill's focus on establishing a visa-free regime also raises questions about privacy and security, emphasizing the need for international scrutiny. [From VOA]

Three Uyghur women imprisoned for "religious extremism" in China's Xinjiang recently died shortly after their release from Baykol Women's Prison in Xinjiang. These women, two of them sisters in their 30s and a 75-year-old grandmother, had developed health problems during their detention. Medical attention in the prison is provided only in severe cases, and it's reported that about 20 to 30 detainees require medical assistance inside or outside the prison each week.

"The sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, did not name the company in order not to jeopardise the process, which has become a key issue for some shareholders who are concerned about allegations of human rights abuses in the region."
Volkswagen has selected a company to conduct a labor audit at a joint-owned site in Xinjiang, partnering with China's SAIC Motor Corp in response to investor pressure for due diligence. The audit, prompted by concerns about human rights abuses in the region, is set to be completed by the end of 2023. Volkswagen aims to provide an update on the audit's status when releasing its third-quarter results on October 26. The move is unusual, as China has generally been reluctant to allow such audits in the region, where rights groups have reported allegations of human rights abuses, including forced labor in detention camps. Despite the audit, it may not immediately resolve the "red flag" placed on Volkswagen stock by global index provider MSCI because of the allegations. [Summary by VOA]

A recent report by German anthropologist Adrian Zenz reveals a program in Xinjiang that combines "re-education" with forced labor to erase the cultural identities of Uyghurs and other Muslim minorities. Detainees go through vocational training, become "graduates" in long-term labor placements and face punishment for refusal. The program aims to assimilate the detainees into Han Chinese culture but often results in challenges for them once they are reintegrated into society, including low wages and surveillance. Rahile's story cuts deep with the vindictiveness with which Beijing has erased Uyghur culture. Her only crime was to be an anthropologist. When authorities detained Rahile, they also sent bulldozers to demolish the 1000-year old historical town she spent her life studying.

We wrote about the demolition of this historical town/shrine in our project looking at cultural erasure. If you want to know more:

https://ad-aspi.s3.ap-southeast-2.amazonaws.com/2020-09/Cultural%20erasure_0.pdf#page=24

We'll never know how connected the two are, but she was detained on her way to a conference in December 2017, and that exact same month was when authorities sent bulldozers over 30km of sanddunes to completely raze a historic village/shrine that was central to Rahile's work.

@RTErdogan 's statement at the 77th session of the @UN general assembly on #Uyghurs.
"We emphasize at every opportunity that we respect China's territorial integrity and sovereignty, however, we will continue to express our sensitivity regarding the protection of the fundamental rights and freedoms of Uyghur Turks with whom we have strong historical and humanitarian ties."
TBH I expect a lot more from a person who sees himself as the "leader of #Muslims" or "the voice of the oppressed". This diplomatic statement is much too weak when compared to his statements for other Muslim-majority countries. Also, "China's territorial integrity" can never be "respected" as it is built on decades of genocide. #EastTurkistan is not part of #China, nor will it ever be.

GASTKOMMENTAR - Die fatalen Fehleinschätzungen der chinesischen Diktatur zeugen nicht bloss vom Versagen einzelner Sinologen, sondern sind eine Bankrotterklärung jener Sinologie, für die sie stehen. Die in der NZZ vertretene These zweier bekannter Sinologen, dass sich die Situation in Xinjiang zum Besseren wende, stösst auf Kritik. Zum Widerspruch in der Sache hinzu kommt hier der Vorwurf, dass allzu grosses Vertrauen in die Macht der Philologie politisch blind mache. Kai Vogelsang. Adding to the contradiction in the matter is the accusation that excessive trust in the power of philology makes one politically blind."*]

Elon Musk even managed to alienate former New York Times journalist Bari Weiss—the paragon of contrarianism—by arguing that were "two sides" to China's repression of the Uyghur people, according to a new book by Walter Isaacson. Weiss, Isaacson writes, irked Musk by questioning whether "Tesla's business interests in China might affect the way he managed Twitter." The billionaire conceded that he would need to avoid angering the country's leadership. Musk previously generated controversy by opening a Tesla showroom in [Xinjiang], where many of the human rights abuses are taking place.

"On Wednesday, the regional Party chief Ma Xingrui met in Urumqi with a delegation led by Corinne Vargha, director of the International Labour Standards Department, International Labour Organization (ILO), during which Ma said the door to Northwest China's Xinjiang region is always open, and foreign people from all walks of life are welcome to visit and take a look at the region."

[*MF comment: This secret @ilo visit is a replay of the 2022 @UNHumanRights debacle over visiting Xinjiang, which falsely held out the "unfettered access" as a possibility when there was no chance of such access. In ILO preparatory documents we read that Canada and Australia asked for a "mission to be granted unfettered access to Xinjiang before the next International Labour Conference." https://ilo.org/wcmsp5/groups/public/---ed_norm/---relconf/documents/meetingdocument/wcms_850928.pdf -- But such naivete cannot be serious today. Abstract
This article analyses how shifts in the international system and Turkish domestic factors determine the current relations between Turkey and China. They are combined with changes in the international system and Turkish domestic economic, political and ideological factors. The Uyghur issue, Turkey's new activism in Central Asia, and the 'Turkic narrative' are analysed in the context of bilateral relations. The 2020 Nagorno-Karabakh War brought the 'Turkic narrative' to a new level and gave new impetus and confidence to Ankara in forging a new assertive foreign policy in Central Asia, which could be a challenge for Beijing in the future.

Chinese Sanctions Enforcement Just Got Even Harder. A new campaign is blurring the lines of what's implicated in forced labor. By Aaron Glasserman, an academy scholar at the Harvard Academy for International and Area Studies and a 2023-24 China fellow at the Wilson Center. AUGUST 15, 2023, 12:35 PM. https://foreignpolicy.com/2023/08/15/china-sanctions-enforcement-uyghur-xinjiang-forced-labor-trade-export-import/
Within China, it can be difficult and even dangerous for businesses to try to determine where products and parts come from and whether their supply chains are linked to forced labor or any sanctioned entities. Chinese government raids on the offices of multiple international consulting firms in recent months and a sweeping new anti-espionage law have heightened foreign companies' fears about carrying out due diligence research.
At the same time, even the imports that are clearly linked to sanctioned entities can enter the United States undetected by passing through third countries or in packages valued below the de minimis threshold for reporting and inspection. A new state-led campaign in China is poised to make enforcement of these sanctions even more difficult.

Over-Exposed: Uyghur Region Exposure Assessment for Solar Industry Sourcing. Released Aug. 1, 2023. https://www.shu.ac.uk/helena-kennedy-centre-international-justice/research-and-projects/all-projects/over-exposed "Over-Exposed" creates a new model of assessment for the solar industry and its supply chains to identify exposure to state-imposed forced labour in the Uyghur Region as supply chains become increasingly opaque.
Since the release of "In Broad Daylight" in May 2021, the solar industry has taken action to comply with new regulations and address public outrage over the crisis in the Uyghur Region. Public pressure and legislation like the Uyghur Forced Labor Prevention Act (UFLPA), an import ban on all goods made in the Uyghur Region, has led to solar firms bifurcating their supply chains in an effort to produce some XUAR-free modules. Despite this bifurcation, most solar module manufacturers remain exposed to XUAR-sourcing.

In July 2023, The Rights Practice releases its latest briefing paper "Disappeared by the State: Tracing Uyghur Relatives in China". In the paper, we address the large-scale deprivation of liberty of Uyghurs, and other Turkic populations, in Xinjiang, China. We shed light on the dire situation faced by Uyghurs trying to find their family members and the lack of transparency from Chinese authorities.

Influence of CCP on Uyghur Organizations in Turkey: Unravelling the Intricate Web. VAA July 13, 2023. https://voicesagainstautocracy.org/uyghur/influence-of-ccp-on-uyghur-organizations-in-turkey-unravelling-the-intricate-web/
"... the UYSİD (the Uyghur Industrialists and Entrepreneurs Association), founded in 2010 with the ostensible aim of fostering Uyghur business exchange between Turkey and China. However, its activities extend beyond business, encompassing the realms of politics, civil society, and cultural exchange. Sabir Boghda, a PRC-born Uyghur and the chairman of UYSİD, has played a pivotal role in promoting CCP's interests in Turkey. Boghda's involvement in CCP's united front work, including prestigious appointments and organizing events, highlights his significance in the party's agenda. In 2015, he attended the annual session of the Chinese People's Political Consultative Conference in Beijing as an overseas delegate. He has been appointed by CCP in various united front organisations as an associate/member. This includes the China Overseas Exchange Association (COEA), the All-China Federation of Returned Overseas Chinese (ACFROC) and China Overseas Friendship Association(COFA). Boghda's role as a conduit for CCP propaganda aimed at Turkish audiences is particularly concerning. Through media engagements, such as interviews and publications, he has propagated the narrative of Xinjiang's economic potential and Turko-Chinese cooperation. Notably, these narratives conveniently omit the sensitive issue of the Uyghur plight in Xinjiang and the negative impact on Turko-Chinese relations. Boghda's affiliations with media outlets and his close ties with the PRC Consulate in Istanbul raise questions about the authenticity and objectivity of his statements..."

Ciudad Juárez acquires video surveillance equipment from Chinese companies banned by the U.S. By Elizabeth Rosales. Empower, 06/07/2023. Translated from Spanish.
https://empowerllc.net/en/2023/06/07/surveillance-border-dahua-hikvision/
While the United States bans the acquisition of Chinese technology for mass video surveillance due to national security risks, these devices are being used on the Mexican side of the border. Cities in four northern Mexican states have facial recognition equipment with capabilities for mass surveillance and at least one, Ciudad Juárez, Chihuahua, purchased Dahua and Hikvision devices in 2022. These brands were banned by the U.S. government in 2021 due to an alleged espionage threat that the Chinese government has denied for years. But these Chinese companies are also accused by governments and international organizations of contributing to the repression of ethnic and religious minorities in Xinjiang, where there are cases of torture, sexual abuse, and forcer labor, and where both brands have had operational linksto the region. As a result of the United States-Mexico-Canada Agreement (USMCA), the three North American countries assumed commitments to prohibit the importation of products made with forced labor, but this has not prevented Mexico from acquiring them.

Carla Teng, formerly a diplomatic correspondent for TV5 Network and chief editor for the Office of the President of the Philippines.
"I had been unknowingly convinced by the staged scenes and framed narratives I encountered, unaware of the heart-wrenching truth behind the Uyghur people's suffering"
" … The Chinese official responded that they were "eradicating" Xinjiang individuals who showed interest in or embraced Islamic extremism. He stated firmly that they were taking efforts to secure their borders. I raised my hand to clarify the official's "eradicating" statement. I got it the first time, but I wanted a clearer soundbite. Then, without hesitation, he answered, "We shoot them," justifying the act as a proactive precaution."

"In his first trip to Australia since being elected the head of Tibet's government-in-exile in 2021, Penpa Tsering urged Prime Minister Anthony Albanese to raise human rights with Chinese President Xi Jinping if he travels to Beijing later this year and to impose sanctions on Chinese officials for the mistreatment of ethnic minorities in Tibet and Xinjiang."
Tsering accused Chinese President Xi Jinping of seeking to annihilate ethnic and religious minorities in his nation, comparing the forced separation of Tibetan children from their families to Australia's treatment of Indigenous children during the stolen generations era."

A Uyghur survivor of China's concentration camps, Gulbahar Haitiwaji, was tricked into returning to China in 2016 after seeking asylum; she vanished into the camps. When she was finally released in 2019, Haitiwaji publicly shared her account, describing life inside the camps and the brutalities Uyghurs and other Turkic peoples have suffered.
Uzbek survivor of China's genocide and eyewitness to the camps, Kalbinur Sidik, was forced to work as a Chinese-language instructor in the internment camps in 2017.
Both women joined forces to share their stories of survival on the 2023 Oslo Freedom Forum stage.

From Twitter:

Leaving Al-Aqsa behind during his pilgrimage to Beijing, Palestinian leader Abbas declared that the Uyghur Genocide had no connection with human rights issues. Further legitimizing the Genocide against Uyghur Muslims, he claimed that China is combating terrorism and radicalization.
We acknowledge that the Palestinian government supports the Uyghur Genocide. However, as a son of a concentration camp survivor, I have not heard of any Palestinian organization rejecting the assertion of Mahmoud Abbas. As a prominent Uyghur human rights figure and former president of the Uyghur American Association, I express gratitude towards Netanyahu for his significant achievements against Palestinian terrorists and radicals. Should I do so, almost 100% of Uyghur leaders worldwide would voice their objections against me. This is where we differ, dear Palestinians!

A Uyghur student who was detained in Xinjiang in December after posting a video on WeChat of the "white paper" protests has been convicted of "advocating extremism". Kamile Wayit, 19, was detained in Atush on 12 December the day after returning home from university in Henan, a province in central China. She has not been heard from since, but last week a spokesperson from China's ministry for foreign affairs confirmed to the Economist magazine that Wayit had been sentenced on 25 March "for the crime of advocating extremism". The spokesperson did not confirm the length of the sentence but it can be up to five years.

--In this second episode of a special two-part series, The Economist's senior China correspondent, Alice Su, investigates China's repressions of Uyghurs at home and abroad.
From 2017 to 2019 China locked up more than a million Uyghurs and other ethnic minorities in "re-education camps" in Xinjiang. During that time most Uyghurs living overseas were cut off from everyone they knew in China. Recently the Chinese Communist Party has closed many of the camps. It wants the world to forget what happened in Xinjiang and what is still happening today. It wants Uyghurs inside and outside China to keep quiet.

Alice Su explores how the Chinese state is able to control Uyghurs overseas through their families. She speaks to Nigara and Kewser, two Uyghurs who left China, about making the biggest decision of their lives; family or freedom?

Rubio, Merkley Introduce Landmark Legislation to Hold the CCP Accountable for Crimes in Xinjiang. MAY 31, 2023. https://www.rubio.senate.gov/public/index.cfm/press-releases?ID=CCEE978E-CA9F-4B09-A2BE-E9B5D20CC9BA

The bipartisan law, the Uyghur Human Rights Policy Act, was a crucial first step to address the egregious acts of genocide committed in Xinjiang by the Chinese Communist Party (CCP). Congress then passed the bipartisan Uyghur Forced Labor Prevention Act to ensure that goods tainted with slave labor would not be able to enter the United States. Unfortunately, Beijing has continued its genocide against Uyghurs and other ethnic groups in the Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region (XUAR). Congress should further expand on existing sanctions and visa prohibitions against Chinese government officials to hold them accountable for their crimes, such as forced abortions or sterilizations.

U.S. Senators Marco Rubio (R-FL) and Jeff Merkley (D-OR) introduced the Uyghur Genocide Accountability and Sanctions Act (UGASA). In addition to expanding sanctions and travel restrictions on Chinese officials responsible for the ongoing genocide of Uyghurs, the bill would also authorize the U.S. State Department and the U.S. Agency for International Development to provide assistance to victims of genocide, allow them to broadcast initiatives to counter Chinese propaganda regarding the CCP's ongoing acts of genocide, promote the preservation of cultural and linguistic heritages repressed by the CCP, mandate disclosures to the Securities and Exchange Commission of entities directly or indirectly engaged in activity supporting the CCP's genocide in the XUAR, and fund organizations documenting human rights abuses in Xinjiang.

Thread about Roger Waters, Pink Floyd artist, now a big defender of Putin and China:
In 2022, in an interview by RT, he reminded the US of the "one China" policy, suggesting that Taiwan is actually part of China. He also called the ongoing Uyghur genocide in Xinjian, China, "absolute nonsense", telling the interviewer to "go away and read about it."

"According to UCA News, an Uyghur Christian pastor imprisoned for 15 years by Chinese authorities on charges of "inciting separatism" and "leaking state secrets to overseas organizations" has been released. Some rights groups have deemed these charges to be groundless. China Aid reported that Alimujiang Yimiti, a 49-year-old pastor of a Protestant house church, has been released from prison in Urumqi, the capital of Uyghuristan. Now, he has returned home and is staying with his family.
After converting to Christianity in 1995, Alimujiang Yimiti, previously a Muslim, served as a pastor for Uyghur Christians affiliated with a Protestant house church in Kashgar, Uyghuristan ...
